Five of the musicals in this season are inspired by acclaimed works of literature, both classic and contemporary. And women are front and center this season as writers, composers, lyricists, directors, choreographers, and as central characters in the stories we will tell. Our beloved theater turns 90 this fall and has been showing its age. Keeping in mind our responsibility as stewards of this historic venue and the comfort the patrons who walk through our doors each year, The 5th is making a major investment in improving our facilities. We believe this will move us into the Next Stage of great musical theater at The 5th and will radically improve our patron experience. Featuring stirring classic songs including "The Impossible Dream" and "Dulcinea," Man of La Mancha is a multi-Tony Award-winning theatrical masterpiece that first debuted on Broadway in 1955. It has since been revived four times and is performed around the world in fifteen languages. Inspired by one of the greatest novels in Western literature, Man of La Mancha enters the mind and world of the mad knight Don Quixote as he pursues his quest for the impossible dream. In a tale told by Cervantes himself, Quixote is against all odds, a man who sees good and innocence in a world filled with darkness and despair. Based on the beloved animated film, this magical family treasure features a book by Doug Wright with music by Alan Menken and lyrics by Howard Ashman and Glenn Slater. All of the familiar Academy Award-winning hits including "Kiss the Girl," "Part of Your World," and the dazzling show stopper, "Under the Sea," are present in this fairytale production, in addition to new songs written for the stage. This stunning holiday production will be directed by Glenn Casale. The 5th Avenue Theatre rolls out the new year with that swinging musical theater classic, The Pajama Game February 9-March 5, a musical that "goes down as easily and intoxicatingly as spiked lemonade at a summer picnic" The New York Times, directed by 5th Avenue Producing Artistic Director Bill Berry. Everyone is a suspect in Murder for Two-a drop-dead funny musical murder mystery with a twist: One actor investigates the crime; the other plays all the suspects-and they both play the piano! A zany blend of classic musical comedy and madcap mystery, this ninety-minute whodunit is a highly theatrical duet loaded with killer laughs. The show had its world premiere in at Chicago Shakespeare Theatre where it extended four times and ran for more than six months. It was hailed as "A charmingly frenetic new musical comedy" by Entertainment Weekly and "a hilarious musical whodunit" by the New York Observer. With book and lyrics by Pulitzer Prize-winner Marsha Norman and music by Lucy Simon, this captivating show will mesmerize audiences of all ages and transport you to a world where beauty and love blossom, and a forgotten seed of life can still flourish. Based on the beloved novel by Frances Hodgson Burnett, The Secret Garden follows recently-orphaned ten year old Mary Lennox, a young girl who is sent to live with her estranged uncle on the Yorkshire moors. This astonishing and magnificent hit premiered on Broadway in 1991, running for performances and making Daisy Egan, who starred as Mary, the youngest female Tony Award winner in Broadway history Best Performance by a Featured Actress in a Musical. Romy and Michele are two inseparable best friends whose relationship is put to the test when they invent fake careers to impress people at their year class reunion. This will be the 18th new musical that The 5th has produced over the past 16 years. Every once in a while a musical comes along that surprises, moves and excites audiences in ways only a truly landmark musical can. The musical made Broadway history as the first show written only by women to ever win Best Musical. A refreshingly honest musical about seeing your parents through grown-up eyes, Fun Home is extraordinary, a rare beauty that pumps fresh air into Broadway" New York Times.

Photo courtesy of Creative Home Engineering This secret wine cellar in Seattle is part storage solution and part spy accessory. The homeowner is a wine lover whose hobby has a personal twist: The custom wine bottles pictured here are named after the three children who live in the home, according to design firm Creative Home Engineering. When the bottles are turned in a certain sequence, the hidden stone cellar door opens. The wooden shelving comprising the secret door to the room sits behind a wine bar and kitchenette. As with any good hidden room -- and especially because the homeowners are hardcore James Bond fans, according to design firm The Cleary Company -- the door is opened by pulling a lever that looks like a book on the shelf.

Secret wine cellar " Tacoma, Washington Photo courtesy of Zillow This four-bedroom, four-bathroom home in the North End neighborhood of Tacoma, Washington, has a secret: Adjacent to its square-foot lower-level living area is a hidden wine cellar, covered by a thick wooden door, covered by two fully functioning bookcases. Inside the cellar are wooden wine racks providing ample storage for well over bottles. The teal-colored space also features industrial gallery lighting. Outside, a carpeted sitting room features a brick fireplace with more built-in shelving.

This entertainment space requires a three-part push code to get inside: The owners push three stones in a specific sequence to open the stone-covered wooden door. Inside, the room features tiled flooring, wooden wall paneling and gallery lighting. Perry Homes president Anthony Perry, the hidden area includes a separate powder room, wet bar and snack area. It also features a small dome called a cupola that looks like a lighthouse from the outside. According to the West Sussex-based company Spiral Cellars, which specializes in high-end, spiral-shaped wine cellars built below the floor, this miniature wine room is about 8 feet deep and can store up to 1, bottles.

Secret hideout " Los Angeles Photo courtesy of Von Fitz Design The three young boys who live in this home on the west side of Los Angeles consider the secret room under the stairs their favorite spot, according to designers Maria Von Hartz and Annie Fitzgerald. The contractor originally planned on sealing up the space, but instead two hidden doors were added -- one under the stairwell and one inside a coat closet -- and hardwood flooring was installed inside. The room was painted green and is a cozy space for toys and cushion seating. After installing this teal-colored secret bookcase door in the library, the contractor heard a creaking sound and almost put some oil on the wheel that allows the door to open. The hidden door with concealed hinges leads to a room with a small bar.

In his novel Basil, Wilkie Collins' narrator concludes that "those ghastly heart-tragedies laid open before me are not to be written, but are acted and reacted, scene by scene, year by year, in the secret theatre of home."

The Secret to the Best Home Theater: FOV – Field of View Technology October 18, Views When it comes to our screen time, most home movie theater junkies seem to agree on one thing: We want the action to wrap around us and make us feel like we are there. What is field of view? Field of view or FOV is the open, observable area a person can see with their naked eye or through an optical device. We measure it in degrees, both horizontally and vertically. Each human eye has a horizontal monocular FOV of about degrees. When both eyes work together binocular , they can cover a total horizontal FOV of about Where does the FOV tech come in? The sweet spot where the true immersion happens. The closer a screen can get to filling the entire sweet spot, the more it resembles what we see in our daily lives. And making that happen is what FOV tech is all about. But until we can shoot a film with a degree camera, our movie-watching experience is going to be determined by two key factors: What does that mean for my home theater? Maybe you even get there early enough to swipe an optimal viewing seat right in the middle of the theater. What FOV are you going to have? Bump that up to an impressive How often do you get to the movie theater? Today most of us prefer to save money and time by hanging out at home and turning on our favorite streaming film. How many degrees do we get then? Here is the home theater secret sauce. These goggles are where VR gaming meets your home theater and a great place to start is Cinera. Cinera is a young company who is essentially pioneering a personal movie theater in a headset. Forget the curved TV—these goggles give you an impressive 66 degrees of beautiful, pure, unobstructed FOV from the comfort of their couch, every single time. No cramped back corner seats. No stiff neck from staring straight up from under the screen. Just clean, immersive movie. Your home theater will thank you.
