Biblical source[ edit ] "Totafot" between your eyes: And it shall be for a sign for you upon your hand, and for a memorial between your eyes, that the law of the LORD may be in your mouth; for with a strong hand did the LORD bring you out of Egypt. And you shall bind them as a sign upon your arm, and they shall be as totafot between your eyes. Tot means "two" in the "Caspi" language and Fot means "two" in the " Afriki " language, [4] hence, tot and fot means "two and two", corresponding to the four compartments of the head-tefillin. The Jewish Sages explain: What this really means is: I shall glorify Him in the way I perform mitzvot. I shall prepare before Him a beautiful lulav, beautiful sukkah, beautiful fringes Tsitsit , and beautiful phylacteries Tefilin. For instance, Yehudah B. Cohn argues that the tefillin should be perceived as an invented tradition aimed at counteracting the popularity of the Greek amulets with an "original" Jewish one. For instance, Numbers Rabbah However it should be noted that in the earliest known archaeological finds , all 29 tefillin cases found were square or rectangular. The most basic form, called peshutim "simple" , are made using several pieces of parchment to form the inner walls of the head tefillin. The higher quality tefillin, namely dakkot "thin" , made by stretching a thin piece of leather, and the more durable gassot "thick" are both fashioned from the single piece of hide. There are precise rules for writing the texts and any error invalidates it. There are letters on the parchments, and it can take a scribe as long as 15 hours to write a complete set. The scribe is required to purify himself in the mikvah ritual bath before he starts work. Parchment scrolls[ edit ] The four biblical passages which refer to the tefillin, mentioned above, are written on scrolls and placed inside the leather boxes. The passages are written by a scribe with special ink on parchment scrolls klaf. Women affiliated to the Conservative movement wrap tefillin. It may have arisen from the fear of persecution, similar to what had occurred to the Jews living in the Land of Israel under Roman rule in the 2nd-century. Nowadays the prevailing custom is to wear them only during the weekday morning service, [48] although some individuals wear them at other times during the day as well. Tefillin are not donned on Shabbat and the major festivals because these holy days are themselves considered "signs" which render the need of the "sign" of tefillin superfluous. They are worn instead at the afternoon Mincha service. Those who forbid it consider the "sign" of intermediate days as having the same status as the festival itself, making the ritual of tefillin redundant. To refrain from wearing tefillin: This ruling of the Shulchan Aruch is based on kabbalah and the Zohar which strongly advocate refraining from laying tefillin on Chol HaMoed. This position is maintained by Sephardic Jews and is also the opinion of the Vilna Gaon whose ruling has been universally accepted in Israel. The advantage of this compromise is that one avoids the transgressions of either not donning tefillin or making a blessing in vain. This opinion, based on Maimonides ,[ not in citation given ] is the ruling of Moses Isserles who writes that this is the universally accepted practice among Ashkenazic Jews. In light of the conflicting opinions, the Mishna Berura 20th-century recommends Ashkenazim make the following stipulation before donning tefillin: List of Jewish prayers and blessings: Ashkenazim put on and remove the arm tefillin while standing in accordance to the Shulchan Aruch, while most Sephardim do so while sitting in accordance with the Ari. All, however, put on and remove the head tefillin while standing. Procedure[ edit ] The arm-tefillin is laid on the inner side of the bare left arm, right arm if one is left handed, two finger breadths above the elbow, so that when the arm is bent the tefillin faces towards the heart. Some wrap it around the upper arm for less than a full revolution the bare minimum to keep the knot tight and then wrap it around the forearm seven times, while others wrap it around the upper arm an additional time before wrapping it around the forearm. Many Ashkenazim wear the knot to be tightened not to be confused with the knot on the base which is permanently tied and always worn on the inside, facing the heart on the inside and wrap inward, while Nusach Sephard Ashkenazim and all Sephardim wear it on the outside and wrap outward.
