

1: Literary Clubs of Indiana: Martha Nichols McKay: www.enganchecubano.com: Books

Note: Citations are based on reference standards. However, formatting rules can vary widely between applications and fields of interest or study. The specific requirements or preferences of your reviewing publisher, classroom teacher, institution or organization should be applied.

Explore new interests and expand their knowledge. Share their own original creations with peers. Participate in fun contests and competitions. Clubs The following is just a small sampling of the online school clubs and activities offered to students. Art Club is designed to spark student creativity by exploring two-dimensional and three-dimensional art, photography, and graphic design through techniques and styles associated with each medium. Students have the opportunity to create original designs and artwork, share their artwork with peers, learn about appropriate critique guidelines, and provide feedback to other club members. Grades 6–12 Arts and Crafts Club Crafting Corner encourages students to create crafts using materials found at home and in nature. Through the topics of culture, science, and math, students work on projects such as a splat paint emoji, wooden pallet drink coasters, and straw tulips. Students can also communicate on the Message Boards to give critiques of student writing, create collaborative stories, and discuss favorite book genres. Students research the academic, technical, and experiential requirements for those careers, so they can prepare for life after school. The club provides many resources to help students become career ready. Grades 6–12 College Planning Club is the perfect extracurricular online activity for high school students considering college. Students also develop a portfolio that focuses on elements sought by college admissions committees. Grades 9–12 Gaming and Technology allows students who have an affinity for technology and gaming to explore and discuss gaming styles and genres, learn about careers in the gaming and technology industry, and share their original work in LiveLesson sessions. Individual and collaborative projects may include creating elements of video games and investigating internet safety and cyberthreats. Grades 6–12 Science Sleuths: Weird Science students work with the scientific method by planning experiments and observing the world. Particular emphasis is placed on the environment with lessons and discussions focused on keeping the planet clean and various global issues such as alternative energy, recycling, and allocating limited resources. Students conduct experiments at home and share the processes and results with their peers. They also predict outcomes and alter variables of experiments conducted in LiveLesson sessions. Grades K–5 Pop Up Events Pop Up events are an ever-changing assortment of teacher-led onetime or short-term online get-togethers that enable students to try new things! Students attend these extracurricular virtual activities via the same LiveLesson technology they use to attend real-time meetings with their regular teachers. Topics include, but are not limited to:

2: Online School Clubs and Activities | Indiana Connections Career Academy

EMBED (for www.enganchecubano.com hosted blogs and www.enganchecubano.com item tags).

Albert Baker, who, early in , had just returned from a visit to Crawfordsville, Indiana. On her return she mentioned to her mother-in-law, Mrs. Conrad Baker, Anna Campbell Mrs. Albert Baker, Kate Noble Mrs. Allen, Annie Holton Mrs. Dye, Ida Linn Mrs. Henderson, and Miss Laura Ream. A ninth potential member had been invited, but because of illness, Miss Alice Finch was unable to attend. However, her name was later included in the list of founders. Fairbanks, whose husband would later be elected vice-president of the United States, lived in a large, imposing brick residence at Park Avenue and Seventh Street now Sixteenth Street. Fairbanks was elected President and Mrs. After much discussion the following by-law was adopted. That the search after knowledge should be unlimited, the field universal. That the program of each meeting should consist of a sketch of the author chosen, written by one of the members, followed by the reading of selections by the members and general conversation. That the meetings be held twice each month on Monday afternoon at the home of a member. Longfellow was chosen for the next meeting, Mrs. Fairbanks writing the sketch. Miss Laura Ream was appointed to prepare a constitution to be presented at the next meeting. The naming of the Circle was discussed. The meeting was then adjourned to meet at the home of Mrs. Baker on Monday, March 9 at three P. Handwritten, of course, with no paragraph indentations, and not too much punctuation. At the second meeting, in addition to Miss Finch, two new members, Mrs. Woods and Miss Alice Baker, were present. These were first printed on the program for On March 14, , rose was officially made the club color, and the rose the club flower. No copy of the original constitution, written by Miss Laura Ream, has ever been found, but the constitution was subjected to many revisions. Minutes of early meetings show that at almost every meeting someone had a new idea for a change in the constitution. In the fall of , Fortnightly moved to the newly built Propylaeum at 17 E. In a need to economize necessitated a temporary move to the, Parish House of St. At that time the old Propylaeum was razed to provide space for the Indiana World War Memorial, and the Propylaeum purchased its present building at N. Fortnightly moved with it, and continues to meet there today. The first ballot box was purchased in , and each member was taxed ten cents to pay for it. The second box, which may be the one still in use today, was acquired March 14, On that same day a small writing desk was presented to the club by Mrs. It was intended to house the club records and archives, but within a few years the archives had outgrown the storage space. During a recent search of the Propylaeum attic and storage closets it could not be found, and no present member of the club or the Propylaeum staff has any idea of what eventually happened to it. It was considered to have simply vanished. However, a more recent reading of the minutes of November 12, , led to an interesting discovery. It was given in memory of her mother. It was decided that the Finance Committee should decide. The club moved that this should be done. While the original meeting called for the program to consist of a sketch of a specific author, the club apparently strayed from this format fairly rapidly. One of the first club parties was a picnic, in June, , at the farm of Judge and Mrs. It was attended by members and their families. The picnic was such a success that it was repeated the next year. But one Fortnightly founder was a career woman. Miss Laura Ream was one of the first newspaper women in the Midwest. She was a member of the editorial staff of the Indianapolis Sentinel, and Indianapolis correspondent for the Cincinnati Gazette, for which she reported Indiana political news. Later she became known nationally as a writer. Conrad Baker had had a brief career as an army nurse. He wrote her of the need for women to serve as nurses behind the lines, caring for wounded soldiers. She left her baby with relatives and traveled by river boat to Missouri where she volunteered as a nurse. Miss Eliza Browning was a city librarian and was appointed head librarian in Clair Street, then became assistant librarian and served in this capacity until her death in She served as principal for twenty-five years. She was an authority on Indiana history, and the author of a large number of books, short stories and essays. A physician, she was recognized nationally for her efforts and success in the rehabilitation of delinquent girls. One early member, Martha Whitcomb Matthews, had the distinction of being the only woman in Indiana history to be both the daughter of a governor James Whitcomb and the wife of a governor Claude Matthews. She traveled the world, then returned to hold audiences enthralled as she painted verbal pictures of what she had experienced. Her unexcelled memory, vocabulary, and descriptive powers were matched only by her somewhat startling size, which was rumored to approach three hundred pounds. She was responsible for the publication of his first novel Monsieur Beaucaire which she took to New York and presented to the McClure Publishing Company. She was somewhat of an accomplished writer herself, and was the author of several stories which were published in national magazines. In her later years she became somewhat eccentric, particularly in her dress. Jameson was never influenced by current trends in fashion: When she swept into a room, everyone there was aware of the fact that they were in the presence of a presence. As the club moved into the Twentieth Century, the scope of its interests broadened. In the Indiana Union was dissolved and the two organizations merged under the name of the Indiana State Federation of Clubs. The clause in regard to representation being of special interest, a clause debarring women from suffrage, and classing them with idiots and criminals. Quote from the November 22 minutes: The report in the form of a letter addressed to Senator Beveridge, a protest. After a lengthy discussion the motion lost. A vote on the question was taken by the members and guests before the debate. A second vote, after the debate was over, showed that an equal number of persons had been convinced by each side. Unfortunately, the minutes do not record whether the debate caused any change in the voting. Many were somewhat abnormal when judged by earlier standards. Skirt lengths rose to the alarming height of eight inches above the ground; by they had reached the knee. Fortnightly minutes do not record whether these changes were Viewed With Alarm by members, but certainly they were aware of them. Their awareness is reflected in the titles of some of the papers read during the period: However, the club donated fifty dollars to the new Riley Memorial Hospital for children. Eitel, an early Fortnightly member, was the sister of James Whitcomb Riley for whom the hospital was named. March 27, , was the last meeting held in the old Propylaeum. Several meetings were held in temporary quarters, and on October 16, , the club met for the first time in the new Propylaeum at N. In , L S. The store asked for Fortnightly members to volunteer as hostesses, and seven members served in shifts during one day. Quote from the minutes of November 1, Doner made an interesting and amusing report on the meeting of the Federation of Clubs at Terre Haute. It seems that as far as Fortnightly was concerned, the affair was a series of tragedies. Our delegates arrived after the time was past for registration, they discovered that their credential cards had been left at home, and that the election was all over anyway! Club minutes do not show exactly when its association with the State Federation ended, but in January, , it was recommended that the program begin at 2: Minutes of January 22, , report that one-half of the members had paid their dues, but the club was still solvent. It also recommended that the Executive Committee of next year be empowered to grant remission of dues if so requested by any member of the club. The gloom of the Depression was forgotten on March 19, , when Fortnightly celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. Harry Miesse, club president, wore an afternoon dress of old gold, with dark brown accessories. Ovid Butler Jameson had decorated both her hat and her shoes with yellow ribbons. After greetings by the president, the program opened with a series of four brief sketches under the overall heading: Guest speaker was Professor Francis C. William Herschell, well-known feature writer for the Indianapolis News, devoted almost a full page to the event. His story gave a brief history of the club, listed all past presidents, and was complete with several photographs, including those of the old Propylaeum on North Street, the Fairbanks home on Park Avenue where the first meeting was held, Mrs.

3: Catalog Record: Literary clubs of Indiana | Hathi Trust Digital Library

Later, the opening of the West, and Northwest, caused emigrants to look beyond Indiana. The prairies were bleak and wind-swept, but they yielded crops at once without the infinite labor of clearing a farm.

4: Welcome! | The Fortnightly Literary Club of Indianapolis

Search the history of over billion web pages on the Internet.

5: Full text of "Literary clubs of Indiana"

*Literary Clubs of Indiana (Classic Reprint) [Martha Nicholson McKay] on www.enganchecubano.com FREE shipping on qualifying offers. Excerpt from Literary Clubs of Indiana Of all the states, not one was more difficult to make habitable than that ideal home of the Indian.*

6: Online School Clubs and Activities | Indiana Connections Academy

*Literary Clubs of Indiana [Martha Nicholson McKay] on www.enganchecubano.com FREE shipping on qualifying offers. This is a pre historical reproduction that was curated for quality. Quality assurance was conducted on each of these books in an attempt to remove books with imperfections introduced by the digitization process.*

7: Literary Clubs of Indiana

The Fortnightly Literary Club of Indianapolis is a women's club officially founded in Traditionally, its membership has included teachers, librarians, social workers, and businesswomen. According to the club's constitution, the organization's purpose is to review and discuss new books, world problems, current events, and other subjects of cultural value.

8: Our History | The Indianapolis Fortnightly Literary Club

*Go to Public Collections to browse other people's collections. Items from these collections can be copied into your own private collection. Create your own Private Collection by searching or browsing to find items of interest and then adding them to a collection. Use * or? to search for alternate.*

9: Essays of the Indianapolis Literary Club

The Indianapolis Literary Club was organized on Jan. 10, , at the home of John D. Howland, who became the club's first president. The stated purpose of the club is the pursuit of "social, literary and aesthetic culture."

Engineering design and rapid prototyping The terror in the French Revolution Full adder using decoder Lets Go Home, Little Bear Little Book Card The Condemnations of the Reformation Era Seminar on Recent International Developments to Counter Tax Avoidance and Evasion, February 18, 1982 Comanche barrier to south plains settlement Central South Carolina Words from Silence Microelectronic systems 3 checkbook History of reading Life Differentiation and Harmony . Vegetal, Animal, Human (Analecta Husserliana) A history of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers from 1880 to 1915. Just war and the lebanese resistance to israel Theirs But to Do and Die Workers compensation in Canada Teaching practice handbook macmillan Ironic conversation and the communal soul : Goethe on and in language Christensen Brothers V. 3. Killing the god (cont. The golden bough. Advances in multivariate data analysis Reliability improvement with design of experiments International regulations for preventing collisions at sea. OFHEOs progress in implementing a comprehensive oversight program for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac Union-free supervisor The problem of world organization, by M. W. Graham. Cellular bioenergetics: ATP and O2 What is woman abuse? Critical business episodes Glaucon and Adeimantus Simulation modeling and analysis 5 edition Experimental Study of Rewards (Columbia University Teachers College Contribution to Education, No 580) Extreme Cars (The Extreme Wonders Series) Travelers Tales Nepal The new modernizers : naturalizing capitalism in Doi Moi Vietnam Three Little Daughters of the Revolution Wisdom in practice Intergovernmental panel on climate change 2014 report Transfer pricing handbook Bayesian Random Effect and Other Hierarchical Models