2: Sweet and Sour Lily - Lexile® Find a Book | MetaMetrics Inc.

In a medium bowl, mix the pork together with the flour, rice wine, salt, pepper, and egg, making sure to coat each piece of pork well. Marinate in the refrigerator for at least 2 hours. Bring marinated pork to room temperature before cooking. Line a plate with paper towels. Fry in batches, 7 to 8 pieces at a time, until golden brown and crispy. When done, remove the pork, shaking off excess oil, and drain on paper towels. Use a wire mesh strainer to remove any debris from the oil and bring oil temperature up to degrees F before frying the next batch. Repeat with remaining pork. Drain the remaining oil and wipe down the wok with a paper towel. Heat 2 tablespoons of fresh oil over medium-high heat. Fry the garlic until fragrant. Toss in the onions and carrots and stir for about a minute. Add the cucumbers and stir-fry until tender-crisp. If you prefer softer carrots, cook ahead by microwaving or steaming. Add the pineapple, give everything a quick stir, remove and leave aside. Mix the sauce ingredients together and put into wok, bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring continuously. Once the sauce starts to bubble and thicken, reduce the heat to low. Add the cooked pork nuggets and the cooked vegetable, toss to coat. Dish out and serve immediately with white rice. You may deep-fry pork the nuggets ahead of time. Refrigerate or freeze until needed. Then re-heat with a quick dip in hot oil or in the oven.
