FREE Present Simple vs. Present Continuous Worksheets The transition from teaching one verb tense to teaching another isn't always a clear-cut process. While it's easy for most students to distinguish, say, the future simple tense from the past simple, it's not always as easy for them to tell two similar verb tenses apart.

I find that the past verb tense is easier to teach to little ones while using a timeline. I put a super simple timeline at the top of the whiteboard and simply put Past, Present, and Future over a number line. So many text books teach the time tenses showing the present first. These teach the past, present, and future verb tenses as well as the simple, perfect, and continuous or progressive in all three of past, present, and future. These are also excellent manuscript or cursive handwriting worksheets. Some of these worksheets have as many as two to eight worksheets to choose or to print for several assignments or daily practice. Each is available in both manuscript and cursive writing copy work. What is a verb tense? Remember what a verb is: A verb is a word that expresses action, state, or being in a sentence. Tenses are just one facet of the meanings that verbs can give. Simply add the suffix -ed for regular verbs. These are the regular past tense verbs. There are eight pages of past verb tenses worksheets in these downloads. Simple Past Tense Sentences in Cursive 2. 5. Present Continuous Tense Worksheets. Present Continuous Tense (Present Progressive Tense) - The present continuous tense of a verb expresses action or state that is happening, continuing, in the present, now and is formed with some form of the verb be and adding the suffix -ing to the regular verb.

The students are divided into pairs and each pair is given a set of picture cards. The students shuffle the cards and spread them out face down on the desk. The aim of the game is to find matching pairs of cards. The first student turns over a card and makes a present continuous sentence about the picture, e. The student then turns over another card. If the activity on the second card matches with the first card, the student makes a present continuous sentence about the second picture, e. The student then keeps the pair of cards and has another turn. The other student then turns over a card and so on. This continues until all the cards have been matched. The student with the most cards at the end of the game is the winner. The class is divided into groups of four. Each student is given a game board and each group is given a set of picture cards. The students shuffle the picture cards and place them face down in a pile. The aim of the game is to be the first player to match all the pictures on their game board with picture cards from the pile. The first player begins by taking the top picture card from the pile, without showing it to anyone. Then, the next player picks up a picture card and so on. The first player to complete their board with matching pictures wins the game. The class is divided into pairs and each student is given a copy of the worksheet. One student goes first and starts thinking about one of the people on the worksheet. Once the student knows what the person is doing, he or she goes on to ask about what the person is wearing, e. If the student guesses correctly, he or she wins a point and the person is crossed off the worksheet. The students then swap roles. This continues until all the people have been crossed off the worksheet. The student with the most points at the end of the game is the winner. One student from Team A comes up to the board. The student is given a present continuous sentence card. The student then draws the sentence on the board. The student is not allowed to speak or write anything. Team A then has one minute to try to guess the sentence. Teams must guess the exact words on the card to win. The first student to say the sentence on the card wins a point for their team. Then, a student from Team B comes to the board and so on. The game continues with teams taking it in turns to draw sentences until all the cards have been used. The team with the most points at the end of the game wins. Positives and Negatives ESL Present Continuous Worksheet - Reading and Writing Activity - Elementary - 20 minutes In this present continuous worksheet activity, students use 20 verbs to complete positive and negative present continuous sentences. Each student is given a copy of the worksheet. Students begin by finding 20 verbs in a word search and writing them in the spaces provided on the worksheet. After that, the students use the verbs to complete ten present continuous sentences. The first part of each sentence is negative and the second part is positive. When the students have finished, the answers are checked with the class. Each student is given a copy of the two worksheets. Students begin by reading how to use the present continuous tense and reviewing the structure. Students then read a set of situations and write down what they would say in the present continuous tense. After that, students complete a set of voice mail messages by writing verbs in brackets in the present continuous. Students then write their own message about what is happening in the class right now. To finish off, students play a guessing game where they draw present continuous sentences on the board for other students to guess. What are they doing? ESL Present Continuous Worksheet - Writing, Listening and Speaking Activity - Elementary - 20 minutes This present continuous worksheet is ideal for teaching students how to ask what people are doing and reply using the present continuous tense. To begin, the students are presented with twelve pictures of people doing everyday activities. The students write present continuous sentences, describing what the people in the pictures are doing. After that, the students work with a partner and practice asking and answering questions about what the people in the pictures are doing. Finally, students take it in turns to ask and answer questions about what other people in the class are doing. Each pair of students is given a copy of the game board, a dice and counters. Students take it in turns to roll the dice and move their counter along the board. When a student lands on a picture square, their partner asks them a question about what is happening in the picture, e. If the student does this successfully, they stay on the square. The first student to reach the finish wins the game. The aim of the game is for the students in the teams to guess present continuous sentences from mimes. One team goes first and chooses a team member to do the first mime. The chosen student comes to the front of the class and is given a present continuous sentence card. When a member on either team thinks they know what the student is doing, they call out their answer by making a present continuous sentence, e. Team members must say the exact words on the mime card to win. The first student to guess the sentence wins a point for their team. Then, a student from the other team comes to the front of the class and so on. The game continues with teams taking it in turns to mime a sentence until all the cards have been used. Man on the Roof ESL Present Continuous Activity - Reading, Writing, Listening and Speaking - Pre-intermediate - 25 minutes In this intriguing present continuous activity, students write present continuous sentences in English and their native language and then try to find matching translations that other students have written. The students are asked to imagine that there is a man on the roof. The students then write ten reasons why he is on the roof in the present continuous tense on their worksheet, e. The students write the first sentence in English. The third is in English, and so on. When the students have finished writing, they cut their sentences into strips. The students move around the classroom reading their sentences to each other. The student with the most accurate translations or semi-translations wins. Afterwards, the students go through the present continuous sentences and matching translations as a class and discuss any differences in meaning. Present Continuous Party ESL Present Continuous Activity - Writing, Listening and Speaking - Pre-intermediate - 35 minutes In this present continuous activity, students assume the identity of someone at a party and talk about their current activities. The students are divided into groups of eight and each student is given a role card. The students begin by answering questions on their card about what they are doing at the party and how they are feeling using the present continuous. When the students have completed their role cards, each student is given a copy of the worksheet. The students then walk around and speak to the other partygoers in their group. The students ask each other the questions from the role card and write the answers down in a chart on their worksheet using the third person singular. When everyone has finished, students report back to the class on the people they met at the party. The aim of the game is for a player to get his or her teammates to say a present continuous sentence on a card, but the player cannot say the sentence or use the three words on the card. The class is divided into two teams A and B. One player from Team A comes to the front of the class and is given a taboo card. The player then tries to describe the present continuous sentence to his or her team, without saying the sentence or using the three words on the card. If Team A successfully guesses the sentence within two minutes, they win a point. If they are unsuccessful, Team B has one chance to guess the sentence and steal the point. Then, a player from Team B comes to the front and is given a card and so on. Teams continue taking it in turns to play until all the cards have been used. ESL Present Continuous Board Game - Reading, Writing, Listening and Speaking Activity - Pre-intermediate - 50 minutes In this rewarding present continuous activity, students play a board game where they try to recognize errors in present continuous affirmative and negative sentences. The class is divided into groups of four and each student is given a copy of the worksheet. Working alone, the students write six present continuous affirmative and negative sentences. Three sentences must be grammatically correct and three must contain errors. The four students then put their sentences together to come up with a definitive set of 24 sentences, marked right and wrong. A pair from one group joins with a pair from another group to make two opposing pairs teams. Each pair of opposing teams is given a copy of the game board, four counters and a dice. The students put their counters on square number one. The first student to throw a six wins the chance for their team to play first. A player from the winning team throws the dice and moves their counter along the board.
