

1: Inside the animal kingdom

You may already be familiar with Restaurantosaurus in Animal Kingdom's Dinoland, U.S.A. This popular Counter Service option serves up classics like Burgers and Chicken Nuggets in a super fun "and seriously funny (check it out here!) " atmosphere. The Lounge is open daily from pm until.

The hotel itself is a really cool place with an interesting design. The layout of the main building seems to be somewhat reminiscent of the Wilderness Lodge, but the Animal Kingdom Lodge has an entirely different feel to it. It is almost as if you are somewhere in Africa rather than in Central Florida. I could be wrong, but I would suspect the heat is somewhat similar in both places, so that adds to the illusion even more. However, it seems like most every time we are at the Animal Kingdom Lodge, it rains. It seems that those couches in the lobby are a good place to lie down and rest for a while, judging from the number of people there doing just that. Not that I am actually judging the people there doing that. When we are there, we usually walk out to see what animals we can see. But we usually brave the raindrops unless they get to be too numerous to go see some animals. This time around, we saw this one: Those were some impressive horns! I would definitely want to stay on the good side of this guy, because those look like they could do some serious damage. However, I have no idea exactly what this guy is, so maybe someone could enlighten me. I am often amazed at just how many different kinds of animals there are. Who even knows how many different varieties of cattle there are? And how do they keep up with all of them, anyway? The same goes for other common kinds of animals, like deer, dogs, horses, and so on. This world we live in is quite a complicated, complex place. And that is what keeps it interesting. The heavens declare the glory of God, and the sky proclaims the work of His hands. Day after day they pour out speech; night after night they communicate knowledge. I would imagine that you are starting to see a pattern here, right? Yes, I did use the fisheye lens quite a bit on this most recent trip, just for something different than what I had been posting lately. But I also used other lenses, such as for the photo of the cattle thing, just to get a closer view. A single Raw exposure, processed in Photoshop. ### 3: Inside the Animal Kingdom Lodge at Walt Disney World - Burnsland Photography and Stories

Inside the Animal Kingdom Lodge at Walt Disney World Posted on June 27, November 17, Author Steve Burns 0 The main lobby of the Animal Kingdom Lodge at Walt Disney World is a big, open space with the feel of someplace exotic.

When you enter the restaurant, you enter into a huge gift shop called the Retail Village finally some truth in advertising. The check-in podium is located in the gift shop. Browsing the gift shop gives you something to do while you wait for your table. This is a great place to grab a bite if you are spending some time in Disney Springs. For example there is an elephant room with an elephant in the middle and a gorilla room with a gorilla in it. When has that ever stopped me. This is the gift shop. The Retail Village is the entrance to the restaurant. There is an exclusive "Rainforest Cafe" line of clothing and just about anything else you could imagine. The Mushroom Bar Stools Photo by sunshinewalks Magic Mushroom Bar The bar is quite an interesting place and sometimes a good place to grab a quick bite when the wait is too long. The stools of the bar are shaped like animals and the roof is shaped like a giant mushroom. You can get one of the signature drinks or select from a wide range of appetizers. Guest must be 21 or older to order drinks. The Menus The menus are filled with interesting sounding creations from around the globe. Breakfast Breakfast at the Rainforest Cafe has some interesting offering for breakfast.
