To see yourself crossing a bridge in your dreams is highly suggestive of a change or transition about to take place. You are ready, with full confidence to embrace this transition once you take the first step of crossing the bridge and into a new stage in life.

I once heard a story of a wise, elderly man who owned a dry-cleaning business. Periodically, he would hire young men to help him run his shop. The first day on the job, every new employee was instructed by the shop owner to carefully check the pockets of each bundle of dirty clothing. Unknown to that new employee, the owner secretly placed a quarter in the pocket of one pair of trousers that the beginner was to check. If the new employee, upon discovering the quarter, brought it to his employer so that it would be returned to its rightful owner, he was hired permanently. If the trainee pocketed the quarter, at the end of the day he was asked not to return, and for good reason: Trust must be earned. God is every bit as wise as the elderly man who owned that dry-cleaning business. He, too, only promotes those whom He can trust. For that reason, just like the dry-cleaning owner, God will test us to see if we can be trusted. The Original Test Who was the first person God tested? The first person to be tested was the very first person, Adam. As one who was given a free will, Adam had to be tested to see if he would obey or disobey. For that same reason, all free moral agents must be tested. Let me explain further. The reason for this is obvious. If God had created us as robots, we would not have possessed a capacity to love Him. If you want to know how God would have felt with a race of robots, just place a puppet on your hand and have him turn toward you and tell you that he loves you. Is your heart warmed? Of course not, because that puppet is only saying what you are making him say. God created people with free wills because He wanted to have a family that would love Him. If people were not given a choice in the matter, then love for God would have been an impossibility. People sometimes ask a question that relates well to this concept: Although God did not want Adam to eat the forbidden fruit, He did want to see if Adam would eat from a tree He had designated as forbidden. Adam would have been a robot by virtue of his environment. If nothing had been forbidden, Adam would not have had any choices to make regarding obedience or disobedience. That is why God placed the tree of the knowledge of good and evil in the garden of Eden. It was a test. God never tempts anyone, but, as we will learn, He tests everyone. Some have even claimed it was symbolic for sex. The Bible, however, tells us it was a literal tree with literal fruit. The fruit looked good and tasted good just like every other tree in the garden. The forbidden fruit contained no magical or special power. The only difference between the forbidden fruit and all the other fruits was that it was forbidden. Simply because Adam had no knowledge of good or evil until he sinned by eating the forbidden fruit. Prior to his fall, all he had ever experienced was good. As we read the first and second chapters of Genesis, we observe how many times God said that something He made or did was good. Adam knew nothing of evil or sorrow. Having no knowledge of evil, he consequently had no knowledge of good either. After Adam sinned, however, he then possessed the knowledge of good and evil, because good and evil became a part of his daily experience. The main thing we need to understand is that God tested Adam, and Adam failed his test. The Bible plainly states that God tested many others, and we will study their lives in later chapters. Once you do, it will make a difference in the way you live. I realize that a few readers might beg to differ, not believing that God tests anyone. But if such readers will continue reading, their thinking will be changed. They will discover that the Bible undeniably teaches that God tests all of us. Here we read that God tested Abraham. Some who read the King James Version have been quite disturbed by this particular passage because it states that God tempted Abraham. We know, of course, that God tempts no one according to James 1: Exactly how did God test Abraham? He told Abraham to sacrifice his own son, a very difficult thing to do. Does this man love Me more than he loves his own son for whom he waited so long? God was not only interested in knowing how much Abraham loved Him; He is obviously quite interested in knowing how much all of us love Him. He, in fact, never intended that Abraham would kill Isaac, but stopped him once it became clear that Abraham was willing to do so. If I must sacrifice living with my earthly father because of serving my Heavenly Father, then I will leave. She passed a difficult test and in the process received another new father. The Test of Our Love and Obedience God told Abraham to do something that must have been very difficult, and our tests may also seem severe. Of course, any commandment from God brings a test with it. Will we obey or disobey? For example, Jesus told us to love our enemies, to pray for those who persecute us, and to do good to those who spitefully use us. How many of us are passing that test? When people mistreat us, it is a test. Those are the times when our love and obedience are tested, and when we have an opportunity to grow spiritually. From the cross, He even prayed for the soldiers who were dividing His garments. How are we ever going to grow more perfect in love unless we run up against people who seem difficult to love? The true test of our love is when people mistreat us. We should view those unfeeling people as blessings in disguise to help us grow. They give us a chance to be like Jesus. Back to Abraham Unlike Adam, Abraham passed his test. Once he did, God said to him: Once Abraham passed his test, it resulted in God greatly blessing him and also promising to make him a great blessing to others. Once we have proved ourselves trustworthy, then we can be promoted. Are you passing your tests? If you think you still have room to grow, keep reading! For the Lord your God is testing you to find out if you love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul Deut. Adam and Abraham are not the only examples of this fact. Speaking of King Hezekiah, the Bible says: Statements like these often raise the eyebrows of thinking Christians. God certainly knows all there is to know. Realize, however, that until free moral agents are tested, there is nothing to know. Only after they are tested and react is there something to know. That is why we must be tested, so that God can have knowledge of our reactions. Certainly in eternity past God could look down through time and see the reactions of free moral agents to their tests, but unless they were tested at some point in time, there would have been nothing for God to look down in time and see. In addition, many other biblical parallels between Israel and the church exist. For example, the Israelites were delivered from the destroying angel by applying the blood of the Passover lamb to their doorposts see Ex. Likewise, we have been delivered from the wrath of God by the blood of Christ, who is called our Passover in 1 Corinthians 5: They were delivered out of slavery and an evil kingdom, just as we have been delivered from slavery to sin, Satan, spiritual death, and the kingdom of darkness. Israel passed through the Red Sea, which the New Testament teaches corresponds to our baptism in water see 1 Cor. Because God never changes, we can learn a lot about how He will work in our lives by studying how He worked in the lives of the Israelites. Canaan, however, does not represent heaven to new covenant believers because there will be no battles to fight in heaven. Unfortunately, too many Christians have just been satisfied with getting out of Egypt. How I praise God for that day! Grow up in Christ and receive all that God has provided for you! Our goal should be to become more like Jesus and walk in His full provision. How did He lead them? And the Lord was going before them in a pillar of cloud by day to lead them on the way, and in a pillar of fire by night to give them light, that they might travel by day and by night. He did not take away the pillar of cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people Ex. God knew His people were not ready to face anyone in battle yet. No, because in later battles, God would make it very clear to His people that He could give them victory over their enemies against all odds.

Old grudges, it seems, die even harder The "Saviors Save Us! In circumstances like these, flushing bad blood down the drain can mean the difference between life and death. But some might choose death over letting go—and with a mysterious Savior-killer lurking in the woods and a herd moving toward the bridge, it seems death is on the horizon. As he talks, a montage is shown of Rick walking through the camp composed of former Savivors, members of the Kingdom, Hilltop and Alexandria. Eugene has nothing for Rick but bad news. On the bridge, the seeds of discontent are being sown. Justin, one of the Savivors, shoves Henry to the ground after the boy denies him a second glass of water. Henry retaliates, and upon seeing Justin heading back toward Henry, Daryl tries to talk him down. Rick, Carol and Daryl talk about the incident back at the camp. True to form, Rick remains optimistic about their chances and believes they can hold out for a few more days until the bridge is finished. Trailers offer a glimpse at the upcoming season, but the source material does, too. Dis-armed Without the final distraction, the herd heads straight for the crew working on the bridge. Daryl and some others manage to free him, but his arm is mangled. Rick and a few others show up just in time and help take care of the walkers, and eventually eliminate the problem by rolling logs down the hill to “for lack of a better term “ squish them. Daryl takes a heavily-bleeding Aaron back to camp. Seeing the heavy bleeding, she determines the arm is beyond repair and she has no choice but to amputate it. In the aftermath of the procedure, Daryl leaves the medical tent and goes after Justin, giving him a thorough beating. Daryl only relents when Carol pulls him away, and by then most of the camp is watching. Rick then goes to visit a stabilized Aaron in the medical tent. By putting the bridge project first, Rick realizes he set Aaron up to pay the price. As they sit by the fire, Carol decides to try on the ring Ezekiel tried to give her in the first episode. Plus, Andrew Lincoln talks leaving. Decisions, Decisions Interwoven with the bridge storyline is a Michonne and Maggie-centric plotline at the Hilltop. Later, she visits him by herself and they talk about his alcoholic past. Where Are They Now? Click through our gallery to find out! Maggie and Michonne talk about setting up a new system with laws for all of the communities. On the other hand, she says Gregory had chance after chance and wasted them all. This declaration seems to unsettle Michonne. Rick looks on at the contented group from all the communities, and the narrative reverts to him talking to Negan in the cell. He asks who Rick is building this future for, and makes the grave mistake of bringing up Carl. On watch high above the camp in a construction crane, Jadis looks up at the sky and sees a helicopter. This will explain how you can personally begin a relationship with God, right now. PDF What does it take to begin a relationship with God? Wait for lightning to strike? Devote yourself to unselfish religious deeds? Become a better person so that God will accept you? God has made it very clear in the Bible how we can know Him. This will explain how you can personally begin a relationship with God, right nowâ€¦ Principle One: God loves you and offers a wonderful plan for your life. Not only that, he loves you so much that he wants you to know him now and spend eternity with him. Jesus said, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son so that everyone who believes in him will not perish but have eternal life. Jesus alone can bring meaning and purpose to life. What keeps us from knowing God? All of us sin and our sin has separated us from God. We sense that separation, that distance from God because of our sin. The Bible tells us that "All of us like sheep have gone astray; each of us has turned to his own way. The result of sin in our lives is death -- spiritual separation from God. There is a distance, a gap between us and God. The arrows show our efforts to reach God But the problem is that none of these good efforts actually cover up our sin or remove it. Our sin is known by God and stands as a barrier between us and God. Further, the Bible says that the penalty for sin is death. We would be eternally separated from God. Exceptâ€¦for what God did for us. So, how can we have a relationship with God? Jesus Christ paid the penalty for our sin for us. He now offers us complete forgiveness and a close relationship with him. Jesus Christ took all of our sins--knowing everything we have ever done or will do--suffered and paid for them with his life on the cross. Jesus died for us, in our place. He did this out of his tremendous love for us. That is why Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth and the life; no one can come to the Father except through me. Jesus says, "Come to me. Whoever believes in meâ€¦ out of his heart will flow rivers of living water. And he now invites us to come to him, that we might begin a personal relationship with God. Just knowing what Jesus has done for us and what he is offering us is not enough. To have a relationship with God, we need to welcome him into our lifeâ€¦ Principle Four: We must individually accept Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord. The Bible says, "Yet to all who received him, to those who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God. The Bible says, "God saved you by his special favour when you believed. Salvation is not a reward for the good things we have done, so none of us can boast about it. If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in. Consider these two circles: Which circle would you like to have represent your life? Begin a relationship with Jesusâ€¦ You can receive Christ right now. The precise words you use to commit yourself to God are not important. He knows the intentions of your heart. If you are unsure of what to pray, this might help you put it into words: I want you to come into my life. Thank you for dying on the cross for my sin so that I could be fully accepted by you. Only you can give me the power to change and become the person you created me to be. Thank you for forgiving me and giving me eternal life with God. I give my life to you. Please do with it as you wish. You have begun a personal relationship with God.

Share Water softener maintenance made easy In the world of appliances, water softeners are wonderfully low-key. With the exception of initially entering your water hardness level, any regeneration timing parameters and refilling the salt, they just hum along and do their job. Although low-maintenance, there are a few easy ways you can make them work more efficiently and last longer. Avoid salt bridges and salt mushing

A salt bridge occurs when a hard crust forms in the brine tank and creates an empty space between the water and the salt, preventing the salt from dissolving into the water to make brine. Common causes of bridging include high humidity, temperature changes around the water softener or using the wrong kind of salt. The quickest way to test for a salt bridge is to take a broom handle and carefully push on the top of the salt, using a little bit of pressure to break it up if it has solidified. Salt mushing is the more serious of the two problems and happens when dissolved salt recrystallizes and forms a sludge on the bottom of the brine tank. This thick layer of salt keeps the water softener from properly cycling through the regeneration process, leaving your water hard and creating a serious blockage in the tank. Draining the softener of its water, digging out all the old salt and replacing it with fresh salt is the only way to fix this problem. To avoid these salt snafus, opt for high-quality salt pellets, which greatly reduce the potential for any problems—especially salt mushing. Keeping it half-full prevents older salt from sticking to the walls of the tank. Be selective with your salt choice

There are three basic types of water softener salt: Rock salt, the least expensive, contains higher levels of insoluble minerals or impurities. Over time, this can result in a muddy tank, decreasing the softening efficiency while leaving impurities in your water. Solar salt, which is much more soluble than rock salt, is obtained by the evaporation of seawater and is found in both pellet and crystal form. The best option is evaporated salt, which is obtained through a combination of mining and evaporation. This is the purest form of salt at

In general, look for higher purity salts, which will leave less storage tank residue, lowering the likelihood of salt bridges and salt mushing, and will result in less maintenance. High-quality salts—and salts in pellet form—help eliminate bridging problems. Additionally, many leading brands also offer salt products that address specific issues, such as high iron concentration, rust stains and sodium alternatives. Over time, a water softener can become polluted with iron, silt, heavy metals and other organic compounds that cause your softener to lose its efficiency. The cleaner is then discharged during the normal flushing process of the water softening cycle. Clean the venturi valve

The venturi and nozzle create the suction to move brine from the brine tank into the resin tank during the regeneration cycle. Because of this, the venturi valve sometimes gets plugged with sand, sediment and dirt, so a clean valve is imperative for the water softener to work properly. This process should be done twice a year to keep the water softening process smooth and efficient. Take a closer look at what hard water costs you if your home is left untreated.

Water Questions and Answers. So, you say the water from your faucet smells like rotten eggs? Maybe you wonder how water gets to your house way up on that hilltop or would like to know why your pond is full of slimy green algae.

You may not know this, but this is very common behavior in men. He will give you strong signs that he is interested and then the next day it will be like he never expressed interest before. That way you can focus your attention on the men that want to be in a relationship and fall in love with you! He asks about your life. Usually when a man is interested he wants to see where he will fit in your life if he decides to pursue a relationship. You also want to examine the interaction in context. If he is a sales person at a car dealership and he is asking loaded questions, he could just be trying to build a business relationship with you to make a sale or determine if you will actually be able to afford a car. He offers to help. So how do you tell the difference between him being a gentleman and him having genuine interest? So, if he has offered to help you with something that is less than appealing, you can count on the fact that he has some level of interest. This may seem simple, but a man that is interested in you will call you if he has your number. If he has your number and is interested, he is not going to be sitting on that information. Men are goal focused so the how are you doing talk will be highly difficult for them to "fake" unless they are truly interested in getting to know you better. He creates a cute nickname for you. Has he created a nickname for you? Not one that would make you feel self conscious or is ridiculing you in any way. This is one of best ways you can tell that a man likes you. Creating a nickname for you is his way of having something that only you and him share. He asks you out. This is one of the best ways to determine whether he has genuine interest. Has he asked you out on a date? If he took the time to plan something you would really like, chances are he has some feelings for you. He asks you out way ahead of time. If he is asking you to go out with him at least a week in advance he has some interest in you, because in his mind he wants to secure that spot before anyone else creeps in and takes it. He tries to make you laugh. If he is making jokes when it is just you and him, chances are he wants to see you smile. Men that have interest in a woman want to see them happy and what better way than to make you laugh? He listens to you. This may seem like a basic thing, but believe me, if he is actually listening to what you have to say, he may have some interest in you. This is even more apparent if he can remember your likes and dislikes and uses that information to enhance his interactions with you. You may have mentioned that you like gummy bears, and conveniently he purchases them as a snack when you go to the movies. Want to be in a long term committed relationship?
