Shootout with Father is a story of a father and son, told by James, the son, an artist. James' father is a rich and ruthless businessman who owns a world class collection of armor. The armor is all the old man really cares for.

And then the flowers came. When you stared down from the balcony at the people carrying them the flower pots looked like funny awfully nice hats nodding up the path. Moon thought they were hats. There was nobody to look after Sun and Moon. She only had time to say: He did so hate being sent stumping back to the nursery. But Sun was too heavy for that. He was so heavy that the fat man who came to dinner on Sundays used to say: Nearly all the furniture was taken out of the dining-room. The big piano was put in a corner and then there came a row of flower pots and then there came the goldy chairs. That was for the concert. When Sun looked in a white faced man sat at the piano—'not playing, but banging at it and then looking inside. He had a bag of tools on the piano and he had stuck his hat on a statue against the wall. Sometimes he just started to play and then he jumped up again and looked inside. But of course the place to be in was the kitchen. There was a man helping in a cap like a blancmange, and their real cook, Minnie, was all red in the face and laughing. Not cross at all. She gave them each an almond finger and lifted them up on to the flour bin so that they could watch the wonderful things she and the man were making for supper. Cook brought in the things and he put them on dishes and trimmed them. Whole fishes, with their heads and eyes and tails still on, he sprinkled with red and green and yellow bits; he made squiggles all over the jellies, he stuck a collar on a ham and put a very thin sort of a fork in it; he dotted almonds and tiny round biscuits on the creams. And more and more things kept coming. And they looked into the refrigerator. It was a little house. It was a little pink house with white snow on the roof and green windows and a brown door and stuck in the door there was a nut for a handle. When Sun saw the nut he felt quite tired and had to lean against Cook. Just let me put my finger on the roof," said Moon, dancing. She always wanted to touch all the food. Sun and Moon were almost frightened. Red ribbons and bunches of roses tied up the table at the corners. In the middle was a lake with rose petals floating on it. Two silver lions with wings had fruit on their backs, and the salt cellars were tiny birds drinking out of basins. And all the winking glasses and shining plates and sparkling knives and forks—and all the food. And the little red table napkins made into roses. Moon laughed, too; she always did the same as other people. Round and round he walked with his hands behind his back. While they were being unbuttoned Mother looked in with a white thing over her shoulders; she was rubbing stuff on her face. Sun was undressed first, nearly to his skin, and dressed again in a white shirt with red and white daisies speckled on it, breeches with strings at the sides and braces that came over, white socks and red shoes. Sit quiet in that chair and watch your little sister. When she had her socks put on she pretended to fall back on the bed and waved her legs at Nurse as she always did, and every time Nurse tried to make her curls with a finger and a wet brush she turned round and asked Nurse to show her the photo of her brooch or something like that. But at last she was finished too. Her dress stuck out, with fur on it, all white; there was even fluffy stuff on the legs of her drawers. Her shoes were white with big blobs on them. And Moon held out her skirts by the tips and dragged one of her feet. After that they played clean tidy games up at the table while Nurse stood at the door, and when the carriages began to come and the sound of laughter and voices and soft rustlings came from down below she whispered: At last the bell rang. Nurse pounced at them with the hair brush, flattened his fringe, made her bow stand on end, and joined their hands together. And down they went. She swung her arm and the bell on her coral bracelet jingled. At the drawing-room door stood Mother fanning herself with a black fan. The drawing-room was full of sweet smelling, silky, rustling ladies and men in black with funny tails on their coats—'like beetles. Father was among them, talking very loud, and rattling something in his pocket. Sun looked to see if the same concert was there, but he was gone. Instead, a fat man with a pink head leaned over the piano talking to a girl who held a violin at her ear. There was only one man that Sun really liked. He was a little grey man, with long grey whiskers, who walked about by himself. He came up to Sun and rolled his eyes in a very nice way and said: But soon he came back again and said: She put up her arms in front of everybody and said: Nurse was in such a hurry to get them to bed that she even interrupted Sun over his prayers and said: A long while after Sun woke up again. There was a loud, loud noise of clapping from downstairs, like when it rains. He heard Moon turn over. Then that door was shut; there was a noise of "pops" and laughing. Then that stopped and Sun saw them all walking round and round the lovely table with their hands behind their backs like he had done. Round and round they walked, looking and staring. The man with the grey whiskers liked the little house best. When he saw the nut for a handle he rolled his eyes like he did before and said to Sun: I never nod my head. Father came out of the dining-room, bounded up the stairs, and nearly fell over them. Sun had never seen him so jolly. Do have us down," said Moon. Sun thought Mother would have been dreadfully cross. She kept on laughing at Father. Come and have some pickings," said this jolly Father. But Moon stopped a minute. And Father said "Yes" and pretended to bite her white shoulder, but she pushed him away. And so they went back to the beautiful dining-room. The ribbons and the roses were all pulled untied. The little red table napkins lay on the floor, all the shining plates were dirty and all the winking glasses. The lovely food that the man had trimmed was all thrown about, and there were bones and bits and fruit peels and shells everywhere. There was even a bottle lying down with stuff coming out of it on to the cloth and nobody stood it up again. And the little pink house with the snow roof and the green windows was brokenâ€”brokenâ€”half melted away in the centre of the table. Moon lifted up her pyjama legs and shuffled up to the table and stood on a chair, squeaking away. Mother took a little plate and held it for him; she put her other arm round his neck. Kin I eat it? But Sun did not move from the door. Suddenly he put up his head and gave a loud wail. Get started by clicking the "Add" button. Add Sun And Moon to your own personal library.

2: The War Comes Home, to Boston – Astrology and Horoscopes by Eric Francis

Shootout with Father has 6 ratings and 1 review. Jon said: Shootout with Father, published in when the author was 91, is Marianne Hauser's last nove.

Female Horoscopy Introduction The aim of Vedic Astrology is to help the individual progress on his path of self-realization and ultimately leave this material plane for the transcendental abode. It is in this context we read in the Srimad Bhagavatam that a person should not become a father, mother or a guru unless he intends to deliver that person from the cycle of birth and death. The King would then make a proclamation to the citizens announcing his intent. Begetting a child was very deliberate and conscious act performed with the blessings of great personalities and the well wishes of the citizens in the kingdom. In western society not much forethought is given to the conceiving of children, and in many cases marriage itself is casually arranged. Often marriage is based on the physical attraction and sexual compatibility of the couple. When society is flooded by large numbers of unwanted children, the results will ultimately affect many generations to come. With this in mind it is no wonder that most of the classics like BPHS have devoted whole chapters to astrological combinations in regard to women. Men of character are also required, but for the purposes of this article, we will examine charts of women. We should not come to conclusions about any chart until all factors are taken into account. This is Kali Yuga, the age of quarrel and irreligion, and mankind is slowly losing its good qualities. It is rare to find a chart that reveals a person with strength of character as described in Mahabharata, one who is able to perform austerities and follow religious principles. We are more likely to find charts dominated by malefic planets and an independent mind set, with huge ambitions to progress materialistically. Perhaps making a conscious attempt to produce and raise nice children is a wise thing after all. Odd signs rising can give masculine, athletic or competitive qualities, especially if influenced by Mars. Even signs give feminine traits. This can also be applied to the Moon sign as well. Notice whether benefics or malefics are influencing the Lagna and its lord. This will give clues what trend her life will take. Has the Lagna lord gone to inauspicious places like dusthana? Unless the Lagna lord is also aspected by benefics or is otherwise well disposed, these placements can create a life of hardship, disease, conflict, misery or toil. Check the status of the Sun, who is natural karaka of vitality and health. He is also karaka for the soul and father. Is the sun in a position of strength? Is the native self-confident or lacking in self-esteem? Sun can show her physical vitality, some mental strength and even her status in society. Sun can indicate the protection and support or lack of from the father. Sun is also the main planet associated with the conception of children. The Moon is an important planet to examine. It is natural karaka of the mind, emotions, nurturance and many things connected with motherhood. The Moon shows where and what we focus our minds on. Check the placement of Moon, the sign it occupies and the house it owns. In addition, an afflicted Moon can affect her ability to conceive and maintain a pregnancy. If her chart has much beneficial yoga especially yogas situated around the Moon such as Adhi, Sunapha, Gajakesari etc. Likewise, if the native is suffering from daridra, arista, pisacha, ie crazy yogas, it can significantly affect her ability to care for her family. If a woman has a husband that can physically, mentally and financially support her, she will have a significantly better chance of being happy and successfully raising her children. This is especially important in current times, as many women no longer have support of an extended family. Check the status of 7th house, its lord and Venus, the karaka for the spouse. Also check the 7th lord from Venus and 7th from Moon. Some authors also say Jupiter can also be karaka for husband. The Navamsa chart is linked to our accumulated karmas and shows the innate destiny that is possible through the Rasi chart. The Navamsa chart is also the varga or divisional chart examined for the spouse. Consideration should be given to the overall traits and implications. A Navamsa chart with Rajayogas especially involving the AK and Navamsa Lagna and its lord will be a great blessing and will show the results of good karmas fructifying. Therefore having good fortune in life to unite with a righteous spouse is a great blessing. Any planets in the 7th will directly aspect the Ascendant. The 7th from a house is its opposition so unless occupied by Jupiter, the 7th house is better unoccupied. Jupiter is perhaps the best planet, because he represents a person of compassion and good character and expansion and from his 7th house position, he will aspect Lagna, 3rd house and 11th house. Rahu can indicate a husband that is unfaithful or simply a foreigner or dark skinned partner, for a westerner. Mars in 7th house gives Kuja dosha or affliction of Mars, which can give disturbance to married life. The combination of Mars in certain signs and houses is thought to minimize some of the harmful influences. Saturn in the 7th can delay marriage, or cause separations between the couple, give an older partner or one that is indifferent or mechanical in sexual relations. In its good status, Saturn can give a steady man, and a long term marriage, or one that improves with time. Venus is a Brahminical planet but can give a husband that is oriented towards luxury, or interested in sensory gratification like eat, drink and be merry. An exception can be when Venus, karaka of spouse occupies his own sign in the 7th. Ketu can give a marriage that is unconventional or a partner that is erratic and unreliable. Mercury alone gives a spineless man, or fickle personality. Combined with Saturn it can indicate homosexuality or sexual frustration. If well aspected, the husband can be learned, clever and youthful. Moon can show flirtatious nature and give tendencies to short lived relationships. On the positive side, Moon in the 7th can show attachment to spouse. These are generalities, all of which will be modified by the sign and lord placement, and the aspects of benefics etc. The eighth house should be examined for length of marriage and possible gains from husband. Not only is the 8th a place of gains from marriage, but it is also a maraka placement. Mercury is one of the few planets considered unharmed in 8th house. Any assets left to her will be very important. Saturn and Sun in the 12th house can show isolation, widowhood or renunciation of relationships. Check the relationships of the AK in relation to the planets and houses associated with spouse and children. Additionally, check the status and position of the AK in the Navamsa chart. It can show the strength of indications found in the Rasi chart, and can be used to identify strong karmic destiny, whether it be good or bad. The trinal houses are all very important for matters of children. The 5th house and its status are important in the support of the Lagna. In old age, the children will or it is hoped they will support the mother. Good and prosperous children are an asset for the parents. Malefics in all the trines or in the Kendras is generally not good. For example Mars in the 10th will aspect Lagna, 4th and 5th. Mars aspect to 5th can show miscarriages or loss of children. Rahu and Saturn can also give problems in the 5th. The right combination of Mars and its influence can actually give many children. Mars rules the blood and is essential for the formation of the fetus and conception. Arudha Padas of the houses related to partnership and spouse should be checked for additional indications. While the UL should be examined for potential spouse, the A7 will indicate relationships in general, based on attraction or sex relations. Ideally the UL should fall in trines to AL of the partner. There will be tensions, arguments and rejections, contributing to a general lack of harmony in the relationship. When the Lagna Lord is conjoined or in mutual aspect with the 7th lord, it shows very easy contact with others and is helpful in giving harmonious relationships. If it involves the signs of Mars and Venus, it can indicate opportunities for multiple sexual contacts, as the passions and attractions of the individual will be accentuated. Connections between A7 and UL can reveal a love marriage or in a negative condition, tendency towards multiple contacts. The Moon in a Kendra to Venus coupled with strong 5th house can give strong sex desires or an inclination to affairs. Check the dasa periods that have been running since birth and that will be running during the marriage and child bearing years. See if they are favorable or unfavorable, and what planets are activated. Pay particular attention to planets in the 5th house. Jupiter, Venus and Rahu dasa are known to bring marriage. According to Parasara, Ketu is a benefic and if aspected or associated with signs and planets that are associated with marriage such as UL, DK, etc. When using Narayana Dasa, it can be seen that marriage often occurs in periods associated with Venus and Ketu. It is a well-publicized fact that she and her husband were in love and very much attached to each other. Perhaps this contributed to their ultimate demise. Together they had four daughters and one son who was diagnosed with hemophilia. Please note the powerful combination of planets, Malavya yoga among others in her Lagna giving immense wealth and fame. Due to her association with Rasputin a fallen monk, who she believed had the power to heal her sick son, the public animosity increased until their ultimate demise.

Published on Sunday, 20 October No matter how much pain we go through, like a mother cat pulling her kittens from a burning building, we will sacrifice ourselves for others. Doing the right thing is one of the strongest desires in life. Each act of kindness means that the world is a better place, that a forest is protected from devastation, that a local stray finds a free lunch, and that someone who is cutoff, scared, and lonely finds a friend. The chance to incarnate under a deep, blue sky on an incredibly diverse biosphere is one of them; to be of service to others is another. Besides, who can resist a quick, refreshing dip in the 3D gene pool? We came here to help and we will not go gently into that good night. Is it because Mercury is going retrograde on October 21st and the emotional dam is about to burst? Could be, but a lot of other stuff is happening, too. I always laugh when the Mercury retrograde aspect comes up as so many people seem to run for the hills; few people take into account the sign this tiny planet is in when it happens. We need to understand that significance before panicking and heading to the safety of our EMF-proof bunkers. Also, Mercury reverses direction three, sometimes four, times a year. In this case, Mercury will be in the occult sign of Scorpio. It will cause our psychic floodgates to open. Scorpio is all about sex, death, relationships, and the hidden meanings of life. Though all hell can break loose when these things are put into spin, we can navigate these rough waters if we put out Heart first. This Mercury retrograde will give us an opportunity to cut through those chains. In fact, the entire year has been a lesson in healing and letting go of old wounds. The Sun enters Scorpio a couple of days after that and many things that have been hidden will become visible again. Long-term relationships are having problemsâ€”or have ended altogetherâ€”and new ones are struggling to get started. The New Age is about everyone; not just us as individuals. Again, this is where we can help others who are in a quandary with all the Aquarian energy. We can move this realization along by freely lending a hand. Do that, and the Universe will take care of the rest. As they say, fools rush in where wise men fear to tread, and that certainly applies here. Maybe add in a spooky voice, too. First off, a retrograde Mercury will line up with Saturn in Scorpio. It will lay down some harsh, emotional restrictions in our lives. This will most likely take the form of breakups now that we are seeing how out of sync some of our close relationships have become. If we head out for a Halloween party with a lover or a good friend, take extra care of each other, or we may end up coming back alone. Next up, Mars not only trines Pluto but will oppose Chiron. This will have the effect of pointing out all that we no longer need in our lives. Again, be careful of saying the wrong thing to the right person over the Halloween celebrations. The Sun gets in on the act here as it will be conjunct the North Node. It will illuminate any unbalanced, karmic patterns. Ignore that, and we may end up finding ourselves holding onto nothing. This is the big one to watch out for this Fall. This square will continue throughout November, finally coming to an end as the Sun passes into Sagittarius. Think back to last year at this time; think of all the emotional stuff that came up. The grief, the karmic pain, the memories of loss. Now think about how much freer we are since we faced the ghosts of the past. We may not be able to take it to the bank, but, then again, the whole idea of banks is coming to an end, anyway. If we absolutely feel the need to get out and party with our fellow spooks and spirits this Halloween, try and keep it lightâ€”unless folks like the idea of skeletons falling out of the closet. Personal power struggles often ensue with this type of conjunction; and not just with each other, but in the form of an internal clash. Our minds are not quite in balance and the Moon is reminding us of that. After this, we finally get on with the New Age of Aquarius. It turns out that no one was meant to win the rat-race aside from a few satanic rats. Now that the world is waking up from such a painful, impossible dream, it will be easy to fix the real problem. All we need to do is start loving each other again without any need for a pat on the back. Or a cash register. On November 7th, Jupiter will go retrograde until early spring. It signals the end of the Year of the Flood. That is going to be a welcome relief for those of us who have been inundated with tears. But, before we let the bells ring out and the banners fly, we still need to get through the rest of the month of Scorpio. More and more of us are turning our backs on the idea of being wealthy. People want to be comfortable, yes, but not rich; we want to feel safe, of course, but not at the expense of everyone else. Also, we have learned the true meaning of spiritual humility. Now that Jupiter is retrograde, we can stop and have a look at these things. A few days later, Neptune goes direct, too. When Neptune entered Pisces in early , He stirred up psychic powers in everyone. Well, back in June, the Dream Master took some time off from sprinkling our lives with all-purpose pixie dust so we could clean out the karmic pipes. Now that Neptune is starting to move forward, and our subconscious is all squeaky-clean, we can get back to ushering in a new era of Peace, Love, and Understanding. I know this year has been very hard, and many of us are now inside-out, upside-down, and facing the other way, but I promise next monthâ€™ and next yearâ€™ is going to be much easier. On November 17th at Unfortunately, in order to get to this spiritual point in our lives, we had to go through a serious financial loss. We can find happiness in the simple things. Because of that, we have become more free than we could ever imagine while attached to our possessions. This Full Moon will focus us on our homes, families, neighbors, and loved ones. For example, homemade gifts like crafts, poetry, and preserves. Likewise, the Full Moon in Taurus will help us remember that true beauty does not come from a clearance sale, but from within. The search for Unity, something we lost ages ago, can be found by reaching out to others during times of crisis. This song expresses that beautifully. It reminds us that we are not as alone as we often think. Hardship inspires greatness in us; and when things are at their darkest, people really start to shine. Feel free to send along your sun-sign and a smiley, too. All new guides come out a few days before the sun moves into a new sign. I was messing around with my address book, trying to get my private contacts separated from the guide mailing list, and I think I may have sent a few addresses to that great recycle bin in the sky. If you are still missing your email from me this month, please send in a new request. It looked as bright as Venus, only it moved slowly over the neighborhood. This is quite normal for me. But, I wanted to point out something else, something that would seem far from normal for most people: I went outside to get some fresh air before starting to write, and there they were. Stuff like the pain and suffering of innocence. They often but not always light up and then fade out on their way to who knows where. I hope all of you are finding some cosmic reassurance of your own, or, at least some comfort with a lover or a good friend. If you do find yourself on your own, I hope I have helped put your mind at ease. We are not alone. We never have been. We have some very powerful friends here; and though the visitors work in mysterious ways, they do love us very much. My partner kept having to bundle me up and put me back in bed. I really do love writing these guides. We have guests coming soon and I need to put another loaf of bread in the oven. I still need to do up our home with leaves, lights, and garlands, and set out a few more chairs for the fairies, as well. Tis Halloween and all.

Plot[edit] Francesco, the spoiled son of Pietro Bernardone, a wealthy textile merchant, returns from fighting in the war between Assisi and Perugia a changed man. Struck by a feverish illness that has forced him to leave the war, Francesco lies on his bed tormented by visions of his past when he was a boisterous, arrogant youth. During a long recovery process, he slowly finds God in poverty, chastity and obedience , experiencing a physical and spiritual renewal. Healthy again, Francesco returns to his normal life as a rich young man. However, to the consternation of his parents, he begins to spend most of his time surrounded by nature, flowers, trees, animals and poetry as he becomes more and more reluctant to resume his prior lifestyle. Francesco wanders into the basement where the family business is located. He feels the heat and humidity of the dye vats, passing through colorful lots of drying cloth, to see the workers with their families laboring in the heat without much rest. Then he throws the costly textiles out of the window to the poor gathered below. When his father sees the loss, Francesco invites him to join in throwing the cloth out the window so he can know the joy of being free of worldly possessions. Lovingly, Francesco renounces all worldly possessions and his middle-class family including the name "Bernardone", removes his brilliant clothing and leaves Assisi, naked and free from his past, to live in the beauties of nature as an ascetic to enjoy a simple life as a man of God. He gradually gains a following from the sons of the wealthy, who begin to minister among the poor and the suffering. The bishop supports Francesco, since he is rebuilding a church without pay and performing the works of mercy Christ demands of His followers. During a rainy afternoon, Francesco and his friends separate to beg food from the families of Assisi. Seeking forgiveness, he begins to recite the Beatitudes, causing his mother much anguish while Pietro pretends not to hear, refusing to be reconciled with their son. Clare , a beautiful young woman also from a wealthy family, serves and cares for lepers of the community. She joins the brothers in their life of poverty. This scene, introduced for dramatic effect, is unhistorical. That people can hate so much causes Francesco much sorrow. He blames himself but cannot understand what he has done wrong. In Rome, Francesco is stunned by the enormous wealth and power shown in the clothing of the papal court surrounding the throne of St. The cardinals, bishops and abbots of the papal court are insulted at having the words of Jesus thrown in their faces. Francesco and his friends are expelled. Finally accepting his admiration toward Francesco, Paolo decides to join them. Francesco tries to protect Paolo, saying that he is not one of them, but his friend insists on joining the friars, convincing Francesco of the sincerity of his conversion, and they are put out with the others. On his throne Pope Innocent, seemingly waking from a dream, orders Francesco and his friends to be brought back. The Pope addresses Francesco: This is the man who will speak to the poor, and bring them back to us. The film finishes with the sight of Francesco slowly walking alone into the distance in the countryside as Donovan sings "Brother Sun and Sister Moon.

As of our distribution time, two suspects in the Boston Marathon bombing had been identified. After a robbery last night at a Cambridge 7-Eleven and a shootout near the campus of MIT, one of the two suspects identified Thursday is dead and one remains at large, as the entire Boston metro area is under siege by the equivalent of an army of tanks, helicopters, SWAT teams and busloads of police. Meanwhile the world is watching the situation develop on live television. Photo from page one of New York Times website today. One suspect, Tamerlan Tsarnaev, age 26, shown Thursday in surveillance video wearing the dark hat was killed. Some reports say he was shot; others say he was run over by his own brother Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, age 19, who may now be in a standoff with police. Who exactly is in the house that the police have surrounded is unknown. CNN was reporting that police had asked for a Russian interpreter. Tamerlan was found to have an improvised explosive device IED strapped to his body. Other people have reportedly been taken into custody. The astrology of the bombing indicated a rapidly developing situation that would get weirder as the week developed, and is not quite done. The chart actually comes to a peak on Saturday. This is described in the current Planet Waves FM. The press is reporting that the house where the bombs were made may have been located, and there are reports of a bomb squad van in the area. But the chart with Neptune looming on the western horizon, representing the environment also warns that very little information coming out is trustworthy. This is a chart that says slippery when wet. Chart for Boston Marathon bombing shows Neptune on the western horizon blue trident on the horizontal line, far right, cautioning against drawing conclusions without plenty of confirmation. The unfolding scenario is described in the 8th house to the right side, halfway up the chart. In an unprecedented development, the towns of Belmont, Newton, Watertown, Allston, Brighton and Cambridge are currently under lockdown, with more than , residents being asked to stay in their homes. A door-to-door search for the surviving suspect is underway. That search is apparently expanding. All public transit services in the Boston area are shut down by order of the Massachusetts governor. Businesses are being asked not to open. Logan Airport is currently open but under heavy guard. This latest development emerged Thursday night after the robbery of a 7-Eleven, a brief hostage situation and the shooting of an MIT security officer. After their photos were broadcast around the world yesterday, the two brothers wanted for the marathon bombing made a run for it, beginning with the attempted robbery of the 7-Eleven, then engaged police in an extended firefight, throwing IEDs out of the windows of their car. This brings to a peak a week that began with the bombing of the marathon, and continued with the attempted ricin poisoning of Pres. Obama and the arrest of a suspect, Paul Kevin Curtis. Senate voted down every gun regulation that was proposed in the aftermath of the Newtown, Connecticut, shooting in December. Later on Wednesday there was an explosion at a fertilizer plant in the town of West, Texas, which leveled part of the town and resulted in numerous fatalities. Thursday afternoon, the FBI released photos of the two Boston Marathon bombing suspects, and by 10 pm the pair had made their existence known, attempting to rob the 7-Eleven, shooting the MIT security officer and engaging police in a firefight. The astrology suggests that the story still has some strange developments in store. An aspect prominent in the chart of the Boston Marathon Mercury conjunct Uranus is not exact until Saturday, followed by Mercury square Pluto. However, I made a mistake reading the astrology: The result was a large release of energy, with these developments emerging from behind the scenes. That also means that Mercury is moving through the Uranus-Pluto square it will be conjunct Uranus on Saturday and square Pluto on Sunday. The Uranus-Pluto square is the longstanding aspect in the background of our lives now. Mercury is that planet that ruled the Virgo ascendant of the Boston Marathon bombing chart. Please watch the Planet Waves blog and our Facebook pages for additional details and analysis as they become available.

Environmentalists fear chemicals used to crack the rock endanger the environment and threaten groundwater. They should have very strict controls. The Department of Energy should do it Where is your personal Cancer antenna? Are they functioning as well as they could, or is there room for improvement? What do you think? Who or what do you love the most? If you are a Sun sign Cancer then hey this stuff is easy right? Well yes, but to a point, even a sensual, emotionally aware Crab needs to have a hug and have its own demons shooed away. If your own Venus is in Cancer, lovely, a time to welcome in new arrivals. Robert Canteroli a member of the Italian senate and a member of the anti-immigration Northern League party likened her to an orangutan. When Venus moves in with the Lion in Leo we were ready to switch our desires towards a more outward focus but very much on ourselves contrasting very much with Venus in Cancer. As always its been emotional.
