Inability to heal from minor injury or crisis. Soul retrieval is a common technique in most cultures that still have strong shamanic healing practices. For these communities soul retrievals are most often performed shortly after the initial loss. Since this practice is rare in our culture, soul loss goes un-addressed, usually for years or decades, if it is ever addressed at all. Integrating soul essence after years of loss can require ongoing attention to fully complete. Any soul retrieval work should be followed by further work tailored to the needs of the client. Power Animal Retrieval Many cultures believe that we are all born with relationships to guardian spirits. In many non-western cultures these guardians are animals and beyond being guardians, they are our compassionate teachers. By developing a relationship to our power animals through shamanic practices, ritual, art and other means we ensure protection and guidance for ourselves throughout our lives. When we were young our communities did not recognize or nurture our relationships with these Power Animals. This lack of care and attention can result in a loss of relationship with these spirits. Symptoms of Power Animal loss are very similar to soul loss. When clients receive a Power Animal Retrieval, they often report a sense of well-being, more energy and more focus. Spirits lost in our world looking for a body to inhabit, can cause confusion, discomfort, illness, and even tragedy. Often depicted in the movies as violent and demonic, possession is seen as rare and intensely traumatic. Some modern shamanic practitioners teach and practice a gentler form of de-possession which emphasizes a sensitive approach to the recognition of possessive spirits. With compassion these spirits can be helped to move on to a more appropriate domain. Divination Before weather reports, people would visit the local Shaman to prepare for making a journey or planting a crop to gather information about what the future held for them. Modern Shamanic Practitioners make use of the same techniques to assist individuals in making a wide range of decisions. Spirits the SP works with exist outside of time, and are able to offer useful information that can assist greatly in making important decisions.

Power Animals and Spirit Guides. A power animal retrieval is a shamanic method used to connect us to helping spirits that show themselves in the form of an animal. The absence of a power animal leaves a person vulnerable. When performing a Power Animal retrieval, I journey on behalf of the client to retrieve a Power Animal who volunteers to accompany and support you. A person can have multiple Power Animals. 3: More Information about Shamanism

Power animal retrieval is a healing where the shaman goes to find a new power animal for you. Power animals do not have to be mammals and can be reptiles, insects or sea creatures. Any living creature can serve as a power animal.

Shamans believe that each of us has a spirit guardian whose job it is to protect and empower us. These guardians may take the form of an animal and help us with power, protection, energy, and vitality. Each animal has great wisdom and brings specific gifts, talents, strengths and purpose in helping an individual. We all have them, whether or not we are consciously aware of them. Children are more aware than adults are, and we see this reflected in their strong and loving attachment to toy animals and pets. Many indigenous people believe that childhood cannot be survived without the guardianship of these spirit allies. They protect us, keep us full of power, health and enthusiasm and prevent negative energies and illnesses from entering our energy field. Sometimes a power animal leaves suddenly for unknown reasons. I can retrieve the power animal in "non-ordinary" reality assisted by my own power animal! Most people have at least one spirit helper in animal form. It is possible to have more. As a rule, these helpers are present whether we are consciously aware of them or not. They provide protection, assistance, wisdom, direction and companionship. These spirits generally take the form of undomesticated animals and like their physical counterparts, they are wont to come and go as they please. When one "leaves" for whatever reason "leaves" the company of a person, another power animal usually appears to take its place. However, if that does not happen, the person may experience a loss of personal power which might manifest as serious illness, emotional malaise, extraordinary bad luck, personal crisis or some other noticeable way. I address this loss of power by journeying into the spirit world to discover an animal spirit that had previously been your companion. If the animal agrees, I escort it back to the client. After such a retrieval you may experience a resurgence of power, health or effectiveness. Distance healings are extremely powerful as energy is not bound by time or space. It can be felt across the Universe at anytime, anywhere. My healing abilities are enhanced in a deep, meditative trance-like state. In my energy healing and transformative sessions, I utilize a variety of healing modalities including Shamanic Reiki, traditional Reiki, aura repair, chakra balancing, soul retrieval and recovery, karmic cleansing, and soul possession clearing. Shamanic Power Animal Retrieval.

4: Soul Retrieval | SharedWisdom

The services of a shamanic practitioner can retrieve the power animal for the client in "non-ordinary" reality (assisted by the shaman's power animal!) and return it to the client in this reality. Specific symptoms which indicate the need for a power animal retrieval include repeated misfortune/accidents, chronic and debilitating illness.

As long as these empty spaces remain unfilled, there is no guarantee that the intrusions will not invade given an opportunity to do so because those holes are like open invitations. But how does the process of soul retrieval actually work? Working with a Spiritual Team All of us, in every culture everywhere, had ancestors who were hunters if we go back far enough. In doing soul retrieval work, the shamanic practitioner teams up with the spirits who assist them, then they go to work together, tracking the lost soul parts much like hunters. And this is where spirit medicine has something important to offer the psychotherapeutic paradigm. Psychologists and psychiatrists know about dissociation, but where do the dissociated parts go? In doing soul retrieval, the shamanic healer and their spiritual assistants locate the lost soul parts in the Lower, Middle, or Upper Worlds of the Spirit World. Bringing Back the Soul Parts Then with the assistance of their helping spirits, the shamanic practitioner enters into relationship with them, convincing them to return and bringing them back to their original owner. Interestingly, a soul part that has taken refuge in the Lower Worlds may often be found in the company of an animal spirit who is caring for it. When this soul part is brought back, the animal spirit may return with it, resulting in what is called a power animal retrieval. A soul part located in the Middle World of dream may be found in the company of an ancestor, perhaps a revered grandparent who has already crossed over. A soul part in the Upper World may be seeking reconnection with its oversoul, a guardian angel, or even with its "soul family. Soul Catchers In traditional societies like those of the Pacific Northwest, soul retrieval specialists were often known as soul catchers. The traditionals used to say that real soul catchers only come in every hundred years or so, implying that not all shamanic practitioners are proficient at soul retrieval. I discovered quite by accident that I am a soul catcher. Originally I was trained as a physical therapist, and for the past 25 years or so, I have worked in acute care rehabilitation as well as home health. I am now in private practice, specializing almost entirely in soul retrieval work, guided by my spirits who also facilitate power augmentation and divination work. Although I trained with several teachers accomplished in soul retrieval to acquire the basic tools, the heart of my method was taught to me by my spirit helpers, revealing quite clearly their pivotal role as teachers and guides in the practice of spirit medicine. When the classic causes--disharmony, fear, and soul loss--manifest themselves as physical or psychological symptoms, they must be dealt with at the energetic and spiritual levels for true healing to occur. Healing the Spiritual and Energetic Levels The perspective of spirit medicine is still quite foreign to most of our Western healthcare practitioners, doctors, nurses, and therapists alike. However, this worldview, so familiar to the indigenous peoples, is gaining wider acceptance

6: Power Animal Retrieval – One Tribe Only

Shamanic Power Animal Retrieval Helps Restore Harmony By Reconnecting You With Your Shamanic Power Animal Totems Power animals are guardian spirits, similar to the concept of guardian angels. We all have them, whether or not we are consciously aware of them.

Well, actually it is the spirit of a certain kind of power, assuming the form of an animal that expresses something powerful in our full and complete personhood. If you had the chance to meet her and ask her if she could relate to that term, odds are she would smile and nod in agreement. So where is this Mama Bear? In any event, she and Mama Bear exist together, as she is fully and completely empowered with the Mama Bear spirit. Problems show up when we become separated from our full and complete nature. Taking this Mama Bear woman situation further, we could imagine how she could have, for any number of reasons, grown up not developing the Mama Bear potential. She might not have been shown that it was possible for her to have that kind of ferocious willingness to protect and defend her young. Perhaps she had been taught just the opposite: Then as an adult, she would be missing an important part of herself. If what was missing was not recognized as such, perhaps by living within a culture or family that disempowered women, she may feel weakened and not her full self, but not know why. Power animals are actually quite common. When they learn about one of their animal spirit helpers, they are sometimes surprised and immediately recognize a relationship that was already there. When people have a power retrieval and obtain an animal spirit, they are empowered with that spirit. She started looking back over her life, and realized that hummingbirds had been around her all along. Thus, a spirit helper in animal form can provide protection to any person, not just to a shaman. They can also provide guidance, or in the case of a shaman, transportation such as on their back, held in their claws, etc. Each of us has at least one, and more commonly a number of spirit helpers. It is known that animal spirits actually want to help us and bring us their special power, particularly at a time of our life when we most need them. As is the case with our upper world teachers, these animals may also test us to determine the sincerity of our bond with them and the cleanliness of our heart. Without our complete power, we then may find ourselves stumbling through life. I am extremely curious. I never felt it was appropriate or wise to restrict myself to looking for information from only one person or one particular school. But how do we know for certain? It is only from the animal spirit itself that we can really learn what power it brings and how the person it is returning to can best work with it. People go to shamanic practitioners to they can be reconnected with one or more of their animal spirit helpers. This is one of the primary functions of shamans throughout time. In other words, it is a stretch to assume that a spirit helper in animal form means the same thing in all times and places. Bear is known also known for strength, clearly, and as such a large animal they can run extremely fast. Yet there are also widely differing qualities. For instance, Bear can also represent hibernation. Is Bear a shaman, too? If one has Bear as their spirit helper, does this mean that they have a shamanic quality that is coming out, or that they are a shaman? Certainly, there is a lot of consistency among animals in that they show certain qualities, however, there is also room for great variance. With an animal spirit helper, one should never leap to conclusions. Ultimately, the meaning and purpose of a spirit helper is something specific and intimate between that person and their helper. Moreover, there are certainly books that can lend ideas about spirit helpers. However, remember that these are just ideas and collections of associations that others have made, and any and all associations with a particular animal may or may not apply to someone in particular. What is closest to the truth is always learned directly from the spirits themselves. But, there is nothing absolute about the appearance of a spirit helper. As in all shamanic work, we must go back to the spirits themselves to inquire. In this case, we need to go to our animal spirit helpers to let them tell us why they are in our life at this time.

8: Power Animal Reunion/Retrieval | EAST END HYPNOSIS & REIKI

28 Â© SHAMANISM ANNUAL Journal of the Foundation for Shamanic Studies, Issue 25, December
www.enganchecubano.com POWER ANIMAL RETRIEVAL Lora Jansson E.

Our connection to animals is very old and very deep. There are expressions in our everyday language that refer to animals. My mom used to say I curled up like a cat when I read. Power animals are not literal animals, but spiritual allies that take an animal form and offer you strengths and abilities you might not otherwise be able to tap into. Why would I need a power animal? Because we lose and even give away power in a crazy number of ways. The experience of dealing with the petty tyrants and victims in our lives, losing a love relationship in which we gave away part of our heart, the ways we have been torn down and criticized are just a small sampling of these ways in which we lose power. A loss of our personal power can have emotional, mental, physical, and spiritual ramifications in our lives. Emotionally, this could express itself as depression, an inability to motivate ourselves, feeling weepy, lost, alone, or just stuck. Spiritually, this might look like a loss of faith in ourselves or our spiritual connection, or loss of hope. Mentally, you might feel stressed out, anxious, or directionless and confused about how to move forward in your life. A power animal is a helper that assists you in restoring lost power in your life. Power animals are spiritual allies that take animal form. Though this power animal may have been hovering around the edges of your life for a very long time, power animal retrieval will help you meet and work with this spiritual energy, helping to restore your power and heal your life. So how can you help me with that? I can then help you find ways to work with that power animal to help you regain your power. How long will this take? Generally about an hour. Sometimes way less, sometimes more. I will honor your time constraints as much as possible.

9: What is a power animal retrieval and how can discovering your power animal help you heal

Power Animal Retrieval: Learn Shamanic Healing Last night my partner Maggie Pashley and I did a journey to shamanic drumming. Our aim was to meet a Power Animal.

A power animal retrieval is the first step to restoring power. What is a power animal? A power animal is an ally and support for you as you navigate the challenges of life. If you also do work in the spirit world, a power animal is literally a guide, keeping you safe from attachments and unhealthy spiritual situations. Finding out about your power animal is a poignant step in your healing journey, for your power animal can give you access to timeless wisdom and empower you to make better decisions. This becomes especially poignant when you consider the shame that we all carry. Consider those who have suffered abuse, and also consider those who have abused others. Both are on this earth to learn and to heal. There is something incredibly validating in knowing that the spirits not only are aware of you, but they are actively supporting you. How does your power animal help you? Shamanic medicine is quite simple at its root. When we experience traumatic incidents like car accidents, being bullied, witnessing or having violence directed at us, we suffer soul loss. This negative energy can cause much upheaval in our lives and be the spiritual root cause for issues like depression, detachment, and addiction. When I do a power animal retrieval, I go into the spirit world on your behalf and I ask for help for you. That help comes in the form of a power animal. The energy integrates with and strengthens your own. One of the things I love best about power animal retrievals is the info we can glean. Most power animals although not all have messages to pass along to the client. The form a power animal takes is also a message to the client. There is something in the form – a moose, a snake or a martin, for example – that has something to teach the client or is a reflection of the client and deserves further exploration. There are times when a power animal infuses us with the exact kind of energy we need. That energy may empower us to become more introspective or cautious. These interpretations are my own, of course. What a power animal means is different for each client. Is a power animal really an animal? Typical of the spirit world, the answer is both yes and no. I tend to look at power animals as pure spirits that use the form of animals as a teaching symbol and a way to ease the communication. On the other hand, I have seen lots of situations where a power animal is the spirit of an animal the client helped or came into contact with in the past. Either way, the type of animal that appears is always meaningful to the client, and an aside: True, a salmon may not majestically soar the heavens eagle-style, but in my culture, salmon are the keepers of all wisdom. Go read The Coming of Fionn and you will understand! For example, dogs and snakes. Well, again in my culture, hounds play a sacred role in many of our teachings and snakes are terribly powerful. We see symbols of both on ancient artwork and stone carvings. Whatever animal form comes to you, be it dog, snake or a honey bee, there is meaning in that form for you. How do you discover your power animal? When one is a recovering addict or struggling with other issues, a gentle approach is welcome. The chances of side effects or a healing crisis as energy grounds is considerably lessened. When someone asks me to do work on a child, this is the only kind of work I will do. Knowing their power animal is incredibly empowering for a young person, and helps them to form a sense of identity. A power animal retrieval session generally takes an hour although it can take less. Part of that time is spent counselling the client on how to honour their power animal. These teachings may come from the power animal itself or from my own teachings and experience. Most of my clients contact me for soul retrieval work, I think that more people are aware of soul retrieval work thanks to the efforts of Sandra Ingerman and the late Michael Harner but soul retrieval work can be intense, and is not for everyone. For many of these clients, a power animal retrieval makes better sense as a way to strengthen the spirit to a point where soul retrieval makes sense. This is always a question that I ask the spirits on your behalf.
