For the first time, actions are addressed to developed and developing countries alike. The Global Objectives set an ambitious action agenda for the next 15 years to eradicate extreme poverty, combating inequality and injustice and protecting the planet until Countries of the world, including Romania, stood united around a commitment to reduce global poverty and save millions of lives. Eradicate extreme poverty and hunger 2. Achieve universal primary education 3. Promote gender equality and empower women 4. Reduce child mortality 6. Ensure environmental sustainability 8. Develop a global partnership for development The MDGs made an important contribution by raising public awareness, increasing political will and mobilizing resources for the fight against global poverty. The MDGs helped focus the action, led to policy reform by incorporating development objectives and targets into national strategies and creating institutions to implement these plans effectively. For example, extreme poverty at global level was halved, the target of halving the proportion of people who lack access to improved sources of water was met, ninety percent of the children in developing states now have access to primary education and far more girls have access to education as compared to Positive results were however not equally distributed. Since , progress made had been negatively influenced by the financial and economic crisis. The weakest progress was made by countries emerging from conflict and fragile states engaged in stabilization and reconstruction, where the lack of institutional capacity negatively influenced their ability to reach the goals. Sustainable Development Goals should complete the agenda started by the Millennium Development Goals, and leave no one behind. Romania and the Development Goals Romania attaches great importance to the United Nations, an organization with a universal vocation, which is the largest multilateral framework for addressing major global issues, including long-term development objectives. For Romania the Millennium Development Goals represented a complementary tool to mobilize internal action in support of economic and social development. The Agenda goes beyond the Millennium Development Goals, keeping issues on the agenda such as poverty eradication, education and health and addressing new ones such as peaceful and inclusive societies. All countries must ensure that appropriate policies are prepared to implement this Agenda. Their needs, interests and concerns must be addressed by formulating local and national development strategies. Romania is committed to implement the Sustainable Development Goals at national level and will review the National Strategy for Sustainable Development to integrate the Sustainable Development Goals. Social exclusion is identified as a major challenge to implementing the Goals. The Romanian revised Strategy will focus on supporting the inclusion in development policies of persons with disabilities, the youth and women. Eradicating poverty requires decent employment opportunities, and preventing and eradicating social exclusion requires social cohesion policies. The experience gained by Romania in the transition process could be shared with countries interested to benefit from such support.
