Although Goodman never revealed her year of birth, swearing even her father to silence, it emerged posthumously that she was born in According to data collector Frank C. She attended and graduated from Parkersburg High School in aged 18 years. Each show consisted of Linda reading letters written between soldiers and their loved ones. Each letter was punctuated with a popular song of the day. While working in radio, she met her second husband, Sam O. Goodman, and took his last name. She began her career writing for newspapers in the eastern and southeastern United States. She also wrote speeches for black American civil rights leader Whitney Young , who served for several years as president of the National Urban League. Other books by Linda Goodman include: It is also a thinly veiled autobiography , which explores two of her significant romantic relationships: The book surveys her ideas on reincarnation , karma , love , and miracles. Personal life[edit] Goodman was mother to four children: She also had at least one other child, a daughter who died in infancy. Linda Goodman spent much money and many years trying to find Sally, long after police closed the case as a suicide or accidental suicide. Goodman never accepted the official police report and continued to search for Sally for the rest of her own life. Linda made Cripple Creek, Colorado , her home during the latter part of her life. She first lived in a small Victorian house on Carr Street "the little crooked house on the crooked little street" and later moved to a newer home on the outskirts of the main town. Both homes still boast her spiritually themed stained-glass windows. The house on Carr Street is now a bed and breakfast. She died in Colorado Springs, Colorado , on October 21, , at the age of 70, from complications of diabetes. A History of Horoscopic Astrology 2nd ed. American Federation of Astr. Then fill up the glasses with treacle and ink, Or anything else that is pleasant to drink. Very few of these people can stand being confined for long in one place. The net will be full of colorful, shimmering types, if you spread it out at cocktail parties or gala balls. You might even hook a couple of mollies, or an exotic species, like Princess Lee Radziwill. Few Pisces people accumulate money by the bushel, unless they marry it or inherit it. Mind you, they have nothing against cash. The typical Neptune heart is free of greed. But to swim upstream is the challenge of Pisces-and the only way he ever finds true peace and happiness. Taking the easy way is a trap for those born under this Sun sign, a glittering bait that entices them, while it hides the dangerous hook -a wasted life. Very little will excite him to violent action or reaction. Of course, the fish is not completely bland. He does have a temper. Neptunians can lash their tails angrily and spill forth a torrent of nervous irritability, but the typical Pisces will normally take the path of least resistance, and the cool waters of Neptune continually wash away his anger. When you meet Pisces people, look first at their feet. The Pisces hands will also be tiny, fragile, and exquisitely formed-or else big ham bones that look as though they belong behind a plow. Pisces eyes are liquid, heavy-lidded, and full of strange lights. Some Piscean eyes are simply beautiful. They seem to sort of flow along, instead of walking-as if they were swimming across the room or down the street. Sometimes they really are. It may be nearby, and the fish is attracted to it. It can be a love of ice water, the habit of a dozen cups of tea or coffee a day, a hankering for soda pop-or a yen for something stronger. Like Scorpios and Cancerians, Pisces people are wise to stay miles away from alcohol. Very few Neptunians can have a social cocktail, then leave it alone. There are some, naturally. But too many Pisceans find enticing relief from trouble in liquor. The fish was born with the desire to see the world through rose-colored spectacles. He knows well enough about the seamy side of humanity, but he prefers to live in his own watery, gentle world, where everyone is beautiful and all actions are lovely. If reality becomes too terrible to face, he often escapes into rosy daydreams with powder puff foundations and not a prayer of coming true. The rejected Pisces is too inclined to face the ugliness of failure by deepening his false hopes, when a determined switch of course or some new, forceful action might shower him with real, instead of imaginary, success. Not every March-born person falls into such a typical Neptune trap, but enough of them do to make it a necessary warning. Where is the angel who will support him while he splashes canvases with glory? The Piscean woman, left alone, with just enough fixed income to keep a roof over her head and a little seaweed in the cupboard, will tend to dream away the hours, tenderly remembering yesterday, hazily hoping for tomorrow, and wasting the bright sunlight of today. The actor, composer, musician-you fill in the i stories. I You may have read that the Pisces symbol of two fish,? Dual desires belong to Gemini. The two fish in reversed directions symbolize the choice given Pisces: Pisces must learn that he is to serve mankind in some way, and eschew worldly possessions. Piscean Einstein, who swam upstream, formulated a whole new world of relative time. Pisceans who swim downstream serve by washing dishes or shoveling snow. Pisces often retreats-either to the sublime heights of a dedicated professional life, or to stimulants, artificial emotions and false excitement. Although Pisceans shrink from competition, the strong pull of Neptune sends many of them, even the shy ones, toward the bright footlights, where they can use their fabulous powers of interpretation to project myriad emotions. In spite of their natural timidity, they often become some of the finest performers in the theater. But only if they fight their distaste for the hard work of grueling rehearsals, and the dullness of the dreary, but necessary years of experience. Sometimes the sharp wounds of the critics leave such a scar on sensitive Pisces souls that a potential Barrymore or Bemhardt retires when fame was just ahead. Memorization is seldom a problem. The Pisces memory is legendary, although with an afflicted Moon or Mercury they can forget their own telephone numbers. In the reflective eye of the fish, the entire scene is elusive and fleeting. Knowing this, Neptunians accept most storms with tranquil equilibrium. Despondency, however, is always threatening to swoop down and bring peculiar dreams or weird nightmares which are often precognitive.

When Pisces has a feeling something will happen, it usually does. Astrologers who speak of an old soul refer to a soul which has gone through many lives, retaining the wisdom of each. While Aries represents birth in the zodiac, Pisces represents death and eternity. His surprising ability to organize and concentrate on detail which pops up now and then, as well as his gentleness, reflects his inner knowledge of the lessons of Virgo. His judgment is as fair and detached as that of Libra, and his love of pleasure is also purely Libran. Pisces people have the crazy sense of fun of Cancer, as well as both the Cancerian sympathy and crabbiness. There may also be a smattering of the Saturnine melancholy. Perhaps more than just a smattering. The fish can be as moody as a Moon child and as happy as a lion. He likes to tease and analyze in Aquarian fashion. A Pisces person can zip around with Gemini quickness, talk just as fast and think just as cleverly. He can also be as lazy and peaceful as Taurus. Pisces holds within himself the fondness of debate of all the air signs, the love for nature of all the earth signs and the flaming aspirations of all the fire signs. But he is neither fixed nor cardinal. The fish is mutable always; in this respect he is undiluted. The one and only quality which originates with his own sign is his strange power to stand outside himself and see yesterday, today and tomorrow as one. The Piscean love of music and art, and his highly developed senses and versatility he owes to other signs, but his deep wisdom and compassion belong only to him, culled from the combined knowledge of every human experience. Now that you understand all that, is it any wonder that your Pisces friends are a bit of a puzzle at times, not to mention being outright kooky odd balls on occasion? Pisceans tend to think they can live forever, and they often act as though they believed it fervently. Their troubles can be emotional or financial, but either can be a serious drain on Piscean health, which is rarely robust to begin with. Poor eating habits can bring troubles with liver and intestinal functions and digestive troubles. Accidents to, or some abnormalities of the feet, hands or hips are common, also colds, flu and pneumonia. The lungs are not strong, and weak toes and ankles may result from March births. The fish seem to have fallen arches and metatarsal injuries or superbly strong and supple feet. They have a hidden inner resistance, however, and one of the challenges of Neptune is to discover this latent strength and call on it. Pisceans can literally hypnotize themselves into or out of anything they choose-including fear of cats, mice, heights, subways, elevators and people. Humor is one of their secret weapons. Pisceans grin to cover unshed tears. He can move gracefully from slapstick to brittle, sophisticated jokes. Pisces wears his laughs as a mask, and they disguise him well. Pisces may share compassion for the ill with Virgo, but he takes the extra step to try to understand the hearts of the burdened and the friendless, the failures and the misfits, no matter how weird or how rejected by society. The fish will gently comfort those whom Virgo feels are weak by choice, and therefore undeserving. If you need a dime or a dollar, a large loan, or just a small encouragement that no one else would give, go to Pisces. He judges no man-thief, murderer, addict, pervert, sinner, saint, hypocrite or liar. He senses every vice and virtue, and he knows each pitfall. Many fish, for this reason, don the robes of the priest or monk, and spend their lives in prayer or contemplation. To help is his first instinct. The fish soon learns how vulnerable he is. The world is not yet tuned to the sensitive Piscean wavelength, so to avoid ridicule as well as to avoid being taken for every last dime he owns, he sometimes feigns indifference. The impositions of those who would trample him force the fish to hide his true spirit. But remember that they are pretending. The glorious Piscean imagination, their marvelous elfin humor and the Neptunian sense of beauty can create the most delicate, yet eternally lasting prose and poetry. It would stop spinning. Yet Neptune is a deceptive planet, capable of giving birth to natures that twist and turn in two directions at once, distorting the truth, an influence which often causes Pisces to hide his real emotions. He hates to answer direct question with a yes or a no. He can turn on tears, then turn on sunshine by pressing another invisible switch. Neither is truly real. As is illusion with Pisces, and they find it hard to tell the difference themselves. Typically Pisceans are the gregarious housewives with hearts big enough for the troubles of all the neighbors, and the patient bartenders who listen sympathetically to hundreds of tales of woe each week. Hanging somewhere between the silent waters of the sea below and the vast, star-studded mist above, only barely touching the earth from necessity, Pisces lives his life in lonely understanding of truth too deep to express in words. He must live in cool green water, sometime muddy, always moving.

3: Characteristics of all Sunsigns by Linda Goodman

Linda Goodman has a good understanding of the main foundation of a person's chart: the sun sign. She makes it a point to remind the reader how the other signs in our charts can skew our "token" sun sign personality.

Study the quiet spider in the corner. But they get caught in his cleverly spun web-and the spider wins. But the flighty hare goes in all directions, forgetting the goal-the tortoise wins. Observe the goat, as he scales the mountainside. But the hunters fall behind as the sturdy goat climbs determinedly from crag to crag on his uniquely designed hooves-and the goat wins. Now study a Capricorn. Where will you find him? Just about anywhere he can advance or improve himself. Anywhere he can get ahead and further his secret ambitions. Try a social gathering. Pick a mixed group, preferably in the upper income level. You can also try the middle income level, but the lower you go beneath that, the smaller your chances of finding a Capricorn. You may not even notice him at first as he quietly and calmly watches all the flashy, pushy, charming, aggressive and brilliant personalities around him. Everyone in the group will seem to have superior equipment for the race-any race. Yet, he will win. A couple of years ago, I visited the bookstore of a New York astrologer. As I carelessly scattered my gems of wisdom, gave him unsolicited advice about what books he should stock, and argued astrological theory with him, I learned he was a Capricorn and he learned I was an Aries. Smugly, I guessed his correct ascendant, talked faster, moved faster and seemed to dominate the scene. Before I left, he gave me a charming, gentle smile, and in a fascinating Hungarian accent, he said a funny thing. He said, "Capricorn will always triumph over Aries. The goat will win over the ram. Outside the bookstore, I laughed to myself. As an Aries, I hate to take direction. No Aries writer can stand to have anyone edit his work. Recently, it was suggested that a Capricorn woman go over some material I had written. I would only pretend to go along. She made her suggestions quietly, almost timidly, and against my will I saw only too clearly how intelligent they were. After I had grudgingly followed her instructions to the letter, the improvement in the material was painfully obvious. You might as well do the same thing. Pity the high pressure salesman who sizes up his Capricorn pigeon and thinks, "This guy is a pushover. I can sell him the Brooklyn Bridge. Capricorns can be stocky and muscular, thin and wiry or plump and soft. But no matter how the body is shaped, the goat will give the impression of being rooted to the spot, until he decides to move to another spot. Generally, Saturn people have straight, lank, dark hair, dark, steady eyes, and swarthy olive or tan complexions. Take Marlene Dietrich, for example. Dresden china complexion, green eyes and corn silk hair. Observe her calm, deliberate actions. Listen to her deep, throaty voice. Note her legendary tough business head and her earthy ambition. None of them completely escape the Saturnine influence of stern discipline and self-denial. Many Capricorns have strong feet and wear sensible shoes. They hammer away persistently, relentlessly, managing to digest insults, pressures, disappointments and duty as calmly as the goat digests rusty cans, broken glass and cardboard. Like him, they have iron stomachs and dangerous horns. While the gay, laughing extroverts scatter their energies hither and yon, Capricorns never deviate an inch to the left or right. They steadily follow the upward path, with inbred faith in the security of the well-traveled road, and contempt for the enticing short cuts they know are full of pitfalls. Capricorns have an enormous admiration for those who have preceded them to the top of the mountain, and who have laid down the laws for the journey. They court success; they respect authority and honor tradition. Lots of energetic, impulsive people label them snobbish and stuffy. Or do they just appear to do so? Capricorn allows others to walk in front of him, but he often gets there first, against all logic. No wonder he seldom stumbles. He keeps his gaze fastened ahead, and his feet firmly planted on the ground. Jealousy, passion, impulse, anger, frivolity, waste, laziness, carelessness-are all obstacles. Let others trip and fall over them. If Capricorn writes a lovely poem, full of imagination and illusion, the theme will be solid and the punctuation will be correct. It will come to the point, and the sentiment will never be allowed to slosh over the edges. Even the more daring ones, and they are the exceptions, will observe at least the outer trappings of social acceptability. Public scenes and raw, naked, uncontrolled passions embarrass them. Then he becomes a stubborn goat who insists on starting at the top of the ladder, where he feels he belongs. But a couple of hard bumps usually suffice to set him on the right path.

In almost Chinese-fashion, the Saturn-ruled youngsters idolize ancestors and elders. Respect for the wisdom of age and experience is ingrained in the Saturnine nature. When they mature and the "honorable ancestors" and the old folks are gone, the wild actions of the modern generation can frighten and bewilder the conservative goats. They go about saying, "Teh, tch! Luckily, however, a fair percentage of them adapt to meet the challenge. Older Capricorns either behave like frustrated dill pickles, or they happily roll hoops and dance the boogaloo. A few of them, caught in the uncomfortable middle, grin with suppressed excitement as they sit on the sidelines and tap their feet in time to the music, but never quite gather the courage to jump on the carousel. The Capricorn has learned to cope with duty and responsibility and to tolerate frustration. You may read that Capricorns marry for money or social position. These people will do strange things for security. Old age is constantly on the Saturnine mind. In childhood, Capricorns are inclined to be weaker, more sickly than other youngsters, but both strength and resistance to disease increase with age. No amount of practical diet, conservative habits and stubborn resistance to illness can overcome the dangers of pessimism. Capricorns who want to avoid sickness should have plenty of outdoor exercise, and develop a more positive, outgoing personality. The fresh air of the country and the fresh breezes of tolerance will work magic with Saturnine health. Almost all goats of both sexes have sensitive skin. There may be nervous rashes, allergies, roughness and chapping, some peculiarity of perspiration, enlarged pores or acne. Stomach disorders from incompatible foods and mental distress are common. Broken arms and legs may occur. The knee caps, joints and bones are vulnerable areas, and psychosomatic paralysis, severe headaches and kidney infections are further fruits of Saturnine melancholy. They will either have beautiful, white, strong-teeth-or constant problems with decay and continual visits to the dentist, one or the other. Generally speaking, if they avoid the lingering illnesses caused by lingering depressions, the Capricorn tenacity for life is remarkable. The goat must seek the sunlight and laugh at the rain to stay healthy. He seems so harmless. What a safe person to trust and confide in-how pleasantly he builds your ego. Who could hurt him or suspect him of ambition? All the while, Capricorn is using your own weaknesses, conceits and jealousies to make himself stronger. Then hell rule unobtrusively in the corner, modestly pulling the strings of authority. The goat submerges his ego to gain what his ego truly desires-the position of the real leader. With kindly, but stern, cautious wisdom he guards the past from neglect and protects the present from confusion, so you can build tomorrow safely. He gives permission for the parade, and plans its route from behind the scenes. The discipline and formality of jet black and navy blue-the solid practicality of brown-the deep, honest dreams of dark green-these are the quiet colors of his enduring rainbow. Walk slowly through his silent forest, carpeted in soft moss and climbing ivy-and seek the eight hidden treasures of Saturn. Rich, red rubies lie buried beneath the Capricorn, weeping willow. Stay- and learn the eternal beauty of the pure, smooth onyx. Capricorn lead is solid, and Capricorn coal builds lasting fires. Why, his time is worth a thousand pounds a minute! Better say nothing at all. Language is worth a thousand pounds a word!

4: Linda Goodman Horoscope by Date of Birth | Horoscope of Linda Goodman Astrologer, Poet

Dear all viewers of my blog. I really want to share a simple story. On I found a word file from some source (I just can't remember from whom), where these golden research done by Maam Linda Goodman I found.

The placement of the moon in your astrological chart, as well as where the planets fall in other signs and houses also contributes an influence on your ultimate personality. For example, you might technically be a Sagittarian, but if your moon lies in Capricorn, you might actually be more grounded and organized than the classic Sag. To sum it up, Goodman may have spoken in generalities, but she wanted people to leave room for personal interpretation in her horoscopes. The Twelve Mysteries of Love In her book, Goodman expands on her belief that all souls are on a journey of enlightenment and that they have lessons to learn about love as they pass through each of twelve zodiac signs. She referred to these as initiations. Here are the essential points learned from the first six sun signs: Aries is the newborn of the zodiac that teaches love is innocence and trust. Taurus is the baby that teaches love is filled with patience and forgiveness. Gemini teaches that love is about awareness and feeling. Cancer is the adolescent that teaches love requires devotion and freedom. Leo is the teenager that teaches love can be filled with ecstasy, but it also requires humility. Virgo teaches that pure love can bring fulfillment. Love wisdom gathered from the next six sun signs focus on various concepts. Libra deals with the issue of marriage, and how the beauty found in love can lead to harmony. Scorpio offers a lesson on sex, and how love is expressed through both passion and surrender. Sagittarius deals with knowledge and the importance of honesty and loyalty in love. Capricorn is all about the experience of love and how it is wise and unselfish. Aquarius is about idealism and teaches the key to "oneness" is tolerance. Pisces deals with submission and teaches that love requires compassion to become all-encompassing. When combined, the twelve mysteries lead to the greater understanding that love has an eternal nature. The Final Analysis It seems the one message Goodman wanted people to take with them from her book was to realize the enormous human potential for love. Birth charts predispose people in just such a way. However, Goodman wanted people to know that it is possible to carry on a loving relationship between people of any sign, and not to pass on the chance for love just because two sun signs are less than compatible on paper. Once you understand how each needs to be loved, you can better understand how to deliver that love. Linda Goodman Love Signs can help you learn how to do just that. Was this page useful?

Sun Signs was Linda Goodman's first major work, and for many it became an introduction to the zodiac. Goodman began by defining how sun signs are assigned to people at their moment of birth according to which traditional astrological sign the sun was occupying at that exact moment in time.

Most likely it will be on a stage or in front of a circle of adoring friends and relatives. There will always be an audience. There you are, in a nutshell. The secret of snaring the lion is that simple. Totally different from the reluctant Virgo and Aquarian males, your Leo pal will happily succumb to the throes of delicious romance, if you play your cards right, adore him, flatter him, and respect him. Is he a flamboyant August male? Wear dark glasses and submit to his brilliant sunlight. Is he one of the gentle, quiet Leos? Stroke him the wrong way and sparks will fly. The lion will be a chivalrous and gallant suitor, tenderly protective and sentimentally affectionate. One might say Leos possess a kind of instant passion. If love is missing from his life, the fiery lion will simply pine away-dramatically, of course. You might take a lesson from the pampered favorites of royalty. The answer is "Yes," and you can spell it with big electric light bulbs. You belong to him, body, soul, and mind. After all, you could be thinking of another man. Teasing him by occasional flirtations to prove to him you are still desirable is absolute folly. He needs no proof whatsoever. All is not roses and honey in a love affair with a lion, and that includes the quiet pussycats along with the flashy torn cats. Every woman in love with a Leo should get a copy of Anna and the King of Siam and study it well. Truly, her story is a must. Sleep with it under your pillow. Whether he roars and rages because his employees refused to obey him, or pouts on the back porch because the neighbors snubbed him the end result is identical. He needs your stability to balance his irrational pride. If he gets the respect he demands, hell repay it by pouring out generosity. You will lead an active social life with your Leo husband, as long as he gets his beauty sleep. But there will be a few nights out with the boys, and there may also be some juggling of finances, due to sudden gambling urges, or a chance investment he thought would pay off. A Leo man I know once bought ten shares in an oil well. Although he was only one very minor stockholder among thousands, about twice a month, he would visit the site of the drilling and look important. They thought he was a member of the Board of Directors. Take it all in stride-there are compensations. How can he scold you for buying that expensive mink hat after he lost the price of a mink coat in a little game with the fellows or after he spent your savings at an auction on two box cars of folded cardboard cartons in assorted sizes, when he took a notion to go into the mail order business? Almost all Leos have a marvelous knack for fixing things. There seems to be something mechanical about this Sun sign. Lots of Leo men can take engines apart and put them back together again, hardly soiling their hands in the process. He may have his own workshop in the basement. It keeps him contented-and home at night. He knows what he wants, and he usually gets it. Never overly sensitive to the feelings of others, in spite of their basic kindness, most Leo men are so wrapped up in themselves that they can be brutally frank and untactful. But his dazzling smile soon clears the air. He will enjoy sports, but as he grows older, he will prefer to watch them from the comfort of his padded throne, while you wait on him. Sometimes he makes a wrong choice, and the shrinking violet who sat adoringly at his feet makes a surprise move to grab the sceptre away from him. When that happens, the dethroned Leo is a miserable husband who. Many of them have no children, are separated from them, or raise an only child. How can you size up the puzzling male Leo? Is he kindhearted or dangerous, generous or cruelly selfish? Is he really a sociable fellow who loves people? Does he gain his reputation for superiority under false pretenses, or does he, like the real lion, deserve to be called King? Obviously, by his own standards at least, he does deserve to be the Lord and Master in his love life and his career. Whether the Leo man is truly a king, or just a pretender to the throne, we may never know. But there are several things you do know about your own lion. He has an enormous need to command and to be loved by those he rules. Remember that Leo secretly fears he may fail and be ridiculed. Yet, when his nobility has been aroused by a great cause, he knows no fear. Besides, he can fix those bathroom faucets. A scrapbook of pictures and mementos from all her old boyfriends. You will be a few leaps ahead if your name is St. Hoyme or Mountbatten, Cabot or Lodge. Anything that sounds royal or noble or important. Perhaps the other girls sense she was born to rule and dictate styles, customs and manners. Nature seems to have shown some prejudice when she fashioned the lioness with enough vivacity, cleverness, grace, beauty, and just plain sex appeal for at least three women, with some left over. Consider yourself lucky if she meets you halfway, respects you, is willing to be your partner and allows you to possess her emotionally. Seriously, you could do a lot worse. A lioness is a lot of woman. It pays to remember that the Leo female can act up a storm, and pretend to be as sweet and harmless as a bowl of jelly beans. A Leo female can appear to be as smooth and calm as a cool and placid lake. Then you should practice different ways of complimenting her. Please be original and creative. In her mind, she is definitely not the weaker sex. The stage and footlights will never fail to magnetize and transfigure her. Better buy orchestra seats. The poorest Leo woman in the world will manage to accumulate enough pennies to buy draperies for the windows, rings for her fingers and bells for her toes. Now and then she may go slumming, out of curiosity, but only as a spectator, aloof from the crowd. No one in his right mind could call that common. A little flattery will get you everywhere with your Leo lady. Confinement inside four walls and under one roof can soon rob her of her sparkle. Let her have her career. The Leo girl usually makes a jewel of a wife. Not that she skips the beauty treatments. The typical lioness will spend hours in front of the mirror and a fortune on cosmetics, but she wants you to see the results, not the strategy. Many a husband of a Leo woman finds himself pleading, "Honey, do you have to spend so much money at the beauty parlor? A shampoo and set makes them feel pampered, and feeling pampered does something for every Leo. Unless she has a Cancer, Virgo or Capricorn ascendant, you may have to watch her with charge accounts. Leos easily slip overboard when it comes to spending for fine feathers, furnishings for the home or gifts for friends. Her wardrobe can be quite extensive. She can look luscious in evening gowns, dripping with sequins and rhinestones, or low-cut, dressy outfits. She likes tailored cuts and rich materials, but not necessarily frills and ruffles. Her taste is usually excellent, if a bit expensive. Anyone who happens to be standing in her bright sunlight feels the warmth. Leos seldom cast a shadow. As a mother, she'll pour love on her children generously and lavish affection on them. Many Leo mothers have a peculiar way of spoiling the child without sparing the rod, quite a contradiction when you think about it. She may romp and play with her cubs, have long, chummy talks with them, but she'll also teach them to snap to attention like soldiers, polish their manners, and be obedient to their elders. The career-minded Leos usually manage to balance motherhood and a job with perfect aplomb. She can roar with laughter like a healthy animal, but when the moment is gone, the satin voice and regal bearing return. Heads always turn when the lioness smoothly glides by. But if you want to be the proud possessor of all those gorgeous brilliantly-colored feathers, you have to make a few concessions. After all, owning a peacock is hardly the same thing as owning a cuckoo bird or a cooing pigeon. Your lioness could be anything from an actress to a surgeon.
