The history of Mumbai and The Taj Mahal Palace, the city's first harbour landmark, are dramatically intertwined. For over a century, this luxury hotel has been the residence of choice for maharajas, dignitaries and other famous personalities.

Check new design of our homepage! Vacayholics Staff Last Updated: Dec 30, Guest List or What! Eight years later, the foundation of this hotel was laid. Staying true to his vision, Mr. Tata completed the construction in , and opened the hotel to guests on 16th December, in the same year. This hotel is what you today know as the Taj Mahal Palace Hotel. In later years, as we have already seen, many world leaders and royals called this hotel their home, even if it was just for a day. The hotel has rooms, 46 suites, and 11 restaurants. The first hour coffee shop in India was opened in this hotel in It was also the first to hire English butlers. Architects Sitaram Khanderao Vaidya and D. Mirza planned this marvelous hotel, though, it was completed by W. Chambers, an English engineer. The hotel was built by Khansaheb Sorabji Ruttonji Contractor; he was also responsible for designing and building the renowned central floating staircase. The architecture of the hotel was planned in an Indo-Saracenic style, as instructed by Jamsetji Tata. The nearby Gateway of India is also built in the same style. The hotel was converted into a six hundred-bed hospital during World War I. This architecturally-different tower was designed by famous American architect Melton Bekker; the interiors were done by Hong Kong-based Swiss designer Dale Keller. The hotel was completely demolished to make place for the tower. Since the Gateway of India was built 20 years later, the Taj Palace was the first marker of Bombay Harbor; it was so for more than 50 years. The hotel was the first in the country to have American fans, German elevators, and Turkish baths. July Terrorist Attacks On 26 November , the hotel was attacked by a group of terrorists, along with the nearby Oberoi Trident Hotel. Many people were taken hostage; 31 died at the hotel. Approximately people were staying at the hotel at the time of this incident. It took more than 12 months for all the restoration work to be completed. Restoration cost an estimated USD 40 million. Barack Obama was the first foreign head of state to stay at the hotel after the restoration. In a speech from its roof, he said, "The Taj has been the symbol of the strength and the resilience of the Indian people. It would forever remain as an iconic landmark of India.

Since then however, the photograph of the Gateway of India, flanked by The Taj Mahal Palace, Mumbai has become a global symbol of both, the city of Bombay, and a representation of Indian hospitality and tourism. One class of customer that became a regular patron of The Taj, was the Indian Maharajas and Princes, for whom the Hotel provided a luxurious escape from the formality and restrictions of their States, and yet maintained the palatial standards of living they were used to. Over the past century, the hotel has set a benchmark for being a trendsetter – THE place where it all happens. World War I saw the hotel being converted into a bed hospital. Gandhi and Jawaharlal Nehru to foreign visitors like Aldous Huxley and Somerset Maugham who were supportive of the movement. In , the year the country gained its independence, The Taj Mahal Palace, Mumbai played host to the legends and architects of Independence. An enchantment spanning a century of lives, loves, history, arts and cultures. A treasure-trove of invaluable memorabilia, there is a story to tell behind every pillar, a tale to narrate past every corridor, a celebration under every awning. From the Maharajas and Princes to the various kings, presidents, legends, performers, entertainers and religious figures, the Taj has played the perfect host, supportive of their every need. In , a Tower Wing, architecturally different, yet in sync with the ethos of the Taj, was conceived. Today, the two wings stand as one in harmonious contrast. Along with the construction of the Tower Wing, the management of the Taj realised that its future growth lay, not just in Bombay, but also in the development of India as a tourist destination. Starting with the management of the most magnificent palace hotels in the country – the Rambagh Palace, Jaipur and the Lake Palace Udaipur, the Taj Group expanded in key cities across the country, firmly putting its stamp on the Indian hospitality industry. From world-renowned landmark hotels to modern business properties, idyllic beach resorts to authentic Rajput palaces, each Taj hotel offers an unrivalled fusion of world-class service and modern luxury. Over the past century, The Taj Mahal Palace, Mumbai has amassed a diverse collection of paintings and works of art. The Taj Group also began its business in metropolitan hotels in the s, opening the five-star deluxe hotel Taj Coromandel in Chennai in , acquiring an equity interest and operating contract for the Taj President, a business hotel in Mumbai, in , and opening the Taj Mahal Hotel in Delhi in

At a first glance, many people think that the Hotel was made by Britons. But in fact it was built by a person from Parsee community. Jamsetji Nusserwanji Tata, one of the most influential Parsee of them all. In those times the members of the Parsee community had grown rich and powerful by their relationship with the British Government. Jamsetji Tata made his first fortune in the cotton trade and later branched out into mills, hydroelectric works, a shipping line and numerous other businesses. But he was denied entry simply because he was not a European. Hence he conceived the idea of building a hotel worthy of the city, which would attract Europeans, Indians and people of all races which it still does. This worked as a catalyst for J. Tata acquired necessary permissions to build a Hotel at Apollo Bunder at the Port of Bombay which would heartily welcome all the visitors. Tata assigned two architects Sitaram Khanderao Vaidya and D. Mirza to design the original plans for the Taj Palace. But due to untimely death of Vaidya in the project was assigned to and completed by W. Chambers who designed the Watson Hotel too. These architects had worked with F. Steven who designed Victoria Terminus a. In , the foundations 40 ft deep were laid on one hectare of land and on this rose a massive building flanked by two wings, creating a place for large courtyard. A six stories building with a central dome, with a design produced on a grand scale incorporating Indo-Saracenic architecture, with Victorian Gothic and Romanesque details, with Edwardian touches on the roof. With balconies on every floor, fancy woodwork of every kind, ornamental spikes and windows like mashrabiya casements of Arab houses has made many travelers looking at this hotel thoughtful. The Taj was deliberately designed in such a way that most of the rooms can enjoy the sea view and a well maintained garden was placed in the entrance so to trap the hot winds from the Back Bay. It was also a logical decision to make the entrance within the city so that it could be easily accessible. The entrance was then reversed to the front side due to growing traffic problems and this is why the myth was formed. Originally where the carriages were parked is now converted into a swimming pool. In Paris he attended the opening of the Eiffel Tower and was inspired to order 10 pillars of spun iron, which now holds the ballroom of Taj. It was the first building in Bombay to be electrified with its own power plant. It had its own four lifts, steam powered laundry, aerated bottling plant, mechanical dishwasher, telegraph service, post office, burnishing machine for silver and a Turkish bath. A gas operated ice machine provided refrigeration and helped to cool the suites. It had both in house Doctor as well as chemist Sambit Saha of the Telegraph India in his article says that The hotel is a study in luxury with its vaulted alabaster ceilings, onyx columns, archways, hand-woven silk carpets, Belgian crystal chandeliers, cantilever stairway and collections of art and furniture. It had cost 2,50, Pounds for the building itself, and additional costs of 5,00, pounds for making additional amenities available. The hotel was open for business in 16 December Sadly Jamshetji Tata was not able to see the full grandeur of The Taj Palace, as he passed away in There used to be a neighboring hotel Greens which was famous among the sailors due to its low cost and wild parties. In , it was acquired by the Tata Group and was demolished. Lamb was the vice president of Tata Group it had ranked fifth best hotel in the World. However, like every Mumbaikar The Taj Hotel has seen its dark days. During the World War I it was converted into bed hospital. Tata and his staff fought hard to save the building. On 26th November , it had witnessed the most chilling terrorist attack where the whole place was bombed and people were killed. The hotel had become a social and a political center. It has hosted many events for famous personalities. Edward, Prince of Wales visited here.

6: TAJ MAHAL TOWER, MUMBAI - Updated Prices & Hotel Reviews (India) - TripAdvisor

(The Almost Complete) History of Taj Mahal Palace Hotel & Tower, Mumbai After leaving the view of Gateway of India and turning around you would be mesmerized again by a beautiful seven stories tall structure with a central dome which could be represented as a crown on the skyline of Mumbai if viewed from afar.

We were fortunate enough to sit by the window so that we could see the boats across the road and the famous Gateway to India monument! We ate breakfast here x3 times and on every single occasion it was perfect! We did find on our last day that breakfast was full so the Manager kindly let us choose what dishes we wanted and he had them all delivered to our room with coffee, juices and everything else we needed to enjoy our breakfast! We were a little disappointed when we first realized the restaurant was full, but after the matter was dealt with so professionally we actually ended up having an even better experience! This restaurant is one of the many choices within Taj Mahal palace in Mumbai. So one must keep that in mind while making a choice.. The ambience is aristocratic with overview of the Gateway The courteous staff seems a bit laid back and serving food is last on their priority. They saved the best for last The buffet is a fantastic spread with something for everyone. I had some of that every day. There is a short order chef counter where you can have eggs done to order. My first serving of scrambled eggs was under done to my taste. Chef made them again and they were perfect. Every day he made me eggs exactly the way I wanted, he remembered and knew what I wanted. Try to get a window table so you can watch the sun rise over the ferry boats, it is a lovely view. The decor immaculate, the staff well informed and polite, the food not only perfect designed but tastes very good. Finally the coffee and tea that me and my family is spot on. We call for a pot of brewed coffee and a pot of Jasmine tea. Both delivered to perfection. Great place and not obnoxiously expensive. How to Book at EazyDiner?
