

1: Your Dreams Your Success | If you dream it, You can do it.

Here is my definition of a dream that can be put to the test and will pass: A dream is an inspiring picture of the future that energizes your mind, will and emotions, empowering you to do.

Getty Images Need a quick dose of inspiration? Need a quick surge in motivation? The second best time is now. Rockefeller "Happiness is a butterfly, which when pursued, is always beyond your grasp, but which, if you will sit down quietly, may alight upon you. Use what you have. Do what you can. As of this second, quit doing less than excellent work. Watson "All progress takes place outside the comfort zone. So throw off the bowlines. Sail away from the safe harbor. Catch the trade winds in your sails. I have never heard of anyone ever stumbling on something sitting down. So you have to trust that the dots will somehow connect in your future. You have to trust in something--your gut, destiny, life, karma, whatever. This approach has never let me down, and it has made all the difference in my life. Harv Eker "Successful people do what unsuccessful people are not willing to do. No reasons or principle contain it or stand against it. I want to have lived the width of it as well. Habit is what keeps you going. And guess what they have planned for you? Edison "The greater the artist, the greater the doubt. Perfect confidence is granted to the less talented as a consolation prize. They vary in their desires to reach their potential. Double your rate of failure. You are thinking of failure as the enemy of success. You can be discouraged by failure or you can learn from it, so go ahead and make mistakes. Make all you can. Watson "Logic will get you from A to B. Imagination will take you everywhere. But if you just stick around long enough, eventually something is going to happen. Liking what you do is happiness. Be excited about what you want. If your happiness depends on money, you will never be happy with yourself. Be content with what you have; rejoice in the way things are. When you realize there is nothing lacking, the world belongs to you. Everything is perfect either for our growth or our enjoyment. You seek problems because you need their gifts. Baruch "Our capacity to draw happiness from aesthetic objects or material goods in fact seems critically dependent on our first satisfying a more important range of emotional or psychological needs, among them the need for understanding, for love, expression, and respect. That thought is the problem. Happiness is the spiritual experience of living every minute with love, grace, and gratitude. Joy is found not in finishing an activity but in doing it. Happiness never decreases by being shared. As long as this exists, and it certainly always will, then there will be comfort for every sorrow, whatever the circumstances may be. In the adaptability and ease with which we experience change, lies our happiness and freedom. Walk to the edge. Choose with no regret. Do what you love. Live as if this is all there is. There is nothing to forgive. It is far better to take things as they come along with patience and equanimity. If you want to be happy, practice compassion. It is appreciating what you have. Happiness is wanting what you get. Being happy is being in love with that momentary experience. Love is happiness with what you see. So love and happiness really are the same thing I am not bound to succeed, but I am bound to live up to the light I have. It turns what we have into enough and more. It turns denial into acceptance, chaos to order, confusion to clarity. It can turn a meal into a feast, a house into a home, a stranger into a friend. Gratitude makes sense of our past, brings peace for today, and creates a vision for tomorrow. Standing for right when it is unpopular is a true test of moral character. Their joy is being who they are, not in being better than someone else. But the truly dire consequences in our lives come from avoiding things that we need to learn about or discover. Of the things you have, select the best and then reflect how eagerly you would have sought them if you did not have them. Petit Senn "To be content means that you realize you contain what you seek. Then your time on earth will be filled with glory. Life is really about moving on. Barr "View your life from your funeral: Looking back at your life experiences, what have you accomplished? What were the happy moments? What were the sad? The good teacher explains. The superior teacher demonstrates. The great teacher inspires. Stevenson II "Our chief want is someone who will inspire us to be what we know we could be. He is the one that gets people to do the greatest things. The first is gentleness; the second is frugality; the third is humility, which keeps me from putting myself before others. Be gentle and you can be bold; be frugal and you can be liberal; avoid putting yourself before others and you can become a leader among men. Eisenhower "Victory has a hundred fathers and defeat is an orphan. Kennedy "Management is doing things right; leadership is doing the right things. Drucker "You are not here merely to make a living. You are here in order to enable the world to live more amply, with greater vision, with a finer spirit of hope and achievement. You are here to enrich the world, and you impoverish yourself if you forget the errand. It is the only thing. Maxwell "The mark of a great man is one who knows when to set aside the important things in order to accomplish the vital ones. It is about one life influencing another. Maxwell "You have to be burning with an idea, or a problem, or a wrong that you want to right. He stays behind the flock, letting the most nimble go out ahead, whereupon the others follow, not realizing that all along they are being directed from behind. People look to me to do things for them, to have answers. But do not care to convince him. Men will believe what they see. Lee "The day the soldiers stop bringing you their problems is the day you stopped leading them. They have either lost confidence that you can help them or concluded that you do not care. Either case is a failure of leadership. What great cause would have been fought and won under the banner: Both are based on authority. A boss demands blind obedience; a leader earns his authority through understanding and trust. Solomon "In the end, it is important to remember that we cannot become what we need to be by remaining what we are.

2: Achieving Dreams Quotes (quotes)

You need to sit down, on a regular basis, and plan out your strategy for achieving the dream. Think through all of the details. Break the whole plan down into small, workable parts.

I am an author, speaker and a director of an inspirational movie called Carve Your Destiny. This movie took 6 years in the making but I decided to release it for free. The movie has since garnered over One Million Views on Youtube and gotten almost unanimous praise from viewers. It ranks among the top positions for the keywords Inspirational Movie and Inspirational Documentary. As a young kid I always had the desire to do something that would impact the lives of a million people. But I had no idea what to do. Fast forward to late I came up with the idea for this project when I was a student and proposed this for an inter university competition. I thought if we made a film on the subject of success which actually featured real famous achievers, that would be tremendously useful to people. But straight away I faced my first setback. People laughed at me. They told me that I was a young student with no connections, why would any of these famous people even care to meet me for an interview. They told me I had little money and resources. They told me I would end up looking like a failure. Well, failure did happen. My first failure was being rejected. Then I had people desert my team. I failed numerous times at my attempts to contact the people I wanted. Every time I called their assistants, they used to ask me what organization I belonged to. I have had times when I was rejected over 30 times before finally getting an interview. I have had times when the after getting a confirmed appointment and hiring a cameraman and reaching the spot, I was turned away at the last moment. The worst feeling was when my father was not well but I had a confirmed appointment with an extremely famous British author. So with a heavy heart, I went to England, all the way from India. The moment I reached the interview was cancelled for good. When I told the assistant I had come all the way from India and left an ailing father behind, she said they had done me a huge favor by even giving an appointment which they cancelled and refused to talk further. It was a horrible feeling. But then there were others that did say yes and meeting them motivated me. Over hundreds of rejections, I found 20 famous achievers who agreed to be a part of my film. And it did for me, even though it took 4 years. So now, I had all the interviews, struggle over, right? Getting interviews is one thing but then turning it into a beautifully woven story that people actually care about is a huge challenge. Also, I had zero technical knowledge of editing. There was a slow learning curve in terms of both but I stuck it out. After about an year, in early I had completed a rough cut of the film. Then I invited small groups of people for a test screening. I thought it was a masterpiece. But was an absolute disaster. Nobody liked the film. If you fail over and over again, there comes a time when you just feel like throwing in the towel. I felt so too. But what can you do when you have worked so hard on something? If you quit now every single day of pain you put in becomes worthless. If you jump into the sea, you better be prepared to keep swimming or you will die. After three months, I held another screening. I knew I had finally overcome this hurdle as well and had made something people truly loved. I had made a film that was loved by its target audience. So how do I get it out to the people? I had no time or patience to spend more years submitting it to film festivals and play the indefinite waiting game hoping for a distributor to pick it up. I wanted to get it out to the ones who needed it as soon as possible. I made the decision of putting up 6 years of my hard work online, for free, on Youtube. But even to be noticed on Youtube is not easy. But promoting your content quickly needs a lot of paid marketing which would be several thousand dollars. Some people even put in hundreds of thousands of dollars to promote their stuff. As I was not selling anything, I had no plans to go bankrupt doing so. Well it turns out most of these people were not going to share anything unless it already had social validation a million views. Disillusioned, I decided to put up my movie on Youtube with very little promotion and mostly relying on my social media following to spread the word. No the movie did not go viral overnight, but something great seemed to happen. Thousands started watching the film everyday. It received almost unanimous praise! Students who were on the verge of giving up trying to get into their dream university told me my movie inspired them to try again. People who were laid off and were struggling to get a new job told me that they were now more determined than ever. I even got an email from a girl who had attempted suicide previously who told me that watching the film gave her the will to live! The number of people watching it daily keeps going up. So in the years to come this movie will impact millions of more people. My Childhood dream has come true! Your dream maybe doing something totally different. But unless you possess the most insane amount of good or bad luck, your story will not be too different from mine. On the way to success you will have to encounter a huge amount of obstacles and failures. You will begin with a lot of excitement, then setback will slap you in the face, then you will get up, beat the obstacle and then face another obstacle. This process is going to keep going on! But you must learn from these failures. What you achieve out of life is not always proportionate to how hard you work but how fast you learn. The ultimate thing that will decide whether or not you will give up is the question "How badly do you want to achieve your dream. If you do, you will either achieve it or die trying! Some people think if you go after your dreams, you are wasting your time. But the truth is going after dreams is not easy, you need to be brave, persistent also a little crazy. That attitude will guarantee failure because success rarely comes to those who are only prepared to give it a shot, it mostly comes to those who are willing to achieve it no matter what! Over time everything you will add up and to everyone else, your life will look like a miracle to everyone else. Go create your miracle! I will be rooting for you! It has been seen on Youtube by a million people. Erin shows overscheduled, overwhelmed women how to do less so that they can achieve more. Traditional productivity books written by men barely touch the tangle of cultural pressures that women feel when facing down a to-do list.

It is time to move beyond positive thinking! In this highly inspirational, yet extremely practical book, Patricia Raskin provides a well-researched, proven formula for actualizing your success and dream.

Sit down with your manager with ideas to improve the role. Look for training sessions to improve skills and seek out a mentor. The New Rules for Career Happiness. There is a nuts and bolts aspect to it. Give yourself time to grieve Read More Even if you hated your last job, it was familiar and you had established connections and a reputation. Work is not a four-letter word, but work is work. The New Rules for Career Happiness" Give yourself at least six months with the transition, she advised. And try to stick it out for at least a year before moving on. It can also take time to get the necessary training and background before getting fully immersed in your new role and responsibilities, so avoid making knee-jerk reactions. Maybe all the travel that came with the new job sounded like a dream. But being in an airport four times a week and living out of a suitcase can take a toll. Sometimes your dislike for a new job has nothing to do with your role. It could be the commute, the hours or even not having people to eat lunch with. They doubt their ability to perform their required duties, feel inadequate and worry that they faked their way into getting hired. If you were a superstar at your old job, starting over at a new gig can be tough. However, if there is an aspect to your new job you feel unprepared to handle, look for training opportunities and online seminars to help fill the knowledge gap. It helps to have a person to ask questions about protocol, bounce ideas off of and answer more general questions about the company and work life. Get a life outside of work If you are struggling at work, it helps to have other activities that bring you happiness. Learn a new language, volunteer, start a new hobby or fitness routine or schedule a catchup with friends. People in new roles put in long days. Protect that time," said Bray.
