For his Hat was a hundred and two feet wide, With ribbons and bibbons on every side And bells, and buttons, and loops, and lace, So that nobody ever could see the face Of the Quangle Wangle Quee. You would be hard pressed to find a more captivating poem and one beloved by my Grandchildren; especially when Granny reads it with her perfect English accent! This blog is a special chronicle, indeed a mission moment. Every now and again, and happily quite often, we have not just a good day in one of our Club programs, but a simply amazing and memorable day. It started well with Cathee working on synonyms. Then how many animals could we name starting with the letter P and then A and later S. We were doing great until your volunteer correspondent foolishly opened up the choice of letter to the Club Members. So we struggled with the letter Z and then another Club member, who I will call Bob, put the pressure on with a call for animals names starting with Q. From this small beginning came the amazing drawing by Cathee that details the Quangle Wangle and his friends including the Blue Baboon , the Dong with the luminous nose and the Pobble who has no toes. This was fun, but the mission moment had not yet arrived. Cathee, a notable artist herself, had invited a prominent local artist to come in and lead an abstract painting class. So while some people were being led by our lovely professional yoga instructor- Gayle, Cathee had eight people working in acrylic with the guest artist. It has a true abstract feel to it but is full of life and movement. He wants to come back and work on it some more next week. This is such a great example of the creative side of the brain experiencing artistic therapy. Jim first learned to paint many years ago and took lessons in classic art and later in abstract art, but has not worked on his easel for a long time. I was particularly struck by the happy, warm, familiar smiles between Jim and Brenda. Cathee and I agreed. It was a magic moment. Please share this if you believe it would help someone. Edward Lear belonged to the Victorian age. But unlike his contemporary author and poets, his writings were not meant for serious readers. He wrote for children, using the form of literary nonsense in his poetries and prose. Born to a London stockbroker; Jeremiah Lear who was bankrupted around , Lear was raised by women, especially by his sister Ann. The second youngest of twenty-one children, Lear was educated at home. He is known for publicizing the Literary Nonsense as a genre and a form. In , he published his first volume of verse A Book of Nonsense. His writings are distinguished by his use of neologisms, humour and perfect rhythm. His writings are still popular among children. Introduction to the Poem: Lear is known to write nursery rhymes and comic lament. For his Hat was a hundred and two feet wide, With ribbons and bibbons on every side And bells, and buttons, and loops, and lace. So that nobody ever could see the face Of the Quangle Wangle Quee. The first stanza of the poem builds the background of the poetic narration. In these two lines, the poet through the monologue of Quangle Wangle makes his readers aware of the lonesomeness of his protagonist. But there came to the Crumpetty Tree, Mr. Quangle Wangle, grant us that! Two new characters, that is, Mr. In the last four lines, Mr. Canary are requesting Mr. The sixth stanza, that is also a closing stanza, also begins with another monologue of the Quangle Wangle. He is happy about the thought of hearing noises around him now as all these creatures has settled down on his Hat. The poem ends with a statement that they are all happy on the Crumpetty Tree.
