Form Although instrumental accompaniment is almost universal in the blues, the blues is essentially a vocal form. Blues songs are lyrical rather than narrative; blues singers are expressing feelings rather than telling stories. The emotion expressed is generally one of sadness or melancholy , often due to problems in love. In terms of functional i. Phrase 1 measures 1â€”4 Iâ€”Iâ€”Iâ€”I Phrase 2 measures 5â€”8 IVâ€”IVâ€”Iâ€”I Phrase 3 measures 9â€”12 Vâ€”Vâ€”Iâ€”I African influences are apparent in the blues tonality, the call-and-response pattern of the repeated refrain structure of the blues stanza, the falsetto break in the vocal style, and the imitation of vocal idioms by instruments, especially the guitar and harmonica. History and notable musicians The origins of the blues are poorly documented. It was influenced by work songs and field hollers, minstrel show music, ragtime , church music , and the folk and popular music of the white population. Blues derived from and was largely played by Southern black men, most of whom came from the milieu of agricultural workers. The earliest references to blues date back to the s and early s. In black bandleader W. It became very popular, and thereafter many other Tin Pan Alley songs entitled blues began to appear. The blues of Georgia and the Carolinas is noted for its clarity of enunciation and regularity of rhythm. Influenced by ragtime and white folk music, it is more melodic than the Texas and Mississippi styles. The Texas blues is characterized by high, clear singing accompanied by supple guitar lines that consist typically of single-string picked arpeggios rather than strummed chords. Blind Lemon Jefferson was by far the most influential Texas bluesman. Mississippi Delta blues is the most intense of the three styles and has been the most influential. Vocally, it is the most speech-like, and the guitar accompaniment is rhythmic and percussive; a slide or bottleneck is often used. Blind Lemon Jefferson, c. These performers were primarily stage singers backed by jazz bands; their style is known as classic blues. Ma Rainey centre and her band, Archive Photos The Great Depression and the World Wars caused the geographic dispersal of the blues as millions of blacks left the South for the cities of the North. The blues became adapted to the more sophisticated urban environment. Lyrics took up urban themes, and the blues ensemble developed as the solo bluesman was joined by a pianist or harmonica player and then by a rhythm section consisting of bass and drums. The electric guitar and the amplified harmonica created a driving sound of great rhythmic and emotional intensity. Among the cities in which the blues initially took root were Atlanta , Memphis , and St. It was Chicago , however, that played the greatest role in the development of urban blues. Waters, MuddyMuddy Waters, Blues and jazz are closely related; such seminal jazzmen as Jelly Roll Morton and Louis Armstrong employed blues elements in their music. Soul music and rhythm and blues also show obvious blues tonalities and forms. The blues have had their greatest influence on rock music. Early rock singers such as Elvis Presley often used blues material. Learn More in these related Britannica articles:

Dear blues Guitarist Friend, Robert Johnson is arguably the greatest blues guitar player of all time. I think Clapton said something similar. So much has been written about his genius that it would be futile of me to try adding anything. This is your chance to re-create the kind of sounds that Robert Johnson made all those years ago with his guitar. What Do You Get that is going to help you bring about this great musical feat? Each of the three Song Lessons comes as: Video download of the lesson covering all parts of the song. These are proper lessons It is close to having me there in the room with you except that on video I never get bored or distracted. You can watch any section over and over and over until you have mastered the full piece. This will give you an amazing blues repertoire and make you the envy of your fellow guitarists. Many a fallen music star can blame the Malted Milk for their demise. Johnson tries to make sense of the booze with this one. It has a quite distinctive rhythmic form compared with many other Robert Johnson Blues pieces and is a great favourite. If this song had been composed and performed by anyone other than Robert Johnson it would seem to be quite ordinary. The way Johnson treated it makes it a really exciting piece to learn as it forms the basis of many thousands of similar blues guitar pieces. Once you can play this one Kind hearted woman blues: This was the first song that Johnson recorded, and it was carefully crafted in imitation of recent hit records. At the end of the bridge, he jumps into a higher register as Arnold does, but then maintains an extraordinary controlled falsetto, which may have been based on the singing of Joe Pullum. Thus Johnson showed in his very first recording that he had mastered the commercially successful urban blues style of the Thirties. However, his debut cannot be dismissed as derivative. He combined elements of the styles of others into a highly individual style of his own Like Bumble Bee Slim, Johnson wrote lyrics consisting mostly of conventional twelve-bar three-line verses, but varied with an eight-bar bridge. I want to be able to play just like Robert Johnson without having to spend years picking up his amazing techniques. Mike Herberts Proprietor 6-String-Videos.

Find out more about these voices and their vocal ranges by clicking on the relevant links provided. For those more interested in the classical singing realm, you can also learn more about some voices that are unique to the classical realm! What about those of us who sing in choirs, you say? There are usually 4 main voice types, and they are: Soprano, Alto, Tenor and Bass. Learn more about these voice types and why there are only 4 main types of voices! Now now, calm down all you pop singers! I know you may be thinking, this is all not very useful to me! After all, I am a pop singer, not a classical or chorale singer.. But we can still use the classical voice classification as a guideline to understand more about our voice, so that we know how to select songs and how to train our voices better! What are their voices like? Now, if you are still reading, it shows that you are genuinely interested in voice types! In that case, let me reward you with more information..

Vocal Range Vocal Range is one of the key indicators of what type of voice a singer may have. For example, if a male singer has a relatively high voice, he would probably be classified as a Tenor or even a Counter Tenor, whereas if a female singer has a high voice, she would probably be classified as a Soprano. Knowing our vocal range is vital because we would then know which notes we should train with when we do our vocal exercises or our vocal warmups before singing. This will help us avoid unnecessary damage if we were to train with notes or pitches that are too high and beyond our respective vocal ranges. It is generally more damaging to train with notes that are too high for our range, than to train with notes that are too low for our voice to pitch properly. Try out some of these pitching exercises and see which range of notes your voice is most comfortable with!

Register Changes Our voice goes through a number of changes in tone and quality as we move from low pitches to higher notes, and these changes are called vocal register changes.

Vocal Tone Different singers have varying Vocal Tones, as some may have voices that are bright and ringing, whereas others may have voices that sound dark and heavy. Knowing our Vocal Tone helps us to be able to know what kinds of songs we can perform, and what songs we should avoid when performing or auditioning. For example, if we have a heavy and powerful voice, we would know that we can most probably do songs that require more belting or vocal projection! Whereas if we have a lighter and more delicate voice, we would do more songs in the genre of Bossa Nova, or maybe more gentle love ballads that require a certain sensitivity and lightness in tone.

Tessitura or Voice Strength Tessitura refers to the vocal range within which our voice is at its most comfortable and sounding its best. Some vocal instructors call this our sweet voice! Knowing where our Voice Strength lies is key to understanding what voice type we belong to. For example, a soprano would have a stronger head voice whereas a bass singer would have a stronger middle voice.

Speech Level Voice Our speech level voice is usually the voice with which we are most comfortable using, and it is also the voice that we would use the most in our everyday conversation. It gives us an important indication as to whether we are a tenor, baritone or bass singer, since we would most probably talk using our tessitura or most comfortable vocal range. Ok, the above 5 criteria can be used to determine which Voice Type we belong to, and would be able to help us know how to train our voices better. Once we understand our voice type better, we would be able to train our voice more efficiently and also know how to select songs for auditions, competitions or performances! Constant practice also will change our voice quality and type to a certain extent, for example a voice can become brighter than before, so do not fret if you feel stuck in a voice that you do not like!

Few have found a way to say it more beautifully than the Psalmist, who in the 150th chapter of the Book of Psalms, issues this call to every living thing: Praise God in His sanctuary. Praise Him from His mighty heavens! Praise Him for His mighty works. Praise His unequaled greatness! Praise Him with the tambourine and dancing; praise Him with strings and flutes! Praise Him with a clash of cymbals. Let everything that has breath sing praises to the Lord! We exist for one purpose and one purpose only: So, why not take a cue from the Psalmist and write a whole song about it? As a worship leader, it can be a challenge to find a fast, up-tempo, high-energy congregational worship song that actually says something of value or challenges us in some way. That was precisely our reason for writing this song. The chorus is merely a paraphrase of Psalm 150, a shout of praise to our God for who He is. The second verse reminds us of the truth about God that we so easily forget when beaten down by the day-to-day cares of our lives. A simple song, but so very necessary for maintaining a proper perspective in life. Sometimes we must use our minds via our mouths and our songs to remind our hearts how to feel. Life is hard, and we all too easily forget the basic, unchanging truth that God is good. No matter our struggles, trials, worries, setbacks, disappointments or frustrations, our Creator is worthy of our praise. Therefore, let everything that has breath praise the Lord! And may we never, ever stop singing His praise. Download the song for free using the widget below. Download the chord chart for free: Johnson Articles Shelly E. Johnson Guest Writer Shelly E. Others resent the low energy surrounding the submissive person and eventually give up trying to help them because their efforts are subtly or overtly rejected. The Manipulative Style This style is scheming, calculating and shrewd. Manipulative communicators are skilled at influencing or controlling others to their own advantage. Their spoken words hide an underlying message, of which the other person may be totally unaware. Behavioural Characteristics Controlling of others in an insidious way – for example, by sulking Asking indirectly for needs to be met Making others feel obliged or sorry for them. People on the Receiving end Feel Guilty Angry, irritated or annoyed Resentful Others feel they never know where they stand with a manipulative person and are annoyed at constantly having to try to work out what is going on. The Anxiety and Phobia Workbook. New Harbinger Publications, Inc. The Benefits of Understanding the Different Styles of Communication A good understanding of the five basic styles of communication will help you learn how to react most effectively when confronted with a difficult person. It will also help you recognise when you are not being assertive or not behaving in the most effective way. Remember, you always have a choice as to which communication style you use. Being assertive is usually the most effective, but other styles are, of course, necessary in certain situations – such as being submissive when under physical threat a mugging, hijacking etc. Good communication skills require a high level of self-awareness. Once you understand your own communication style, it is much easier to identify any shortcomings or areas which can be improved on, if you want to start communicating in a more assertive manner. It will help you diffuse anger, reduce guilt and build better relationships both personally and professionally. Remember the first rule of effective communication: The success of the communication is the responsibility of the communicator. This article was published on my website in July What do YOU Think?
