Thursday, 14 December Describe an interesting place in your hometown. You can make some notes to help you if you wish. For my job I currently live in the capital city of our country which is It has been more than 5 years since I left my hometown and yet this is the town where my heart belongs to. I will always remember the days and places where I spent my childhood and teenage, the golden years of my life. The name of my hometown is This town will always be special to me, no matter where I go, how far I go. There are many interesting places if I consider from different perspectives in my hometown that I can recall now. Out of these places, the rail station, which is located at the southern corner of our city is the one I would like to talk about. In my childhood, the rail station in my hometown was the most mysterious and interesting place for us. We, as children, were not allowed to enter the main premises where the train stopped and this prohibition made us more curious about this place. This is still a place which is quite interesting for me. This is possibly because this rail station is the entry and exit point for me- to and from my hometown. When the train drops me in this station, I feel a sensation of being home. This place has always been a mystery to me and it is still a place full of happiness, sadness and enigma. From two other perspectives, this place is quite interesting to me. One- the surrounding view of this station is quite spectacular and would give someone an impression that he is standing on a tall mountain and can see the green fields below all around him. The view gives the first impression of the natural beauty this area has. In fact, I have never seen any other train station which is located in such a higher place and gives such a beautiful view. Second- the different types of people who come here each day is an interesting thing to observe. Some people come here to sell numerous products, some wait for their relatives or family members to arrive, some to see off their relatives or friends, and finally, some are part of the administrative office of the rail authority. In my opinion, this is an interesting hub for people of different ages, places and purposes. If I am to suggest a foreign tourist about the interesting places of my hometown, I would suggest him to start with this rail station. This rail station will give a very good idea of our town, people and places to be there. To me, this is the gateway to a beautiful town where my heart belongs to. I live in New York with my parents. There are a good number of interesting places to see and visit here. But the New York Public Library is more interesting to me than any other places. I am a citizen of the USA by birth but my parents are not. They came here in search of living from Larissa in Greece during the s. They have been living for around 36 years in this city. After my birth and I got matured enough, they took me to different interesting places to visit in the New York City, and these places are really interesting. But being an introvert, I disliked the crowds and the public library appeared to be more interesting to me than other places. The place is filled with books on numerous issues, magazines, documents and many other things. The classics available in the library were my favourite. Going to the library is easier for me. In fact, this is not far away from my residence. The New York Public Library is only a minute walk from my home. It remains open from 10 am to 8 pm, except the weekends. Usually, I go there in the evening and read books or novels until the library is closed. Besides, the library is accessible from the other parts of the city. The people who want to visit the library can reach here using several transportation modes. They can reach the library by taxi, metro or by their private cars. But the people who live nearby, like me, come here mostly on foot. The New York Public Library is a great place to read. But the people who come here are not readers always. Some of them are researchers, while some others may be historians or musicians. Actually, the library is visited by a wide range of people. Basically, the library comes with the reading facilities. But there is also the scope to check the reference books, peep on the music directory or crosscheck any history. Besides, the reading rooms are well expanded and the readers have ample opportunities to use the books and references after their needs. But they have to be careful with the books. Silence among the readers while reading books is expected there. Reading books may appear boring to many but it is very interesting to me. I love reading books. The books help us to know the unknown and unseen. The experiences of past thousand years have been preserved in books in words. So, when I read them, it appears that I am travelling through time! But every place is not suitable for reading and it requires a very special environment. Hence, I think a library is a nice place to read. At the same time, it is an interesting place as an enriched collection of books are available together. In fact, it is impossible for an individual to collect a part of the books of this library in his entire life. So, I find more interest in reading books in a calm place and the New York Public Library is a place I would recommend to a tourist. The seaside in Brighton attracts me most. People usually spend their time together and enjoy the sunset scene. This is an interesting place to me because I can have the chance to enjoy the natural beauty. Moreover, I love to walk to the beachside and the waves wash my feet. Often I come here in the early morning to watch the sunrise. Considering all the matters, this is an interesting place to me. Disneyland is an amusement park in California. I need to use my car to reach there because this is a bit far away from my home. People come here and enjoy themselves by taking rides. This is an interesting place because it allows people to get relaxed. In fact, people pass hectic days and they do have less time for relaxation. This is a theme park made with attractive rides and features to make people feel relaxed. Considering the matters, I think this is really an interesting place. The Eiffel Tower appears an interesting place to me. I can go there simply by walking. People all over the world come here and take their photos. In fact, this is a perfect place for photography. A good number of people come here every day and take their photos. This is an interesting place in Paris because the world admires the Eiffel Tower. This has become a global landmark for Paris. And I also love spending time near the structure. Considering everything, this appears an interesting place to me. I did not have an idea that the Black Forest in Germany would attract so many people. In fact, this is a nice place to visit and I need to take a car ride to reach this mountainous region. People come here for relaxation. They take spas from the resorts and feel relaxed. The Black Forest is an interesting place indeed for its natural features. The entire place is naturally decorated with lake, flower gardens, wooded hills which have made it a great place in reality. I love to visit Goa and this is not far from my residence. In fact, this is only a minute walk from here. People all around the globe come here because this is a perfect place for entertainment. The water activities are the most attractive ones. The place appears interesting to me too for its natural resources. I love the sea beach mostly and often take a bath. Sometimes, I come here with my friends to have a party night.

Some Place Quite Unknown is a novel written as a memoir about a woman of middle age suddenly thrown into a psychological crisis. It is a novel about stories - the.

There are about 10 million reasons why someone might not talk very much, running the gamut from being shy, to hating you, to having sold their voice to a witch in return for legs. Even quiet people themselves are guilty of assigning their own traits to all other quiet people in the world. They just lack confidence, or are really bad with words, but if you just reached out a helping hand and gave them a gentle push, you could rescue them from their silent prison, from which they must constantly look out in misery at normal people talking and enjoying themselves. First, many people are pretty comfortable with not talking very much, for various reasons other than having low self-confidence or bad social skills. Or at least they are comfortable until someone makes a point of how little they are talking and tries to awkwardly force them into spitting out more words for the sake of words. Getty "So I hear you work in an accounting office! Tell me all about it! I bet you have a Who knew you were such a wild man! That would snap me out of it! Which is a whole new set of misconceptions, like Getty "Sir, your wife looks so young I thought she was your daughter at first! There are embarrassing faux pas blunders among both quiet and chatty people, and there are tactful wits in both groups too. I learned very quickly that while there is nothing wrong with sex, that is not the place and volume to proclaim it. Talkative people might find out by trial and error, but quiet people can find out just as well by watching talkative people trying and erring. Getty Only while you are practicing. In actual situations this is considered socially inappropriate. Getty Just saying, when you see those old people in the park doing the tai chi, you should give them a wide berth. And there are lots of other reasons that people of varying confidence levels might not feel like talking much. Just off the bat: If that person who was giving you monosyllabic responses a moment ago is suddenly up on stage giving a dynamic speech, maybe they were busy rehearsing their speech in their head while talking to you. Or maybe they hate you. This is one of the reasons more outgoing people try to "help" quiet people -- because they confuse it with being withdrawn and antisocial, which most people would agree is generally unhealthy. It can be hard to see sometimes in the non-partying, stay-at-home types, but often they depend on friends just as much as anyone else, but just a few close ones, as opposed to keeping up with dozens of people. So parties make introverts tired, even if they like everyone there and are having a good time. Getty Well, or at least it would require some bending of the space-time continuum. Needless to say, a lot of quiet people are introverts, and they do suffer from social energy drain.

September 29, Sometimes freelancing is a little too free. Wearing your pajamas for days in a row and not brushing your teeth before noon can be delicious luxuries at first, but it gets old after a while. Be sure to check out WiFi connectivity or be prepared to work offline in some of these locations. And scope out a backup location to take any important phone calls – no one likes to get shushed! Library Writers love being surrounded by endless shelves of inspiration. Libraries make great work spaces, and often have quiet study rooms or work spaces you can reserve for free. Plus, the WiFi is usually speedy and plenty of resources and librarians are on hand if you come across a tricky research question. But for a few hours of productivity, libraries are a top option. While caffeine is a great aid to churn out page after page of top-notch narrative, coffee shops also offer snacks, meals and juices to keep you full and productive. Limit your time to an hour or two unless the cafe is really slow in that case, ask if they mind you sticking around. Sometimes noisy places can even help you write. Public park Public parks offer space to get your nature fix and keep up with your work. Consider bringing your own chair or blanket since picnic tables can be a little hard to sit at after a while. Porch Why not head outside and get some work time in right on your own porch? Be mindful of any potentially distracting neighbors who may be looking for a good chat, but otherwise porches offer great convenience. You can typically adjust your WiFi router so you still have service outside, and when you get hungry, thirsty or need a restroom break, all you have to do is walk back inside. Many coworking spaces offer perks like printing, conference rooms and other amenities that can be a big draw for freelancers and small businesses 6. Museum If you love a nearby museum, consider springing for an annual membership and using the museum as your workspace from time to time. Sitting on a bench near inspiring paintings or soaking in the natural history on a break can offer a brain refresh and give you an opportunity to get some work done in a new setting. Not a member, or just visiting a new city for a few days? Watching little fish or very big fish make their way through a tank of water is incredibly calming. With a hurried freelance life, being able to work for a few hours in a calming and peaceful environment is a great way to get some work done. Aim for late afternoon, after field-trip time. Also, see if you can score an inexpensive annual membership if you plan on stopping by often. Shopping Mall Head over to your local mall and whip out your laptop for a change of scenery. Find a nice bench or cushy seat or head to the food court to set up shop at a table. Some malls, including the Mall of America , even offer free WiFi. This means you can connect to WiFi just about anywhere within these areas, giving you the freedom to roam and stay connected or find a nice little corner bench to get a little work done without maxing out your data plan. Of course, be sure to check connectivity and be mindful of security on such a public WiFi system. Bus or train station Watch passengers come and go as you grab a seat in a bus or train station to catch up on some work. Bring a treat or lunch to share and designate time for chatting and catching up when you can both take a break. Next time your friend needs a change of scenery, inviting them over to your place could help you both be a bit more productive. Botanical gardens Spending time in nature is proven to boost creativity. Settle into a botanical garden and get some work done while taking time to get some exercise and literally smell some flowers. If you hate cold winter weather, an indoor garden can be the perfect place to find a taste of spring. On a boat or ferry Head out onto the open water to work. Many cities, such as San Francisco and New York, offer commuter ferries, and many commuter-type watercraft have plenty of benches or tables. On a train Trains are one of the most romantic places to work. Many Amtrak trains offer seating with tables, work space, and even outlets to keep your electronics charged as you travel. From your camper van Equip your camper van with a table and way to charge your devices, and you have a mobile office you can take anywhere. Go camping or just drive it to a local park to enjoy a comfortable and inviting mobile work space. By the pool While beaches are not ideal places to work, pools make much better places for freelancers to get some sun and catch up on work. Be sure to stay far enough away from the water to dodge errant splashes, and secure your valuables if you jump in for a dip. Seuss found a lot of his inspiration at the local zoo. Consider heading to your zoo to find a quiet spot to appreciate the animals, inspire your creativity and get some work done. Call ahead or check online to see if there are any admission discounts. Local universities Colleges and universities are set up for learning and studying, and every campus has more than a few hidden gems when it comes to work space. International coworking spaces While the U. Hubud is just one example of a popular international coworking space. Located in Ubud, Bali, this space offers digital nomads and dreamers a place to connect and get down to business. But spending time right by a client can be a great way to keep you in the forefront of their mind the next time a big project comes up.

But given its size, the country is amazingly diverse. So do yourself a favor – spend a few days in the capital and then head further afield. By Jim Ferri For too many years Portugal was given short shrift by Iberian-bound travelers who focused almost entirely on neighboring Spain. It was a time when scores of upscale hotels and hip new restaurants took root in the city. As a consequence, the capital that was once an afterthought became a star on the European tourist circuit. Amazingly Diverse From the massive, dramatic cliffs that buffer the Atlantic in the south, to the soft rolling hills and vineyards of the Duoro in the north, Portugal is an amazingly diverse country. Get off the beaten track and roam about remote Estremadura or through the cork forests and olive groves of Alentejo. And for a real adventure head to the Portuguese islands of Madeira or the Azores. Lisbon as seen from St. In this heart of the city, is the famous pedestrian-only street Rua Augusta. Streets that run parallel to it identify the various tradesmen and craftsmen who have done business there for centuries. Regrettably, the original Baixa was destroyed by the great earthquake of It has a uniform and rectangular layout that makes no distinction between the various social strata that live in the area. It escaped the destruction of the earthquake and the ensuing tidal wave. It was once the most upscale residential area of the city back in Moorish times. Go up it on Tram 28, an old wooden trolley that climbs the steep, narrow cobblestone streets. They seem to run off in every direction but you can easily walk down. Portugal DK guides are very good both for the amount of information they contain and also for the illustrations that help guide you to a better understanding of the things you see. I use them often. Lonely Planet Portugal Lonely Planet produces an excellent series of guides with a loyal following of travelers. Lagos and Sagres on the east end of the Algarve date back to Roman times. But it was in the 15th century that Sagres achieved importance with the frequent presence of Prince Henry the Navigator. It was also a sacred place to the Romans who called it Promontorium Sacrum. Set at the top of the Monte da Pena, the palace was built on the site of an old monastery belonging to the Order of St. After falling in love with Sintra, he decided to buy the convent and the surrounding land to build a summer palace for the royal family. This resulted in a somewhat unusual mixture of architectural styles. Moreover, he also established an English-style woodland park with a wide variety of exotic trees. Good Tours In Portugal Lisbon: Joao Paulo Porto The gateway to the north, Porto is both the city that provided a nation with a name and a fortified wine known worldwide as Port. The area has a mix of ancient narrow streets and alleyways with centuries-old buildings. Couples stroll along the Douro, as a hint of music drifts from the bars and cafes, and the smell of coffee and grilled fish fills the air. Overlooking the city and the Mondego River, the University is a rambling building, constructed around a central courtyard. The little colored ribbons on their briefcases denoting the school they attend. I came across a group of young female students in their capes on a downtown street singing acapella for passersby. Funchal, its capital, is a walkable city with a nice harbor and a cathedral more than years old. Originally, this was a fast means of transportation to central Funchal for people living up the steep hillside in Monte. Presently, the toboggans continue to attract tourists who want to sled down a narrow, winding street to the city below. The one-mile downhill journey takes about 10 minutes, sometimes reaching a speed of 30 miles an hour. You can take a cable car back up.
