The Journal of Interior design is seeking submissions for a Special Issue entitled "Pushed to the Edge? Marginalization and the Constructed Interior," guest-edited by Jennifer Web.

This is a new journal. No publications have been accepted yet. The submitting author takes responsibility for the paper during the submission process. Please note that the International Journal of Interior Design levies a paper-processing charge on all accepted papers. Most open-access journals rely on author charges to offset the costs of managing the journal. The International Journal of Interior Design accepts online paper submissions only. Simply click the Submit a Paper button to begin the process. During submission, you will be asked to do the following: Register with Journal Network, or Login Agree to the author statements and publication terms Provide the title, abstract, keywords for the paper Add additional authors to the paper if any , including their full name and email address Upload a PDF copy of the paper Submit the paper-processing charge using a credit card Finalize the submission Paper Format File Formats Only a single portable document file PDF document is accepted. Please include all illustrations, figures, and so forth in the document. The document should be in a full-text format of good quality, for indexing purposes. PDF documents saved as images where the text cannot be highlighted cannot be indexed by services such as Google Scholar. Paper Style Different papers require different formatting styles; for example, scientific research papers will differ from historical essays. Please format your paper using a standard convention or style. Abstract The Abstract of the paper is a summary of what the paper is about. It should not exceed words. If a research paper, please include relevant background information, results, and an the potential implications of the paper. Keywords Include keywords representing the main content of the paper. Separate each keyword with a comma. Body The main text of the paper. References Please include references or citations if any after the body of the paper, or in the page footers, in a numbered format. Availability of Supporting Data The International Journal of Interior Design encourages authors to include supporting data sets if applicable in an appendix at the end of the paper. Do not submit data as an additional file. Review Process The International Journal of Interior Design is based on a model of instant distribution, editorial transparency, and continuous peer-review. A submitted paper undergoes a two-stage referee process. The purpose is to minimize time delays between submission and publication, and to promote ongoing conversation and paper refinements between authors and reviewers. In stage 1, the paper is either accepted or rejected by the managing editorial team, usually within a week. If the article is accepted, it is published immediately in the journal. Associate editors must apply to the role, and provide a detailed curriculum vitae to indicate their qualifications in reviewing the paper. Authors are encouraged to upload revised manuscripts based on the reviews of the associate editors. Endorsements Both papers and reviews can be endorsed for their scholarly merit, rigor, and relevance to the field. Endorsements are displayed on author and editor profile pages, to provide a real-time rating system of their scholarly contributions to the journal. We do not offer print subscriptions at this time. Becoming an Associate Editor Qualified scholars are encouraged to become an associate editor of the International Journal of Interior Design, and help review submissions. You must have a background in the field to qualify. Full professors, associate and emeritus professors, researchers, graduate students, professionals, and others are welcome to apply, but the decision will be based upon the curriculum vitae in your profile. Decisions are made by the managing editors. Application Process You must apply to become an associate editor.
