Verified Reviewer Original review: The agent was a former classmate of mine so I trusted her. Her sales pitch sounded so good I decided to sign up. So I decided to cancel. I signed up on the 16th cancelled on the 21st. After all this the agent is still calling me to get life insurance. Please be cautious when dealing with this company. Anyone who would legitimately take the time to do their research will find that Primerica is a business like any other legal entity. My experience has been and I have been in the business for quite a number of years is that everyone who joins Primerica and pays attention to instruction will have the success that they are willing to work for. They will learn that at the end of the day, there are only a certain number of things they can control; more importantly, they should learn to control themselves. A person can join Primerica to learn how to get out of debt, so they can save and invest their money and build wealth. To do this, discipline and time are required. Some people get a little salty if they do not receive results instantly or within a time frame they have set for themselves. If they knew that without a doubt, they were guaranteed to receive a paycheck every day for their efforts, they would do what they are told instead of finding every reason not to. Only that person knows why they got involved in the first place. Your upline just sought to find someone who believed their dreams were worth fighting for. Primerica provides a resource that anyone can use if they just learn the fundamentals of the business and follow the process. It is because they work. However, if you decide to add salt in the recipe where it tells you to add sugar; your cake will taste quite different from one that was using sugar. You already have a job, right? And many of you have been earning money for quite some time and have no idea why your finances are out of control to the point you need 2 to 3 jobs to catch up. And this is all the time with some people. When are you going to get disciplined? Primerica can help you with that if you let them.

Success Is a Journey Anything worth achieving in life takes planning and effort. Usually, reaching a new plateau takes modifying how you think about your daily life and, especially, your daily behavior.

I gave Primerica my trust. This is how Primerica responded. In July of , a Primerica rep sat at my kitchen table. It all started when the phone rang one evening: If there were a way for me to save you money by lowering your monthly payments, would you be interested? Looking back, this may not have been true. We were paying our bills on time. Our credit score was very good. We were in no danger of losing our home. But I felt like our debt was eating us alive. We we met our basic needs: Every morning Lisa got up at 4: The rest of the day she stayed home with our 2-year-old, did any sewing that she had from people, and built our Shaklee business. Every night I went to my second job. So if a mortgage company like Primerica were looking for someone to take advantage of with some big promises, we were definitely in a vulnerable position. Primerica and the kitchen table Then one evening, out of the blue, Primerica called. I tracked economic indicators like the GDP, prime rate, energy prices. I understood the amortization tables. I understood equity, compound interest, and the tax benefits of lumping debt into a mortgage as compared to paying credit card companies. I watched the mortgage rates at our bank and its competitors, and I kept track of other economic indicators like GDP, the prime rate, energy prices, and was keenly interested in what the Fed was up to. Did I really want Primerica anywhere near my mortgage? Yet if you know me, you also know I pride myself on keeping an open mind. So we had him over. Basically all he did was introduce himself and Primerica as a branch of Citigroup whose mission it was to help people get out of debt and strengthen their financial situation. Then he drilled us for information. He was pleasant but efficient. And he promised nothing. All he did was ask for information. Since we were uncomfortable and already paying keen attention to our cash flow at the time, we had most everything he wanted at our fingertipsâ€”all the monthly payments and interest rates, time remaining on these debts, other bills, savings, etc. Some of it we had to dig forâ€”like retirement savings and stuff like that. The first meeting might have taken an hour. What he promised to do with all this information was create a free report that outlined our entire financial picture. His manner was professional. There was no pressure or expectation of any kind. I think he had to wait for the report himself. I appreciated that he seemed to understand family finances can be somewhat complex. Every time you do that, it costs you. Even if you go from 18 years to a year term. Now I understand that Rob Larson is a representative of Primerica and not a financial planner. I understand that he was in my house hoping to sell me something. Still, the information in the FNA was interesting. The most interesting thing for me was the analysis of our cash flow. But you may be finding a sizable portion of your income going towards paying off debt. Consequently, you may not have enough to reach your other goals. As a number cruncher, I had fun looking at the charts and tables, the strategy was nothing new. Next, he showed us an option involving our equity, consolidating debts, and refinancing with Primerica. He called it the S. Loan, and it caught my attention for 4 reasons. It involved simple interest, Included a bi-weekly payment plan, Let us keep the same number of years remaining on our current mortgage. In other words, at that time, we had 18 years left on our mortgage. Rob said we could run the numbers and stay with an year term. And, We could do all this and decrease our monthly payments! I was so excited about the potential for the S. The last thing I want to do with my money is trust someone trying to sell me something. I had to do my own research. I did understand how bi-weekly payments accelerate debt elimination. But I got confused when simple interest was involved. Like I said, I had to do my own research. So I scoured the internet, the library, called the Better Business Bureau, talked to our bank, called references, ran dozens of amortization tables, went back and forth with Rob asking him specific questions and making him do a fair bit of research. But he always called me back when he had the answer. And I continued to pour over dozens of scenarios involving our own financial numbers. It took me 6 months to be comfortable enough to pull the trigger. Everything with our mortgage is going according to plan. Interestingly enough, Rob gave us another call late this September. He was wondering if he could come out and run another FNAâ€”just to see how things were going. So we had him out again. Hopefully we can keep it going. This visit we looked at our retirement savings and life insurance policies. He looked at the performance of our many and scattered mutual funds, and instead of trying to convince us to transfer them to Primerica, he said he recommended we leave them alone. They are all performing at a pretty high rate of return and have been for some time. But he still wants to sell us Life Insurance. That was in October. Stay tuned until then for another report.
