1: Star vs. the Forces of Evil The Magic Book of Spells by Daron Nefcy

According to Star vs. the Forces of Evil: The Magic Book of Spells, Skywynne Butterfly created the current version of the Book of Spells after the original version was lost in a castle fire. v æ€ ¢ e æ€ ¢ d Star vs. the Forces of Evil Objects.

Oct 14, Alice Malice rated it it was amazing Great read! Each chapter was so interesting. And I loved the cards. No joke, this book is now one of my favorite books of all time. I definitely want to say kudos to Daron Nefcy, who is an absolute idol. Thank you so, so much for bringing this book to life and thank you for the gift that is Star vs the Forces of Evil in general. When I first got the spell book, I was head-over-heels in love. So first off, I noticed that there was a Glossaryck eye in the top gem of the cover and I realized how much was put into the book. The back note on the sleeve of the book was great. When I opened up the front sleeve of the book, I read the note from Daron Nefcy and my excitement could not be contained. I never knew that she was the voice of StarFan13, but I respect her even more for it. Not only did she create the show, but she also voices, too, and that is super cool. I love that she even explains how the book came to be in my possession. Continuity errors are the worst, but there was not a single one in this book. And so are Marco and Moon, which makes me really happy. Moon and Marco are people that I relate to and I love them so much. How fast can I find the page with the signs? What is this, Gravity Falls? How am I supposed to decode it? The first page just sets the best tone for what the book is like. Glossaryck in a schmexy pose, introducing himself. I mean, I actually think that Glossaryck knows more about everything than he lets on. And sometimes that makes me dislike him. So, Glossaryck created the Magic High Commission to serve specific purposes. Heckapoo for interdimensional travel, Omnitraxis Prime for space-time, Lekmet for entropy, Reynaldo the Bald Pate for enforcing orderliness, and Rhombulus for warfare. What the heck even is entropy? Hold on, lemme look this up. He looks like a toga-wearing giraffe monk. Throughout this entire book, there have been on-and-off wars with the monsters. Actually, my favorite character in the whole show is Eclipsa, and my favorite character on Earth is Janna. Eclipsa is just so marvelously different and I love everything from her fashion, her name, her personality, to her cheek emblems. I love how every chapter contains diary entries, pictures, a flashcard about the queen or boy prince, an explanation of the wand, the Millhorse, and spells. First of all, his name is extra af. Second of all, he might be good at math, but nothing else. He was a spoiled boy prince that should not have been given the wand. The wand is a prestigious magical object that is meant for the matrilineal line anyway. She made a good queen, but she was hell-bent on killing as many monsters as possible, which is what I believe drove her daughter Eclipsa to the Prince of Darkness, and monsters in general, I guess. I shipped her and Alphonse, and it even ended up with Eclipsa as a result. And let us not forget what Solaria did to Mina Loveberry. Mina was just an innocent Mewman girl until a few spells turned her into what I would classify as a monster. And after she lost her marbles, she tried to go after Meteora. It kind of surprised me when I realized that Mina is older than Eclipsa. Okay, time to talk about The Forbidden Chapter. But definitely a little radical and teen-spirited. I love her parasol. I legitimately want it. Even in the last episode of Season 3, Eclipsa looked incredible when she used the wand. I want to wield it. I would say that the only exception would be the Septarians. They are truly cold-blooded. Though, I do think that Meteora is an abomination. Not necessarily because of what she is except for the fact that she can eat people or suck out their soul or whatever, but because of what a truly awful combination of Globgor and Eclipsa she is. Even as a baby she was hideous! Her name was Miss Heinous. She had that weird top of white hair on her head and in her fullest monster form, the only thing that made her half Mewman was the cheek emblems. I apologize if that was a little rant-y and offensive, but it is what I believe. I believe that her situation forced her to be a darker queen. On the pages that are written in Low-Mewnian, there is one thing I can make out. Eclipsa has her parasol pointed directly at what appears to be a Septarian, Seth to be exact, aimed directly at his heart. Festivia seemed extremely clueless. This is where we get into some real deep questions. Was Festivia just any old peasant girl? Where were her true parents? Can just anyone use the wand and wield magic? What about the cheek emblems? Can just anyone turn into a butterfly-Mewman hybrid? I have way too many questions and not enough answers, so come by me, Season 4! I mean, how do you even pronounce her name? She writes in balls, which is apparently a language, and she just mopes about. That is no queen. Rhombulus had always confused Eclipsa with Bobipsa, so it was nice to know that she really did exist. She was almost too good. She even came up with a spell to give herself 8 hours of rest in 4 minutes just so she could use more of her time doing productive things. She probably made more spells than all the other queens combined. But she was extremely lonely, and it never explicitly said anything about a hubby. I also love her cheek emblems. Classic Glossaryck, just putting stuff in wherever he sees fit. I know that Glossaryck liked Rhina because of her riddles, but Comet was his favorite. Rhina was a strange little wackadoodle, but she was interesting. But what the heck was going on with her wrist? They never went into detail about that. I am happy that there were tarot cards. I kind of made a mess of things, but I blame Glossaryck. Estrella was something else. She was awful quiet, too. I do so wonder what exactly was going on in that head of hers. Comet was an extremely strong queen. Married and pregnant all before she became queen. She even tried to strengthen monster and Mewman relations, trying to redesign Mewnipendence Day and make a peace treaty. Sometimes I wish she had succeeded. You know, that begs a question. Anyway, I have to give credit where credit is due on those pie recipes. As in, yaasss queen! I love her wand and her relationship to River. Especially when she loses her marbles. Star is the greatest. We finally find out the history of her horns and get to see photos of Tom and Star when they were so young-looking. He is adorable and Starco is totally cannon, btws. How could I not?

If you like/love Star vs The Forces of Evil, this book is a great thing for you. It's funny(I caught myself laughing out loud spontaneously while reading some.

I gave my 9 year old this book this evening and she was so excited that she started flipping through the pages really quickly. This is a sponsored post by Disney Book Group. All opinions are my own. Our blog also contains affiliate links, which means if you choose to make a purchase on this book using one of our links or other items , we may earn a small commission. My daughter is really excited about the book. Each page has some Disney storytelling magic and animation. The formatting of the book is not really a novel and not really a comic book. It tells the story through creative organizers, pictures, and also includes secrets and magic. Check out this book and read more about it on Amazon! My daughter has been reading another book series and was about to start on another book. When I asked her which book she wants to read now she said it would be this one for sure. As a mom, sometimes I stress whether or not my daughter is reading on her level. As a teacher and educator, I know that more importantly it should be that your kids are reading for enjoyment first. The level will come once they mature with the content. I love that my daughter will grab a book and want to read it for an hour before going to bed. I also love that Disney creates books, since I believe they have the best storytellers in the world. How would you like to win your own copy of Star vs. The Magic Book of Spells Giveaway?
