The letter of Jakob Hessel: Her influence on the king was very disturbing to the citizenry. This is a reference to the multitude of German-speaking regions. Census confirms that Margarete Ewen had a baby girl, whom they named Mary, at about the time mentioned. Greth is probably Margarete Ewen. Both Hannes and Dr. Menniger, who is mentioned later, remain unidentified. The name is now spelled "Kornely". Blasius Biegel eventually opened a carpentry business in the city of Manitowoc. The relationship, if any, between the Wisconsin and Pennsylvania Hessels is unknown at this time. Copies of the letters were graciously furnished to this editor by Marion Lois Huffines, who has written a wonderful article about the Pennsylvania Hessels. Translated and Adapted by LaVern J.
