Read "Restoration Affair" by Marina Oliver with Rakuten Kobo. Callias is brought to the Restoration Court by her husband John Cobden, who married her for her money, but once there he.

I have mentored her off and on for the past year. Her husband had an affair and she had a difficult time forgiving him. They have children and so for the sake of the children, I encouraged her to stay with her husband as I do with all those who have suffered in this way. Ten months ago, she moved in with her parents and told me her parents wanted her to get a job and leave her children during the day. I told her to go move back in with her husband and fight for her marriage, so she did. Many women would speak words of life into her; encouraging her to keep on going and loving her husband the way God commands we love our husbands. Recently, she posted something in the chat room that put many of us in happy tears and rejoicing. She wrote these words because of what her husband had texted her in the words above. I have to share something with you ladies. Roughly ten months ago my husband said he wanted a divorce. He said he was done with our marriage and was no longer in love with me. We separated and he had no intention of ever reconciling. But praise God, today because of you ladies praying for us, the godly help and guidance from everyone in this group and the Lord continually molding and shaping me, convicting my heart, and never leaving my side, this is the type of texts I am now getting from my husband!!! This right here is an answer to prayer! This is proof that the Lord listens to His people! I just have to share this text I got from my husband today and say thank you, thank you, thank you for being such great, godly, and encouraging women of God. Now, she often shares with us how wise and wonderful her husband is to her! Another woman in the chat room responded to her words this way. Once a man comes to his senses and sees how close he came to losing all that he holds dear, he will be profoundly thankful to the good woman who loved him through his foolishness. She will win his respect as well as his love, because he will know that she is the kind of woman who will stand by her man. Few women ever know what it means to be cherished by their husbands, but if you love him through this kind of trouble, you will be cherished. Being cherished is much, much, much more than being loved. It will be worth all of your effort! It was the fight of my life! Since then, God has daily performed a miracle in my marriage. The enemy kept trying to remind me of how justified my negative feelings towards him were, but I continued to ignore him. Keep doing the hard things! God is so amazing. Never give up hope, women. For after this manner in the old time the holy women also, who trusted in God, adorned themselves, being in subjection unto their own husbands.

Couples Restored- Hope and Healing For Couples Dealing With An Affair.

A Restoration Affair A corner of our sitting room , with the latest addition- A restored antique steamer-trunk. Trace by Lock Manufacturer, 3. Trace by Trunk Manufacturer, 4. Merge all Traces, and you can pretty much narrow down a period with reasonably good accuracy. We will merge history and cleaning lessons as we go down the path of restoration. Pretty gruesome and smell of old leather- not the good one, the bad one I mean. Use of harsh chemical will damage the leather that the old owner definitely cared for! Anyway, under "new ownership", we must try and do as best as we can, shouldnt we? So back to basics- lightly moistened papertowels, and good old fashioned rubbing the grime off However, a few labels newer ones remain somewhat intact indicating last journeys around - with the American Express Railroad Company AREC labels. AREC changed its name after so this trunk was on board, raibound, a few times before that year. So now you know. One of the AREC labels, in still fairly readable form i. The handwritten details are long gone! So I dont think very valuable freight like perfume, and linens and spices would have arrived, atleast on that last consignment: It does look intriguing though, and if anyone has any guesses, feel free to comment! The letters AR are visible, and I think the next letter is G. Also is the small print "New York" on the below right corner. Eventually steamer trunk manufacturing boomed in the US during By then, many makers of trunks outsourced the lock part to expert lock manufacturers like Yale, Excelsior and Hartmann to name a few. Yale Sr inventor of the tumbler lock died a few months after the company was formed, never knowing how world famous his locks would eventually be. Unfortunately our trunk came with no key. I discovered a site called Antiquekeys , which will get you pretty much any key you may be looking for in your restoration. After photo-magnification thanks to all the digital camera improvements in recent years , I could read through the rust, and see that our lock was Yale-Y The fine art of rubbing with oil: This one was simply based on a whim. Not only was it a waste of cleaner- but it was more like a drop in the ocean on the century-plus old parched leather. A lightbulb moment brought us to try out with oil. At "First rub", the leather "drank" the oil, and we could see it dry up within a minute. But the patience paid off. Subsequent rubs retained the oil, now that the leather was beginning to soak in it. See the colour change, and the deep black beginning to show! I must say that I didnt have much hope on this after the initial rounds, that it would ever get back in this shape. Pretty amazing build quality. Trace by Trunk Manufacturer- Trace the maker of the Trunk, or the retailer, or both, and find out the company history and period of existence. The Manufacturer in our case: Fortunately, most part of the label remains. Later labels show the Standswell Diamond logo merged with the Perkiomen Logo. You can find some pretty good history of Old Trunk labels on OldTrunks. I found with Standswell-Perkiomen merged emblem though. So in its own charming way, this piece we have could be a rare part of the Great American Trunk history after all! Cedar blocks on the inside to absorb any odor, and keep it clean for the years to come. We must say that were were absolutely thrilled at the end state, and also amazed at how sturdily they built trunks in the olden times. In spite of all the abuse it has gone through, the structure is rock-solid, and who knows-perhaps built to take a few more centuries on! And so it has come to rest - for now. A conversation peice in our quiet chat corner. Thanks for stopping by, and look forward to your comments!

3: Affairs |Adultery |Divorce |Hope |Healing|Restoration

Restoration After an Affair She has become a friend of mine. I have mentored her off and on for the past year. Her husband had an affair and she had a.

Typically it involves at least one spouse seeking intimacy, oftentimes physical, outside of the marriage. There is one affair though that happens much more frequently, is extremely dangerous, and yet, it goes relatively undetected. Time and time again I have witnessed firsthand parents using their children to fulfill the emotional needs not being filled by their spouse. Rather than working through those issues with their spouse, the parent just molds their child into a pseudo husband or wife. Professionally speaking, we mental health professionals call this enmeshment. Basically enmeshment is an unhealthy dependency and attachment between two people like a parent with their child. Not only does this create a further chasm between a husband and wife, but it establishes an unhealthy connection between the parent and child that can lead to devastating and crippling effects for the child down the road. A child was never meant to fulfill the emotional needs that a spouse does. A child is a child and needs a parent not a spouse. When you begin to turn to your little one to fill the shoes of a husband or wife, you are twisting and contorting that relationship into something it was never designed to be. You are hurting them, yourself, their future relationships, and your marriage. You may be unaware of this dynamic as so many parents are. And what happens when that child grows up? Suddenly you will be faced with the reality that your child cannot be your source of emotional fulfillment any longer. Not if you want them to go on and have a healthy, satisfying life with meaningful, strong relationships. While it does occur between fathers and daughters, this is most commonly seen playing out between a mother and son. This is so dangerous and detrimental! These sons who have been raised to put their mothers first and meet their every need will often always be that way. Even when they marry, they will keep their mother as their number one woman and priority. The husband feels obligated to his mother and is placed in a really awkward and uncomfortable position of choosing between his mother and wife. This is not a choice that should have to be made; his wife needs to be his main priority. It all makes for an epic battle that should never have existed. So many times â€” too many times â€” this is the biggest issue for a couple. Personally I have seen this more times than I can count â€” dealing with the parent who used their child as a crutch and supplement to an unfulfilling and troubled marriage and now refuses to let them go. So they are no longer two, but one. Therefore what God has joined together, let man not separate. Yes, your child is a blessing that will no doubt deliver such joy and meaning to your life. Yes, you should create a loving and meaningful relationship with your child that will last a lifetime. What I am saying to avoid is using your child to meet needs that your spouse should be meeting. Avoid contorting the dynamics of your relationship with your child to satisfy emotional gaps left from an unhappy, unsatisfying, or insufficient marriage. Keep the relationship as a parent to a child realizing that one day they will need to leave and start their own family. The only way you will receive the blessings and benefits of marriage is to constantly work at it with your spouse. Your marriage is the foundation of your family. The greatest blessing and gift you can give your children is a strong, thriving marriage. An example of what it means to love and work hard at a marriage. Only you can give that to your child so that they can then go out one day and experience that in their own marriage. You will cripple them in their future relationships, and you will end up being one of the biggest impediments to their success. Keep things in order â€” your marriage is your marriage, your spouse is your spouse, and your child is your child.

4: The Overlooked Affair – Foundation Restoration

You have been unfaithful, and you want help—but moving forward is complicated. Professional counselor Michael Gembola provides daily guidance and encouragement to help you make lasting change.

Instead of running away or refusing to face these problems, we should instead run to God, who can make things right. God is the one who knows what is wrong with your marriage and how to fix it. The power of prayer cannot be overemphasised. Prayer can repair any relationship, no matter the level of damage. It can bring spouses together, no matter how sour their relationship has gotten. Prayer can mend any damaged bridge, clear any confusion, straighten any heart, resolve any conflict, and heal any hurt. It can bring reconciliation to your marriage. All you have to do is call upon God. Believe in his ability to answer your prayers, and remove any doubt from your heart. Mark God wants, and is able, to heal your marriage. Nothing is impossible with God. He will not intervene in the affairs of man by forcing him to go against his own will. Neither can we control the behavior of another person. What God does is to bring a change of heart and mind. And what we can do is pray to God and ask Him to touch the heart and mind of our spouse. God will go to places we cannot, and do things that we can only dream of. Use these prayers as guidelines for how to pray for the resolution of all that ill your marriage. When making these prayers, back them up with the Word of God. Engage the power and potency of the Word against the power of the enemies. Hebrews 4: Personalize these prayers by replacing the parts of the prayers with your name and that of your spouse where applicable. After making these prayers, believe that God has answered and consolidate your victory by thanking God for the changes you hoped to see and the restoration of your marriage. Below are the seven prayers that will help you bring back your focus on God, who alone is able to permanently heal and restore your marriage.

Blessings on my spouse and I Father God, I thank you for who you are and for the promises that you have made concerning me and my spouse. Your Word is ever true and your promise of blessings and multiplication that you have promised me throughout the ages. Genesis Every satanic covenant that is going against your continual and uninterrupted blessing in this marriage, I command the rain of fire to consume them, in Jesus name. I pray against every spirit of lack and wretchedness. Oh Lord, let your peace, joy, happiness, and comfort saturate this marriage in Jesus name. Oh Lord, let your peace, joy, happiness, and comfort saturate this marriage. Click To Tweet Remove all negativity caused by external people Lord, I come to you with this petition because I know that you have made me one flesh with my spouse and you have said that no man should come between us Matthew So I take authority over every outside influence that is polluting our marriage. Oh Lord, reveal their evil agenda. Expose them and bring their plan to nought. I pray that their seed of discord, hatred, malice, and separation that has been sown is uprooted by fire, in Jesus name. No weapon formed against our marriage shall prosper Heavenly Father, I give you all praise and adoration, because your word is ever true. I give you thanks, because no weapon that is formed against this marriage will stand Isaiah I declare that every arrow shot to destabilise this marriage is broken to pieces, in Jesus name. With the spiritual authority given to me through Christ Jesus, I command the fire of God to consume every wedge that is meant to be put between me and my spouse, through bad and ungodly advice, and false teachings. Every evil hand of demonic manipulation is crushed, in Jesus name. I retrieve my marriage from the jaws of the evil one, in Jesus name. No weapon that is formed against my marriage will stand. Let my heart and that of my spouse burn in love for you and for each other. Lord, rekindle our love for one another. Where ever my spouse needs understanding to be drawn to you, Father give him or her that understanding. Lord heal each one of our emotional wounds and cause our hearts to be drawn towards each other in Jesus name. Re-Build Trust and Honesty Lord, it is your will that we be reconciled together and that our love for each other will grow and blossom, no matter what has happened between us in the past. Lord, heal our marriage of all spiritual attacks and manipulations. Let this healing start with me. Lord, have mercy on our relationship and rebuild the trust and honesty that has eluded this marriage. Lord, I command seven-fold restoration of the trust and honesty that the evil one has stolen from us, in Jesus name. Remove bitterness, anger, and all manners of negative emotions. Lord, deliver me and my spouse from the evil spirit of unforgiveness, hatred, anger, bitterness, and abuse that is poisoning our minds and relationship. Lord teach us to treat one another with dignity, love, and respect. Lord I asked for the grace and emotional strength to avoid the use of anger and unforgiveness as a weapon to fight against my spouse. I pray that we will no longer allow our emotions to be manipulated and used to drive a wedge between us, in Jesus name. Give us the strength to work through our differences Lord, thank you for the good work that you have started in my marriage. I know that you will do mite to the end. I ask for the strength to stay courageous and strong in your promises as you work out things in our marriage. Replace every negative feeling with love and help us to work through our differences. Every man or woman determined to scatter thus marriage will not succeed. Their evil plans will scatter in Jesus name. I refuse to be tempted to try other alternatives. I will not be discouraged even if it seems that nothing is happening at the moment. Your word is greater and surer than any other power. So I choose to trust in you.

5: Q&A How Can We Find Restoration in Our Intimacy? | Affair Recovery

Callias is brought to the Restoration Court by her husband John Cobden, who married her for her money, but once there he neglects her. She is pursued by many amorous gallants, including the King, but has eyes only for Sir Richard Weston.

A Prayer for Marriage Restoration Dear Heavenly Father, I humbly come before you and thank you for saving us from distress when we call out in trouble and thank you for being there for us when things are good in our lives. We love you Dear God we seek and require You earnestly. Thank You Lord, for your kindness, tolerance, and patience with us when we fall into sin, and thank you for sending Christ to die for our sins and redeem us by the cross. Lord, You have made us one in flesh and spirit and You are a witness to our marriage covenant. I give You praise and honor, Lord, and I thank you that no weapon formed against our marriage has prospered and I believe that You Lord will silence anyone who is attempting to come between us, telling my spouse that reconciliation is wrong. With the spiritual authority given to me in Jesus name, I rebuke anyone who would attempt to put a wedge between myself and my spouse- through ungodly advice, use of banned spiritual arts as mentioned in the bible for direction, or through false teachings or words. I petition you dear Lord, that Name of Husband or Wife would humbly accept Your conviction and correction and seek your direction. Enable us to deal with any sin that would be hindering our marriage. God, Your words are trustworthy and you have promised these things to me though your words given throughout the ages through the profits, disciples and Jesus. You have promised that You will build a home for me and that it pleases You to bless my marriage. In the name of Jesus, I pray that You would bind the work of Satan from this marriage and cast that influence away. Your power is greater than the power of Satan and all who do his work, and I believe all good things will be done on Earth and in Heaven in Your time, such as the restoration of my marriage. I refuse to be discouraged, I refuse to be defeated. You are the God of all hope and I claim in every way this victory in my marriage though your Word. I pray we will live together in harmony with sympathy, compassion and humility, and that we inherit Your blessings. Father, I plead that we will speak the truth to one another in love. Cause us to honestly share our feelings without being arrogant or spiteful. Replace those feelings, Holy Spirit, with love and honesty and enable us to work through our differences. Father, I pray that You would rekindle passion and desire between myself and Name of your Husband or Wife here , and heal any emotional wounds we may have caused one another. It is Your Will that marriages to be for a lifetime and therefore go has joined together, let no man separate. I ask that this petition of prayer be read aloud, before all the angels of Heaven, before Jesus, the Holy Spirit and You my God. And I believe you will move to save and strengthen our marriage and I ask in the name of Jesus that You will do whatever it takes to protect and defend this marriage and place a hedge of protection over our home. God bless and thank you. Page 1 of

6: Stripes-and-Shadows: A Restoration Affair

Restoration affair. [Marina Oliver] -- "At the Restoration Court many amorous gallants, including the King, pursue Callias. But a flame of passion has united her with Sir Richard Weston.

The Bible describes the intoxicating power of passion associated with lust and adultery. Misdirected passion deceives, misleads and influences; we walk in darkness, stumbling, unable to see what we stumble over. This description explains why so many caught in sexual sin describe a sense of confusion and a disconnect from God. Adultery moves us from the altar to the courtroom—transforming a couple, once deeply in love, into bitter enemies. Hopes and dreams for the birth of a child, now twisted, become a nightmare for innocent children. Adultery is selfishness at its core. How sad that sexual appetites often devour our own children, as well as ourselves. Children often feel to blame for not being good enough, trying hard enough. God help our selfish hearts! It would seem, that for loving parents, the thought of this horror would bring sexual sin to a sobering halt. Feelings can be unstable and deceptive, but obedience to scriptural truths can be trusted. God can restore if genuine repentance and forgiveness take place. True repentance is unconditional and takes full responsibility for wrongs done. Get Spirit-filled content delivered right to your inbox! Click here to subscribe to our newsletter. Two areas often prevent reconciliation: Complete separation never occurs. Reconciliation is nearly impossible if complete separation does not occur between those involved in adultery. The spouse often feels that this new person makes them feel loved and appreciated, and that may be true, but so did their spouse when they first met. Love does not leave people—people leave it. Deception lies in the fact that we often do not see the full effect of an affair until sin is fully grown. Unrepentant sin brings death to the restoration process—death to clarity, direction, and peace see James 1: Sexual sin hardens the heart and closes off forgiveness and brokenness. Again, when we are caught in sin, we are in darkness and we cannot see the things we stumble over. This is deception at its core: We lose the spiritual vision to see truth, believing that God will turn a blind eye, or be unconcerned. This should not surprise us: I often wonder how many marriages are never restored simply because of pride and disobedience. The adulterer is often more concerned about the feelings of the other person, rather than the feelings of their spouse and family. Genuine repentance does not occur. Many are sorry about adultery, but being sorry is not enough. Only genuine repentance opens the ears of God and restoration. Repentance, real repentance, makes restoration possible. Many are sorry that they got caught, sorry that their reputation and life are ruined, sorry that they are miserable and so on. The difference between sorrow and repentance is vital because the two can be easily confused. A penitent person turns from their sin. They accept full responsibility for their actions without blame, resentment or bitterness. When repentance is genuine, reconciling with those injured is a priority. Forgiveness is sought without conditions. We take full, not partial, responsibility for our actions. How can a truly broken and repentant person continue in a relationship that they know is wrong, a relationship that is destroying their family? A person who is genuinely repentant will jump at the opportunity to foster restoration. Actions reveal the condition of the heart. Those who are truly repentant often walk away from the affair.
