3rd Street, Broadway bike lanes in Downtown to be moved for "seamless connections" by Brian Addison in Longbeachize.

They talk about us! We find this solution easy to use and deploy, and most importantly it meets our requirements with an affordable cost. Besides that, the response and support from TSplus team is excellent and we do not see any reason stop using this tool in our environment. Our customers were looking for a way to run their software on the cloud. There were two options: The answer was simple. We chose TSplus because our core package ran inside the browser without any modifications. Remote printing features help our users print on their local printer s. In addition, they can access their program from their Ipad or any Android device. What more can we ask for? The support from the TSplus team has been excellent. I highly recommend this product. The software has been rock solid for the past two years. TSplus is fast, improving connection speed thus providing an excellent resource for our clients to quickly and efficiently work with their data either via remote connection or in the office. TSplus has been reliable and effective, furnishing a virtually full proof option for a smooth data access environment. TSplus allows programs to run from the server on the remote machine reducing network traffic and saving software costs. TSplus has easily integrated into my existing and aging Citrix farm, to expand the services offered and give new remote access options. With every update of this product I find more and more uses for it. The universal printing works so easily it is a relief when compared with what I have put up with in Citrix. We have deployed the software for more than 10 seats over our 3 offices in the US. The product itself is great, it fulfills a specific niche and does it well. It is a very good and inexpensive alternative to purchasing Microsoft terminal service licenses. Easy to install and set up, easy administration: TSplus is the perfect answer to facilitate our business and reduce our costs. In less than 3 years, we have deployed the software over our 18 offices spread all over the world. I appreciate that the team stays on top of MS updates and patches to keep workflow going. We especially appreciate your customer support which is always helpful and fairly prompt. UK They talk about us! We are very satisfied with your solution. Keep on staying on top of future changes in operating systems and browsers as you have. We have been using the software for 6 years now and we are extremely satisfied. Apart from being a great product, we love the after sales service and support. We have over clients using the feature.

Choose Indoor Looks/Outdoor Performance According to Chris Tidwell, vice president of sales and marketing for Aeratis, a manufacturer of engineered products for porches and patios, using the right materials will help you create the optimum effect and go a long way toward upkeep.

With so much emphasis on outdoor living, homeowners are interested in bringing the outdoors into the home and vice versa. It takes time to develop the vision top to bottom. A strategically placed hedge can make an aesthetically pleasing, light-filtering solution that still enables you to have a sense of the outdoors. His general advice for fences seen from inside includes making sure that the top does not line up with a window, finishing them with a cap and trim, using a protective, penetrating stain versus paint and choosing a style that corresponds to your interior. Long, who also installs pergolas, adds that outdoor focal points should be lined up on axes or sight lines when you want to see them from inside. Their main product, double sided tongue-in-groove porch flooring is used for outdoor applications like porches, patios and outdoor kitchens, as well as indoor areas like mud rooms and saunas. Aeratis also offers a more cost effective, paint-ready flooring option. The company warrants its products against manufacturing defects and performance failures and the products are fire rated, making them ideal for outdoor kitchens. You may choose to tie them together by using cohesive color schemes or furniture styles. Roussell focuses on color. If you have pastels inside, you may want to carry that outside. Or you may want to use a contrasting color. According to Roussell, the transition leading from the house to the outdoor living area should be on the same level as the house and at least large enough for two people to stand on. She adds that steps to a lower level outdoor space should lead where you want to go. Frame Your Views Window treatments can affect everything from whether you can see the outdoors to how you see them. To that end, Wren says Solar Shades, which are made of fiberglass and are available in varying degrees of sheerness, have become one of her top selling items. Solar Shades also can be used outdoors, as can Aeroshades, specifically made of weatherproof materials for outdoor areas like porches. Another way to frame your outdoor views is by having in glassed-in room. For energy efficiency, he advises using double insulated windows with Low E glass which cuts 75 to 80 percent of UV rays and Argon gas. Provide Some Liquid Refreshment The tranquil sight of an outdoor water feature makes an impact on semi-outdoor areas like porches and on indoor rooms. Placed near a window or door, fountains, ponds, pools and waterfalls have a cooling, calming effect. But Roussell advises that water features should never be located based on the indoor perspective alone. In New Orleans gardens, where space is often limited, Mullin advises clients to use a single water feature rather than a pool and fountain for example. Roussell adds that scents are a reminder of the time of year. Bengé recommends locating soothing water features near doors and windows when it works with the outdoor plan so that they can be heard from inside. A tubular daylight device invented in the s, it resembles an oversized can light and delivers just as much light as a skylight without the heat and the UV rays that fade furniture, rugs and art. Before buying a home or starting a renovation, making sure your home is level and in compliance with flood requirements is essential. Davie Shoring levels and elevates houses and also moves historic and other homes. Strong Shield Siding, works with all of the above and specializes in fiber cement siding. In business for more than 50 years, LAS, which manufactures and installs windows, shutters and siding, emphasizes the benefits of vinyl siding and shutters. In addition to being built to withstand water and treated to repel insects, some vinyl siding is rated to stand up to hurricane force winds and to provide greater energy efficiency. Thanks to improved technology, Vice President of Sales Mike Wibel says the look of vinyl siding and shutters is better than ever as well. But product alone is not enough. Wibel stresses the importance of proper installation and maintenance. LAS also provides care maintenance instructions for every job it installs. While bleach is routinely used to pressure wash wood, it should never be used on vinyl siding.
