

1: Italia Lodging - charming accommodation in Italy bed and breakfast, hotels, apartments

Get this from a library! Hotels and country inns of character and charm in Italy. [Michelle Gastaut; Rivages (Firm);] -- Rivages have become the best-selling guides of their kind in both Europe and America.

Historic and colourful, there are all sorts of magical places to stay in the Tuscan countryside, from converted castles, to mellow old family-fun villas, to luxurious spa retreats, seaside resorts, or agriturismo farmhouses and working wine estates. The challenge for our Gurus is only in finding your own idea of the best hotels in the Tuscan countryside. This is the perfect place from which to taste wine, take strolls, go ballooning or horse riding, eat well and explore the surrounding beauty. Villa Le Barone is a gorgeous villa with spectacular views over the Chianti countryside. There are 28 rather traditional and romantic rooms and suites, with oak floors, some lovely antiques and soft colours, plus a heated pool, and a winery offering wine tastings and a restaurant offering cooking classes. Le Fontanelle offers five stars worth of views, over olive groves, lemon trees and vineyards, plus five stars worth of decor when it comes to the 25 rooms, suites and apartments arranged within the stone buildings of a charming hamlet. They also offer five star food in the elegant restaurant, and a five star pool and spa. There are just 14 rooms, some of them overlooking crystal clear waters, and all of them overlooking beautiful gardens. This is the perfect place to focus your mind and body, and they offer yoga, painting, pottery and cooking classes - all complimented by the delicious communally served meals made from local produce. Lose yourself in the Tuscan Countryside Monteverdi offers the very best of Tuscany in its seven rooms and three suites. The location is great for exploring the hills. The decor is surprisingly elegant for a barn, with wooden floors and handmade furniture, and breakfast is an elaborate spread. The villa is surrounded by farmland, and there are wonderful vistas in every direction, from the rustic chic bedrooms with their four poster beds, from the sunny terraces, the breakfast room and the swimming pool. This eight room villa is charmingly eccentric, and luxurious with it, with pastel colours, exposed beams, stone floors, sunny terraces and a pool-with-a-view. The restaurant is good too. The Castello di Nero is less a villa more a 12th century castle, still decorated with frescoes and mosaics, but now converted into a hotel with 32 rooms and 18 suites. The views from its hilltop position are incredible, and there are acres of grounds to explore, plus a spa, a bar and a fabulous gourmet restaurant. The decor is Italianate opulence: The Castello Banfi il Borgo is another castle and wine estate, this time built in the 13th century, and now offering nine elegant, boutique-style rooms with arched ceilings, four-poster beds and stunning view. Plus an enoteca or wine shop, a spa and a gourmet restaurant. Yet another castle, the Castello di Casole is larger, with 41 rooms and suites, and set on its own 4, acres of Tuscan countryside. The castle has many original murals, Murano glass chandeliers and flagstone floors which tell a romantic story. Pack your silk, linen and cashmere for Bellinis on the terrace as the sun sets. The Agriturismo Poggiacolle is a saffron farm with four individual self-catering apartments within the old farmhouse. The decor is rustic and very Tuscan - as well as the farm the property also has its own vineyards. And there are tennis courts, an infinity pool and spectacular views, which all help to make it one of the best hotels in Tuscany for families. If your family deserves to stay in a castle then Tuscany can accommodate you too, at the Castello di Tornano, an 11 room property perched on a hillside. The hotel has 16 comfortable rooms with traditional tiled floors, wood beams and natural colour schemes. The Il Rigo is a simple country house with 13 minimalist rooms on a working farm, complete with cypress trees and vine covered terraces. The food is outstanding and regional and they offer bike hire. The hotel Il Falconiere occupies a stunning, 17th century manor house, and has 22 spacious rooms and suites. But the hotel really comes into its own in its Michelin starred restaurant where you can also take cooking classes or wine tastings. The pool and spa are completely charming too. The Villa Campestri Olive Oil Resort is another treat for anyone who appreciates the pleasure of great food against a great view. This country house estate is certainly one of the best hotels in the Tuscan hills and has a range of rooms, suites, family suites, and apartments, all decorated with antiques and killim rugs, with glorious views over cypresses and olive groves. They offer cooking classes too.

The city can be entirely explored on foot, and strolling the cobbled streets within the Renaissance era walls - stopping every now and then at an historic cafe - is a real pleasure. Giacomo Puccini was born in Lucca and his operas are regularly performed here, especially during the summer. The summer also sees plenty of festivals held in both Lucca and the surrounding towns. They also provide a good walking route around the town. One of the most famous buildings is Lucca Cathedral, a mishmash of architecture from the medieval to the Gothic. They also planted leaning oaks on top of it to provide shade while you view Lucca from above! The best places to stay in Lucca get quickly booked up, especially during the peak summer months. The rooms are small in number yet comfortable in size, and there are family suites - all in a fantastic location. Fattoria Mansi Bernardini is set in a lovely country house just 10km north of Lucca - offering traditional, romantic accommodation featuring exposed beams with vineyard views. Private villas are available for families and lovely Tuscan cuisine is served up. An intimate city spot. A Palazzo Busdraghi is situated centrally in a gorgeous 16th century palazzo. Boasting elegant rooms with courtyard views and antiques, you can also come back after a day out sightseeing and treat yourself to an in-room massage. The wonderfully restored Art-Nouveau Lucca in Azzurro is located bang in the medieval centre of town. Palazzo Tucci, set within a striking palace, offers elegant and individually-decorated accommodation. Featuring a quintessentially traditional design throughout, with baroque furniture and frescoes, you can also tuck into indulgent breakfasts to set you up for the day. For exploring the surrounds The Tenuta San Pietro is a great base for exploring the region. Located just to the north of the town, they provide a free shuttle bus if you want to go to Lucca and leave the car behind. It is also a must for foodies - the gourmet cuisine here is highly recommended and cookery classes are on offer too! La Cappella is located just north of the city in tranquil countryside surroundings. Located between Lucca and Pisa, it features gorgeous suites, gourmet cuisine and a truly spoiling spa!
