In a major breakthrough, Bhopal Police on Friday busted a gang of dreaded highway criminals for whom murder came as naturally as a snap of the fingers. The gang has confessed to killing 15 truck drivers in the past year and was led by a man whose uncle had boasted of murdering truckers. A national-level athlete in Taekwondo and hockey as well, she took a team of four constables on a hour chase that ended with the arrest of one of the alleged murderers at gunpoint deep in the jungles of Sultanpur in Uttar Pradesh. The kingpin, year-old Adesh Khamra, is said to be the nephew of the dreaded Ashok Khamra, who was arrested by police around 10 years back and confessed to killing more than truck drivers in similar fashion. He escaped from police custody and is yet to be traced. IG Bhopal Jaideep Prasad said that the gang was busted during the investigation of the blind murder of a year-old truck driver, whose body was found in a nullah in Jhagariya Pathar of Bilkhiria on August. He was strangled and stripped of every stitch of clothing that could identify him. He was delivering 11 tonnes of iron rods when he went missing. The next day, the truck was found abandoned without the iron rods at Ayodhya Nagar bypass. Police found out that he was Makhah Singh, 30, a native of Amcha Kalan village in Raisen who worked with a Mandideep firm. Police were alarmed because it was the third such murder in 20 days. On July 26, the bodies of two brothers, who worked as driver and helper on a trailer truck, had been found under a culvert in Patharia, Vidisha district. They had come to Bhopal on July 25 to unload goods at Govindpura Industrial area and were returning to Sehore when the gang struck. Investigators zeroed in on a building material supplier, who admitted to buying the iron rods through a broker. Police rounded up three suspects. While police were investigating this case, another truck laden with 25 tonnes of sugar worth Rs 28 lakh went missing when it was heading to Bhopal from Pune. Misrod police registered a case against the driver and helper on September 2 and launched a search. The truck owner, who had filed the complaint, said he received the last call from the driver from Indore and the last location of the truck was in Benaras where it crossed a toll booth. The trio have already confessed to killing 14 truckers in the past year. Police expect more revelations as the gang has admitted to being active since. Prasad said the gang operated in various stages the first was to befriend the truck driver and lure him by offering to buy the consignment. Then, the gang members would call Khamra, who posed as the buyer. The gang dumped the bodies in rivers or hilly areas. The suspects have admitted to crimes in Maharashtra, Uttar Pradesh, Jharkhand, Bihar and many other states and the trucks were disposed of in Jharkhand, Bihar and even Nagaland.

The serial killer is a perfectionist, and cops involved in the probe were quite unsettled when they interrogated him. Khamra remembers what his victims wore, their last meals, how and where their bodies were dumped.

While the first one was found in Amravati, corpses soon started popping up everywhere. The victims were truckers and their apprentices. That was the only common thread to them all. Adesh was probably influenced by dreaded killer Ashok Khamra, who had admitted to around murders upon his arrest in . The wily criminal even drugged his police escort and managed to escape, never to be seen again. The notorious serial killer, would prey on truck victims near Bhopal. Part of a gang, Khamra and his associates would trick truckers with their warmth and friendliness. His men would rob the truck, while Khamra would garrotte them, or poison them. Then, Khamra would strip them of every bit of clothing that could help lawmakers identify the bodies, and dump them under culverts or on hilly roads. City SP Bittu Sharma, a taekwondo black belt and an Asian Games bronze medallist in judo, managed to take Khamra down at gunpoint, late at night. Sharma and SP Lodha Rahul Kumar were heading the investigations into the murders and managed to nab him. Even after nabbing him, they were not aware of the extent of his crimes. It was only after being apprehended, that Khamra spilt the beans on his misdeeds, shocking even the cops in the process. He admitted to 33 murders on Tuesday, which put him on a similar footing as Raman Raghav charged with 42 murders , Surendra Koli and the Kolkata Stoneman.
