

1: Nato Science Series II: Hydrogen Recycling at Plasma Facing Materials 1 (, Hardcover) | eBay

A compendium representing the current state of the art in the modelling, simulation and physics of the interaction of hydrogen and helium with plasma facing materials in fusion reactors.

Wu Table Of Content Preface. Hydrogen Recycling in Fusion Devices. Density control and plasma wall interaction in Tore Supra; C. Active control of hydrogen recycling by the permeation and absorption techniques; N. Wall pumping in Tokamak with lithium; V. Hydrogen Reflection and Secondary Hydrogen Particles. Reflection and adsorption of hydrogen atoms and molecules on graphite and tungsten; E. Detached recombining plasmas in relation to volumetric hydrogen recycle; S. Halpha spectroscopic study of hydrogen behavior in a low temperature plasma; B. Metal surface microrelief formed due to sputtering by mono- and variable energy ions of hydrogen plasma; A. Recycled hydrogen in excited state; T. Main research results in hydrogen thermosorptive activation by metal hydrides; Y. Hydrogen Transport in Materials. The modulated permeation technique used at the open university; N. A model for calculation of tritium accumulation and leakage in plasma facing sandwich structures; A. Transport of hydrogen through amorphous alloy; I. An interaction of hydrogen isotopes with austenitic Cr-Ni steels without and during reactor irradiation. Hydrogen recycle at plasma facing materials; B. Diffusion of tritium in V, Nb and Ta under concentration, temperature and electric potential gradients; M. Deuterium superpermeation through niobium membrane; M. Effects of helium on the superpermeation of the group Va metals; M. Membrane bias effects on plasma driven permeation of hydrogen through niobium membrane; Y. Plasma driven permeation through the NB membrane at low temperature; A. Phenomenology model of hydrogen evacuation by metal membranes; A. Hydrogen recycling and wall equilibration in fusion devices; P. Hydrogen Retention and Release. Mechanisms of tritium retention in, and the removal of tritium from plasma facing materials of the Fusion Devices; C. Tritium recycling and inventory in eroded debris of plasma-facing materials; A. Effects of Cu-impurity on retention and thermal release of D implanted into Be; B. Deuterium retention in beryllium and beryllium oxide; V. The effect of radiation damage and helium on hydrogen trapping in beryllium; M. Atomic hydrogen e graphite interaction; E. Deuterium retention in SI doped carbon films; E. Retention of eV tritium in tungsten at high fluxes; Th. Hydrogen absorption and desorption behavior with a boronized wall; N. Out of pile experiments on the investigation of hydrogen interaction with reduced activation ferritic-martensitic st4el F82H; A. Structure and relief modification of titanium and boron modified graphite under light ion irradiation; L. The simulation of the diagnostic mirror behavior under hydrogen isotope irradiation; V. Surface loss probabilities of neutral hydrocarbon radicals on amorphous hydrogenated carbon film surfaces:
