"Master of the Grove" is a masterfully crafted thriller suitable for both adults and children. Kelleher does not condescend his youthful audience, and does not hold back from creating a world of eerie suspense -- and mystery right to the final showdown between an amnesic boy and a powerful megalomaniacal sorcerer.

Classic novels always send the message to the reader about the human identity. This is something humans have done from the start and has led to many advances. In Master of the Grove, the main storyline is about the life of a boy: Derin searching for his father. She has tells about his father name is Ardelan and his identity. Master of the Grove addresses issues about humanity because humans are always want to know more about the world that they living in. Victor has created Derin, the character that always to crave for life. Derin had explored the outside world, and learned new things of life. Derin want to explore the new atmosphere surrounding him, and this is how Victor Kelleher describe message about human behavior, people live to exploring new things and learn the good stuffs. Humans never truly understand each other, and will always have a little hate in them. This leads to war, savage, and inequality. He come from the woodlands, he were an orphan, an outcast without family or friends. In the novel, the quality of each character shows on their action and the way that Victor Kelleher describe. By using Krob a bad character , Victor Kelleher shows the readers of what the world was going through, how the world is cruel and unfair with the evil personal. Ardelan have been captive to join the soldier, it is the good ending for Derin. This is the story of Derin quest for truth. It still is today, and is a big part of human behavior and existence. The quotes show that if people always live in revenge, evil, always think for them self, they will get lost their relationship with others, their happy. The mouth a sunken toothless hole; his few remaining tufts of hair like withered clumps of discoloured fungus; and what had once been his eyes mere blackened spaces, lightness caverns in which no trace of sight survived. Beside the evil side of humanity, there still be a good that always against the evil. Inside each one, the goodness always calm the evil down. In Master of the Grove, finally Derin has found his missing father. In our life, the goodness always beat the evil; people that live in goodness also get a good ending. This reflects on human behavior in our life because in real life, if you live for your self and other, you will find your life happy and peaceful. Victor Kelleher has set the young character that always wants to discover, quest for the truth and learn new things. The conflict of Master of the Grove revolves around them. They exist and interact. The plot shows them living their lives. Each character is unique; the reader truly knows each one.
