Guidelines Guidelines for Contributors 1. Manuscripts should be max. Upon acceptance the author will be requested to submit the final version of the manuscript, saved in a standard word processing format and in ASCII. Papers should be reasonably divided into sections and, if necessary, sub-sections. Contributions should be in English. Spelling should be either British or American English consistently throughout. If not written by a native speaker of English it is advisable to have the paper checked by a native speaker. They should be numbered consecutively, with appropriate captions. Reference to any Figures or Plates should be made in the main text and their desired position should be indicated. Tables should be numbered consecutively and provided with appropriate captions. They should be referred to in the main text and their desired position should be indicated. Quotations should be given in double quotation marks. Quotations longer than 4 lines should be indented with a blank line above and below the quoted text. Examples should be numbered with Arabic numerals in parentheses and set apart from the main body of the text with a blank line above and below. Examples from languages other than Modern English should appear in italics with a translation in single quotes immediately below each such example. If required, a word-by-word gloss without quotes may be provided between the example phrase and the translation. Notes should be kept to an absolute minimum. Note indicators in the text should appear at the end of sentences or phrases, and follow the respective punctuation marks. Notes should preferably be submitted in the form of end notes; these will however be turned into footnotes in the publication version. References It is essential that the references are formatted to the specifications given in these guidelines, as these cannot be formatted automatically. References in the text: These should be as precise as possible, giving page references where necessary; for example Clahsen , or: All references in the text should appear in the references section. References should be listed first alphabetically and then chronologically. The section should include all and only! A note on capitalization in titles. For titles in English, CMS uses headline-style capitalization. In titles and subtitles, capitalize the first and last words, and all other major words nouns, pronouns, verbs, adjectives, adverbs, some conjunctions. Do not capitalize articles; prepositions unless used adverbially or adjectivally, or as part of a Latin expression used adverbially or adjectivally ; the conjunctions and, but, for, or, nor; to as part of an infinitive; as in any grammatical function; parts of proper names that would be lower case in normal text; the second part of a species name. For more details and examples, consult the Chicago Manual of Style. For any other languages, and English translations of titles given in square brackets, CMS uses sentence-style capitalization: Information Processing in Animals: Variation in Associative Representation during Instrumental Learning.
