

1: HTML Cheat Sheet - Fully Interactive [Inc HTML5]

Learning HTML is hard enough, without having to memorize dozens of tags & attributes. That's why we've put together this handy HTML cheat sheet for you to print out & keep by your side as you learn to code HTML, CSS & javascript.

Even experts will forget them from time-to-time. This cheat sheet will be ready and waiting for you in your bookmarks for those times when you need a reminder. What is Meant by CSS? Beyond design and visual styles, CSS is also used to make websites responsive and therefore able to display properly on mobile devices. The codes used in HTML are supposed to define what things are a header, a bullet point, a paragraph, etc. With this new language, you could created external. This was far more preferable to the idea of coding every page with HTML. We all know Notepad. If you need to save or modify your CSS style sheets, simply follow these steps: Paste this into a blank Notepad file Save the file in notepad with a title of your choice and make the extension: An example would be StyleSheet1. What is Inline CSS? Using an inline solution offers some benefits. For starters, it reduces the number of files the browser had to download before it can display your web page. For this reason, inline CSS can be a great solution for optimizing your CSS delivery and it could speed up your website in the process. Here are a couple things to remember about inline coding: Span is a pretty simple, but useful tool for developers and designers. Spans are an inline element and not a block level element. You can use the span tag to augment certain areas of text in your content. This text shall be italic! External Styles Finally, we have the codes that are used in a separate style sheet that is externally saved and attached to your website. Final Thoughts CSS is a powerful tool for developers to create unique and well-designed websites. What was your journey through learning and utilizing CSS in your website development?
