During this time, the football team was known as "the Parsons", due to the large number of theology students on the team. For the season, Morrison was replaced by J. Burton Rix continued to coach the team until the season, in which he was replaced by W. Cunningham and Victor Kelly, his co-coaches that season, as the team went on to lose six games. For the and seasons, Morrison focused on the backfield and ends, while Freeland focused on the linemen. At the time, most teams utilized the forward pass five to six times in one game, while SMU did so between 30 and 40 times. In the season, the Mustangs compiled a 6-3-1 record. In the season, the SMU Mustangs achieved a perfect 9-0 record, winning their first conference football title in school history. By , the team began playing their home games at Ownby Stadium. The first Homecoming game was also played in , resulting in a 14-13 victory over Texas Christian University. The team continued to have winning seasons until the season. The Mustangs won their second conference title in , compiling an 8-0-1 record, and a third conference title in , compiling a 9-0-1 record. A national championship [edit] Morrison was replaced by Matty Bell in . In his first season, Bell led the Mustangs to 12-1 record. During this season, the Mustangs were ranked number one in the nation. Wilson caught the ball at the five and rolled into the endzone as the Mustangs held on to win, 20-14, and earned a trip to the Rose Bowl. Winning their fourth conference title, the Mustangs lost the Rose Bowl to Stanford 0-7. Despite this, the SMU Mustangs were selected by the Dickinson System as national champions, their first football national championship in school history. The Mustangs had three more winning seasons from to . In his three seasons as head coach, Stewart compiled an overall record of 10-18-2. Bell returned as head coach for the season. Walker did not play for the season due to serving in the United States Army, yet re-enrolled at SMU and rejoined the football team for the season. The Mustangs posted a 9-0-2 record in , winning their sixth Southwest Conference title. Walker threw a yard touchdown pass and scored on two-yard run in this game. During the season, the Mustangs won their seventh conference title, posting a 9-1-1 record. The team played in the Cotton Bowl Classic once more, defeating the Oregon Webfoots, who were led by quarterback Norm Van Brocklin, 21-13, making it their first victory in a bowl game in school history. Additionally, the Mustangs permanently moved to the Cotton Bowl for their home games this season, after playing only limited numbers of games in that stadium in years previous. The team posted a 5-4-1 record. Over the course of his career at SMU, Walker rushed for 1, yards, passed for 1, yards, scored points, punted for a . Bell left the head coaching position at SMU with a 79-40-8 record, including three Southwest Conference titles, a bowl game victory, and a national championship. Russell previously served as quarterbacks and running backs coach from to , and is attributed to luring Doak Walker away from the University of Texas. In three seasons as head coach, Russell compiled a 13-15-2 record. After a strong first season, in which the Mustangs were ranked number one in the nation, the team suffered two losing seasons. Becoming increasingly under fire, Russell resigned as head coach after the season. Quarterback Fred Benners led the Mustangs to perhaps their greatest win of the decade when he completed 22 of 42 passes for yards to beat Notre Dame, 27-20, in Notre Dame, Indiana on October 13, . Benners connected on TD passes of 57, 37, 31 and four yards to four different receivers as the Mustangs beat the Fighting Irish in what was one of the highlights in a 3-6-1 season. Woodard compiled a 19-20-1 record in his four seasons as head coach for SMU, resigning after two consecutive losing seasons. During the season, wide receiver Raymond Berry was elected as a co-captain, despite only catching 11 passes for yards, winning All-Southwest Conference and Academic All-American honors, and later played in the NFL for the Baltimore Colts. Woodard was replaced by Bill Meek in , who was coming off of a Missouri Valley Conference title-winning season with the Houston Cougars football team. In five seasons with SMU, Meek compiled a 17-29-4 record. The season provided the SMU football program with one of its most memorable games when the Mustangs hosted fourth-ranked the Navy Midshipmen and its quarterback, Roger Staubach, on October 11, , at the Cotton Bowl. On its way to a 4-7 season, SMU was given little chance to beat the Midshipmen. Little-known sophomore John Roderick rushed for yards on 11 carries and scored on touchdown runs of 45 and two yards for the Mustangs. Trailing 28-26 with 2: On the next play, Roderick took a pitchout 23 yards to the After a pass interference penalty against Navy put the ball on the one-yard line, Gannon plowed over the right tackle for the winning touchdown with 2: Despite a losing record in , the Mustangs played in the Sun Bowl , their first since the season, against the Oregon Webfoots , losing 14-7 When Fry took the job at SMU, he was promised that he would be allowed to recruit black athletes. Fry and the school wanted to make certain that the player they recruited was not only a good athlete but also a good student and citizen and someone with the mental toughness to be one of the first black players in conference history. Fry found that player in Jerry LeVias. LeVias was a great player, an exceptional student, and mentally tough. He had never had discipline problems and was deeply religious. LeVias was the perfect player for SMU. LeVias became the first black player signed to a football scholarship in the Southwest Conference. In , LeVias made his debut, one week after John Hill Westbrook of Baylor became the first black player to play for a conference team. Fry received abuse for recruiting a black player to SMU in the form of hate mail and threatening phone calls, but he downplayed the treatment, because the harassment of LeVias was much, much worse. During the season, Hayden Fry lifted SMU back to national prominence, when SMU was ranked ninth in the nation and won its first conference championship in 18 years, their seventh overall. Fry also won Conference Coach of the Year. John LaGrone , who earned conference honors from 1966, was the first Mustang player to be selected as both an All-American and Academic All-American when he was honored following the season. SMU and Oklahoma combined to score 35 points in the fourth quarter. SMU stopped Oklahoma short of a potential game-winning two-point conversion with 1: LeVias was selected as an all-conference player as a senior for the third time. Not even a three-game winning streak could save Fry. In his 11 seasons at SMU, Fry compiled a 49-66-1 record. Coming off of a 7-4 season with Oklahoma State , Smith had two consecutive 6-4-1 seasons with SMU, with his final season resulting in a 4-7 record. In three seasons with SMU, Smith compiled a 16-15-2 record. Smith was replaced by Ron Meyer in Coach Meyer was infamous for his recruiting tactics, including visits each year to the homes of 70 or more of the top recruits per year. His most notable recruits were future NFL running backs Eric Dickerson and Craig James before the season, as both their high school teams went 15-0 and won state championships. Combined with blue chip running back Charles Waggoner, the three backs were nicknamed the "Pony Express" running attack and shredded opposing defenses in the option offense led by quarterback Lance McIlhenny. Southern Methodist University football scandal In , SMU football became the first, and currently only, football program in collegiate athletic history to receive the " death penalty " for repeat violation of NCAA rules; that is, having a sports program fully terminated for a determined amount of time. It later emerged that a slush fund had been used to pay players as early as the mids, and athletic officials had known about it as early as SMU was eligible for the "death penalty" because it had been placed on probation in for recruiting violations. Since many potential student-athletes were poor, boosters would induce them to sign with SMU by offering them payments and expense coverage. Several key boosters and administration officials determined that it would not only be unethical to cut off those payments, but also potentially problematic as some boosters were contractually obligated to pay the athletes for the duration of their time at SMU. There was also the real potential of disgruntled football players "blowing the whistle" on SMU should the payments not continue. When the sanctions were handed down, SMU had three players - all seniors about to graduate - receiving payments. The decimation of the program meant that Gregg was left with an undersized and underweight lineup. The Mustangs struggled for 20 years to recover from the effects of the scandal. Coach Gregg compiled a 3-19 record in his two seasons. The Mustangs had three more head coaches and only one winning season through the completion of the season. In , the Mustangs again compiled a regular season record of 7-5, with a 6-2 in-conference record to earn their first chance at winning a conference title in 26 years, securing a berth in the Conference USA Championship game. SMU ended the Jones Era in the way it began: The Mustangs won the last game of the season against the University of Connecticut on December 6, The team was with turnovers and sloppy offensive play, while Louisiana Tech put up great offensive and defensive numbers on their route to victory.

Eleven Mustangs are currently active in the National Football League: They posted a record of 55-14-1, and finished these seasons ranked No. These "winningest" years concluded with the Death Penalty on February 25, due to repeated violations conducted by boosters. The NCAA administered the "death penalty" for repeated, flagrant recruiting violations. Components included cancellation of the entire season, a two-year ban from bowl appearances, a two-year ban from television appearances, a limit of seven games, all on road, in the season, a loss of three assistant coaching positions for two years and a loss of 55 new scholarships over four years. Players were allowed to transfer without sitting out one season, per standard requirement. SMU responded to the combination of these conditions by canceling the season outright. Toxicology reports are pending for Meaghan Bosch, 21, who was reported missing Friday in Dallas and found dead Monday under a blanket on the floor of a portable toilet in Hewitt, miles south of Dallas. Meaghan Bosch Police there have asked the Texas Rangers to assist them with the case, which is not uncommon in small jurisdictions that do not routinely investigate deaths. Authorities in Dallas say there is no evidence of foul play, but Capt. Bosch was last heard from Thursday, when she text-messaged an ex-boyfriend that she was with a drug dealer. Her family said she had recently begun using cocaine and had a history of depression. Robert Hinton, commander of the Dallas missing persons squad, said that friends told them they received text messages from Ms. Bosch as late as Saturday – a day after Ms. While the lieutenant would not elaborate on the content of the messages, "she was not alleging that she was in any criminal danger," he said. Bosch in the portable toilet in Hewitt, where she was found by construction workers about 10 a. However, based on the new information about the Saturday text messages, they believe she ended up there between Saturday and Monday morning. Bosch had to be identified through fingerprints because of decomposition, authorities said. Police have questioned her current and former boyfriends, as well as a man she had lunch with Thursday who police say is a drug dealer. Theories about what happened to Ms. Bosch range from whether she was abandoned in Hewitt by whoever was with her when she overdosed, to whether someone may have directly caused her death. Police do not know why her body ended up in the Waco area. SMU officials say they know drugs can be tempting for college students and have taken adequate steps to help those who need help with such problems. Experts say schools can be reticent to talk about such deaths, and there is so little data on college drug overdoses that it is difficult to tell whether SMU has had more than its statistical share of deaths. Tests showed that the year-old sophomore economics and psychology major from Naperville, Ill. Officials planned to expand the program, which was in pilot stage this semester, campus-wide next fall. The medical examiner also has yet to rule on his death, but his family believes he died from complications from diabetes insipidus, or water diabetes, which he has had since he was a toddler. While toxicology reports are still pending, evidence suggests the death resulted from an overdose, which would make it the second in recent memory there involving drugs. Construction workers discovered her on the floor of a portable toilet there on Monday morning, covered in a blanket, according to reports. Police are not clear how exactly Bosch ended up in Hewitt. Authorities have not yet determined the cause of that death, which may have been related to a form of diabetes. The third student died of a drug overdose in December. We are in the middle of a big city. Since the death of Jacob Stiles in December at a fraternity house, the university has created programs or boosted existing initiatives. A pilot program called Because I Care, slated to be expanded this fall, aims to help students identify peers who are using drugs and engage the issue with them. Why should you do that? The university is hiring a full-time health educator beginning in the fall whose duties will include more proactive measures such as outreach efforts to students. But the reputation will always be there.

These tags are automatically generated. The Daily Texan does not guarantee their accuracy. Published on November 17, at 1: Do you think that system is better suited for your skills? Is that what you thought you were going to do? We talked about running the ball and being able to run the ball since I came. We kind of had a midseason transformation. I love watching them play on Saturday. I know no one has said a bad word about him. He deserves the best. You knew the defense would be good going into the season. Coach Harsin brought in a similar attitude. Coach Applewhite and him work well together. But I think, being so young, there have been a lot of guys that have been forced to mature very quickly. The oldest receiver was a true sophomore Mike Davis before Marquise came back. Is it frustrating watching the quarterbacks struggle? Is it fair that people view the quarterback as responsible for the whole team? What was your favorite memory of playing at Texas? No matter it may look with the way things went last year, I really feel like I learned a lot from it. Going and going through that adversity taught me a lot about being a football player. Last season was a great learning experience. I wanted to come to this school. I really enjoyed it. Did you think about finishing your football career and competing for the starting position here? It was a very tough decision. I thought about it a lot. I prayed about it a lot. I just decided that this was best for me. Looking back, maybe I could have stayed. Maybe in the future, I could look back and say that maybe I should have stayed. Are you going to be in the defensive huddle warning teammates about him? Any way you get him to come to SMU? No, he loves TCU. What was the worst moment during your time at Texas? As a team, we struggled to get through that together. The guys that are still there I know use it very much like I did as motivation and as a learning experience. And watching Colt go down in the national championship. Being able to learn so much from him for the two years " the one year I was on the team and his junior year- and to see how much work he put in for that national championship, obviously it was a great opportunity for me to be able to learn, but to see it for a guy that deserved it so much on a freak play that was tough. It was tough to watch because he definitely deserved the national championship. Is playing on Sundays still a goal of yours? But the end goal, for me, is to make it to the NFL. Guys have done well, especially quarterbacks, transferring from Texas, including Jevan Snead and G. What will be your expectations moving forward? I expect myself to do well. After that, I can start competing for playing time. Honestly, I try my best to let that stuff go in one here and out the other. I do my best not to remember any of that. All I could control was what I can do and what our team can do. I never really was able to waste time focusing on the negativity outside because our goal was still to make a bowl all the way up until the last week of the season last year. We had to just keep moving forward and try to keep getting better each week. Were you told not to read anything about you? It was frustrating last year. I tried not to. I tried to stay away from it. Were expectations for you too high? I knew that when I came to school here. I knew that would be part of it when I came to Texas. The expectations were not too high. The fans have a right to say exactly what they want or feel however they want. You came here during a crossroads of the program. Texas had to reevaluate what it was doing on offense. Do you ever wish you came here at a time like ? Did you get any weird looks while you were wearing a sling around campus? It was big and kind of a hassle. Other than that, I made the decision for myself to transfer. Things will work out. What did people notice more? The sling or you? I think they wondered what the heck that thing was on my arm more than they noticed who I was. Could have played through your shoulder injury? I just know that the doctors told me it would be best to get it repaired. The trainers released a statement. As I threw, it got progressively worse. For my future, it would be best to get it taken care of. How frustrating was it knowing that you might not have played as well as you could have against BYU because of your shoulder? For me, the expectations will be the same. June Jones has brought in a great attitude to the program. Did you hear the boos? Did I hear them? Is there anything you want to say the fans? I appreciate coming out to support the team. I love the city of Austin. I love being close to home. I love the Longhorns and I love my teammates. The relationships will still be there. Were you shocked by what happened this season? All my focus is forward. My goal right now is to go up there and get to know the guys, learn the most I can about the offense, learn as much as I can from June Jones and be the best teammate and leader I can be. After that, I can start worrying about competing for a job. Wherever I would have gone, there would have been competition. Did you consider going anywhere besides SMU? I fell in love with SMU. I was able to go up there and visit. I had a great time. I thought the campus was awesome. I liked the people I got to meet. I loved the coaches. The guys I got to meet on the team were very welcoming. They treated me well.
