I like to debate. Sometimes I forget there are real people on the other side of the discussion, or listening in on the conversation. I remember way back in my university days an acquaintance expressed concern about the nuclear arms race. Sensing a chance for some fun, I immediately argued that the best solution to end the nuclear arms race was a first strike attack on the Russians. But I thought it would be fun to argue it. I only realized I had gone too far when his face went beet red and he started twisting his glasses in his lap. Taking contrarian points of view and seeing what kind of argument I can build. I wrote a paper around that time arguing that Botswana was a major African power. I got an A. Of course the advent of social media has only increased the opportunities. I have only been unfriended by a few people on social media that I am aware of , but in most of the cases it was because my desire for a debate overrode my concern for the other people involved. The same can be said of my writing on Internet Monk. I know of a number of commentators who have stopped contributing because of either direct or off hand comments that I have made. Maybe I was right in my assertions. That is not the point. Whatever the facts may be in an in-person discussion, a Facebook thread, or an Internet Monk interchange, the truth is that there is a real person at the other end. A person with real feelings, a person who may feel more strongly about a particular topic than you do. A person whose experiences may have been different to yours. I was going to write a different post tonight. A earlier hurtful conversation that I fully found out about today, made me realize that my intended topic might have been hurtful to someone I know. I have left it until I can word it while keeping the other person in mind. I have appreciated the Internet Monk site because of the respectful discourse that generally occurs. I did find though in a previous series that encouraging respectful debate did actually result in respectful debate. Perhaps we can all keep this in mind as we continue to dialogue with each other here at Internet Monk. As usual your thoughts and comments are welcome.

Rebirth[edit] when a rescue nearly fails and Batman is forced to use a gun, an aging Bruce Wayne shuts down the Batcave Bruce Wayne: Aw, the no fun boy had an accident. You have to do something! I should warn you, I can be a difficult taskmaster. I accept nothing short of excellence in all who work for me. I think I can handle it. Very good then, Mr. Welcome to my world. Is it wrong to root for the other team? You scratch it - no allowance. Not quite the fast learner, are you? This better be good. He wore a costume. I have a condition. He has an accomplice. I heard him speak with someone over a radio. Then do them both! No wonder I like working for you. Now I suggest you leave. What took you so long? A sudden case of shyness. I hear you wrangled yourself a new errand boy. I never wrangled anyone. You all came to me. Maybe for once you should try to talk someone out of it. Would it have worked for you? Lay off him, Nash. Nelson glares at Terry Nelson Nash: It belongs to Nelson Nash. He goes to Hill High. Do you know anyone who has a grudge against him? The line starts with me and goes around the block Alright then, make me laugh! Sure caused a lot of trouble. Meltdown[edit] Mr. Take a good look, Doctor. I have become what many men have dreamed of: Remember, there may be some momentary discomfort. I am neither afraid nor capable of being comforted by banal words. Batman subdues a would-be assassin of the reborn Victor Fries, the man pleading for vengeance because Mr. Freeze killed his family Terry McGinnis: He lives for revenge. Not the Victor Fries I met. What you met was a ghost. We were only trying to help you Freeze] And behold, I shall be a blight upon the land, and everything I touch shall wither and die! And who are you, sunshine? You only got a tan that time, Batman. Here comes the real burn! Stay where you are. The whole place is going to go! I guess you were right about Freeze all along. Heroes[edit] News Reporter: Been there, done that Magma wrecks a police car Officer 1: Aww, those guys are twips. Please, turn it off! But the whole city will become a hot zone! I believe your words were "dangerously psychotic. We are what you made us. Thousands of people will die! Real heroes, they make a choice. Shriek[edit] Bruce Wayne: It was where my parents and I went the night they were Do you want to forget what happened to your father? The police are after me. I cannot go back to my lab again! You should be feeling fine anyway. And why is that?! Because your costume gives you power. Ever had that before? Or use my name! One that fits your new persona. Not a friendly name, I grant you. But take it from me: Now go forth and do damage. What if Batman gets in my way again? Analyze the metal this thing is made of. Request for spectrographic analysis. Age can do tragic things to a person. But Wayne will be in the best of hands. Who else could take care for Wayne? He has no wife, no children I could do it. Careful, the courts are very strict about slander. You should know something about the psych ward here: I hope your other reason is more convincing. The voice kept calling me "Bruce. What do you call yourself? I suppose you would. Tell that to my subconscious. Yeah, she earns hers the old fashioned way. We got away with the jewels! What difference does it make!?! Ah, the old revenge game. But tell me something, "sire," how will that make us richer? King punches him Melanie Walker: Maybe you should ask for time off. Hey, I put my life on the line all the time.
