So help me God. Under FERS, senators contribute 1. Far more senators have been nominees for the presidency than representatives. Furthermore, three senators Warren Harding , John F. Kennedy , and Barack Obama have been elected president while serving in the Senate, while only one Representative James Garfield has been elected president while serving in the House, though Garfield was also a Senator-designate at the time of his election to the Presidency, having been chosen by the Ohio Legislature to fill a Senate vacancy. Seniority in the United States Senate According to the convention of Senate seniority, the senator with the longer tenure in each state is known as the "senior senator"; the other is the "junior senator". This convention does not have official significance, though seniority generally is a factor in the selection of physical offices. The most-junior "senior senator" is Bill Cassidy of Louisiana , who was sworn in January 3, , and is currently 79th in seniority, ahead of senator John Neely Kennedy who was sworn in January 3, , and is currently 95th in seniority. With the th Congress , Jon Kyl of Arizona , who was sworn in on September 4, , will become the most-junior "senior senator", ahead of senator-elect Kyrsten Sinema , who will be sworn in January 3, Expulsion and other disciplinary actions[edit] The Senate may expel a senator by a two-thirds vote. William Blount , for treason, in , and fourteen in and for supporting the Confederate secession. The Senate has also censured and condemned senators; censure requires only a simple majority and does not remove a senator from office. Some senators have opted to withdraw from their re-election races rather than face certain censure or expulsion, such as Robert Torricelli in The next-largest party is known as the minority party. The president pro tempore, committee chairs, and some other officials are generally from the majority party; they have counterparts for instance, the "ranking members" of committees in the minority party. Independents and members of third parties so long as they do not caucus with or support either of the larger parties are not considered in determining which is the majority party. Seating[edit] A typical Senate desk At one end of the chamber of the Senate is a dais from which the presiding officer presides. The lower tier of the dais is used by clerks and other officials. One hundred desks are arranged in the chamber in a semicircular pattern and are divided by a wide central aisle. Each senator chooses a desk based on seniority within the party. By custom, the leader of each party sits in the front row along the center aisle. Forty-eight of the desks date back to , when the Senate chamber was reconstructed after the original contents were destroyed in the Burning of Washington. Further desks of similar design were added as new states entered the Union. Many non-member officers are also hired to run various day-to-day functions of the Senate. He or she may vote in the Senate ex officio , for he or she is not an elected member of the Senate in the case of a tie, but is not required to. Since the s, Vice Presidents have presided over few Senate debates. Instead, they have usually presided only on ceremonial occasions, such as swearing in new senators, joint sessions, or at times to announce the result of significant legislation or nomination, or when a tie vote on an important issue is anticipated. Frequently, freshmen senators newly elected members are asked to preside so that they may become accustomed to the rules and procedures of the body. The powers of the presiding officer of the Senate are far less extensive than those of the Speaker of the House. The presiding officer calls on senators to speak by the rules of the Senate, the first senator who rises is recognized ; ruling on points of order objections by senators that a rule has been breached, subject to appeal to the whole chamber ; and announcing the results of votes. Party leaders[edit] Each party elects Senate party leaders. Floor leaders act as the party chief spokesmen. The Senate Majority Leader is responsible for controlling the agenda of the chamber by scheduling debates and votes.
