Knitting Newborn Hats for Hospitals March 3, by Beverly I love to find quick little knitting projects that I can do in an evening. My starting point for this pattern, believe it or not, was the baby hats my own two kids came home with from the hospital almost 30 years ago. I guess being a knitter made me extra sentimental about them. Although many hats are knit in the round on circular needles, for these very tiny hats I decided to create a simple straight needle pattern with a seam, again, following how my little vintage knit hats had been made. When I knit these to give to my local hospital, I try to follow their request to knit the hats in either blues or pinks to make it more specifically for a little boy or a little girl. I used to be able to find a fun yarn at Hobby Lobby called Lil Britches the blue hat pictured below but now I can no longer find that yarn. Most of the time I like to add some stripes to give these hats a little pizzazz and then I top them off with a pom pom using the pom pom maker I bought at the craft store. By my calculations it only takes about 35 yards of yarn to make one of these hats so you can get lots of hats from a skein of yarn! End with a purl row. Begin Decrease for top of hat: Knit 2 together across row 24 stitches Next Row: Purl across Next Row: Knit 2 together across row 12 stitches Next Row: Knit 2 together across row 6 stitches Cut yarn, leaving a long tail for sewing up seam. Pull stitches tight to gather. Sew seam down side of hat with remaining yarn. Make pom pom and fasten to top of hat. Ideas For Striped Baby Hats Here are a few ways you can add stripes to the knit newborn baby hat pattern. Therefore all these stripe patterns are for 18 rows but they are simple patterns that you could easily adjust as needed. I always do the ribbing in the main color, and then proceed on to do the stripes, Note:

When i did the rows and figure with the edge trimmings it does not measure to 3. It falls short by 11 inches. Renee 4 months ago I love this pattern, I have finished doing the rows, and it only measures 26 inches. I would appreciate it if you could help. Thanks vivian is the center of the 22 inch loom to be more narrow then the ends? Gina 14 months ago There are videos online using a loom to create a shell stitch border then attaching it to blanket. I was thinking a crochet cast on and cast off was mentioned. As for MS loom you can find many videos on blankets. Any help work be appreciated, thank-you Jaggator 2 years ago Can you show me how to cast off on the fashion stitch. This one has gone much quicker. Thank you so much for your ez to follow instructions and especially including the videos. I have never crocheted until making these blankets and now I have confidence to do more. Sarah Lesley 2 years ago I really want to make this for my great niece. So my question is I have and use the Martha Stewart loom and I have the tiny pegs in bc the yarn is very thin even when doubled. I have pegs in it. Do you think the blanket will turn out pretty? Thank you cathleen-bosworth-1 4 years ago paula-benson I just started this blanket with a brand new long loom and it is so squeezed together its upsetting me. Since the pattern is so easy and pretty. Anyone have an idea what to do when it does this? Thank you for the great pattern! I assume I crochet the shells right to the blanket but not sure how to start that also? Hope my question makes sense. Sorry that I cannot give you a more specific answer about the yarn. My grandmother passed away a year ago and this is part of the yarn stash she left me. There was no label on it.

Nicole and Bianca CuteDIYprojects Blogger For the knitting newbie, there is something magical about how those needles go flying through the string and somehow make amazing patterns which in turn create whole garments. Knitting is not as hard as it looks and with a bit of practice, you could get just as good. How to Begin That said, there is still some skill required for knitting. There are several basic knitting stitches that you will need to learn. Once you have these down, all you have to do is connect them and keep at it. Of course this could take a while to pick up if you worry about the length of the project. Once you have picked up the pace a bit and gotten your basic stitches down, here are 45 new patterns and designs you could try: Double Crochet Infinity Scarf What a beautifully warm and chunky pattern that combines the idea of infinity scarves with double crochet stitching! That adorable vintage button going for the strap of the boot complements the cozy piece of accessory just perfect. Knitted Baby Booties One absolutely must make these knitted baby booties adorned with a lovely ribbon for their little ladies. You will need some double-pointed needles, and your choice of yarn. Crochet Cuffed Baby Booties Supercute is the word for these crochet cuffed baby booties embellished with buttons or crochet flowers on the sides. Playing a little with the traditional baby boot crochet patterns, this inspiration by Repeat Crafter Me, worked out in a two-toned color combination of cozy yarn is a surprisingly easy to put together affair. Knitted Baby Uggs The fact that makes these vibrant-looking, modern knitted baby uggs quick and effortless to make is that they are knit in one single piece. While you can always go for your choice of yarn, wither cotton or wool would work wonders for getting the project done. Epipa Baby Booties Designed specially for newborn babies ranging from 3 to 6 months, these baby booties have been crafted with merino wool to keep those tootsies a little extra warm and cozied up during the chilly winters. An added touch of style comes from the cabled pattern in the front that brings out great texture to the overall design. Easy Knit Baby Booties Screaming out minimalism out loud, these little easy knit baby booties begin with three square of knitting that have been innovatively assembled into fold-over boots when joined together. A set of bamboo knitting needles in size US 8, some machine washable yarn that matches the needle size, and a large-eyed tapestry needle are all you need. Bitty Baby Booties Yet another knitting pattern that takes you through making crossover baby booties, this one integrates cute little buttons to the front to make the boots hold the young feet a lot better, while also making them look even more adorable. While one of the buttons here is shaped like a star, the other looks like the moon, adding a fairytale element to the pair. A sheet of knitted yarn is wrapped around the glass, having little button holes go on one end, while stylish buttons go for the other. Wear it as a scarf and simply wrap it around the shoulders when you want to pamper them with some warmth. Knit Baby Booties Fitting the tiny feet of a newborn infant up to a six month old child, these baby booties give all the credit for the customizing abilities to that thin and lacy ribbon on the top. All you need to do is pull the ribbons to alter the size of the boot according to the feet and the simple-knit accessory is going to hit all the right notes. Striped Cowl Make the special man in your life feel a little special, and of course, cozier during the winters with a homemade cowl that you crafted exclusively for him. You are going to need size 13 circular needles to get the pattern going, as well as a darning needle to work out the ends of this super comfy striped cowl. Seed Stitch Cowl Ditch the whole idea of cloth seams with this single piece of coziness, a seed stitch cowl that lets you knit all around. Apt and appropriate for beginners, seed stitch is an utterly simple yet amazing stitching technique that builds beautiful, easy-to-knit stitches with a nubby texture. Laying flat and being fully reversible, this one is a must-have. Built using the chain stitching knitting pattern, the double-toned bottle cover comes with different colors for the cover and the chain. Baby Bib The silky soft texture and the smooth pattern for this baby bib is a result of loads of stockinette stitches put together, forming an efficient baby accessory. Berry Baby Hat We bet your newborn will fall in love with a fruitylicious home-stitched hat! The subtle yet clever blending of colors that differentiates the leaves from the berry for this berry-inspired baby hat makes it even more adorable. The knitting pattern for the hat shared by Random Stitches comes with a lovely top-knot. Baby Blanket Opening a whole world of possibilities when it comes to the colors you go for the yarn, this super easy baby blanket is all about combining the different strips of knitted yarn with garter stitches throughout. Made out of superfine superwash merino wool, the blanket calls for circular needles, a tapestry needle and of course, colored yarn. Baby Monster Who said that knitting stuff has to be limited to clothing and winter accessories only? These baby monsters quite rightly explain what a winsome creation can be worked out with colored yarn. Pieces of white felt and some buttons go for the googly eyes of these little toys that have crochet stitching in a little tube and some stuffing as their foundation. DIY Fingerless Gloves Totally taking the cake with a bright red piece of yarn integrated into the gloves to end up in a heart-shaped pattern, DIY fingerless mittens like these are a super quick and easy to make deal, following the the slip knot stitches. Keep your fingers free, while keeping the palms and wrists toasty while you write, drive, browse through your phone or eat! Finger-Knit Wreath Front door decorations are quite a significant part of the holiday decor, and a warm woolen wreath like this one can bring the perfect welcoming charm to your home for the winters. The best thing here is that you pull off the whole piece with the finger-knitting technique, adding the final touches with a ribbon bow at the bottom. Twisted Coffee Cozy Those beautiful twists and turns brought to the coffee cozy by stitching the yarn with a dose of creativity makes it stand out with sheer grace. While this inspiration keeps things monochromatic, you can always add more colors to the twisted pattern and make your coffee cup work as an even better focal point when donning the handmade cozy.
