Today, we want to post some short stories about friendship. We will try to cover different aspects of friendship and the moral accordingly. So here we go! A story tells that two friends were walking through the desert. During some point of the journey they had an argument, and one friend slapped the other one in the face. They kept on walking until they found an oasis, where they decided to take a bath. The one who had been slapped got stuck in the mire and started drowning, but the friend saved him. But, when someone does something good for us, we must engrave it in stone where no wind can ever erase it. Do not value the things you have in your life. But value who you have in your life. A mouse was also playing nearby. By chance Ole mouse ran over the lion. This made the lion wake up. The lion caught the mouse. He was ready to kill it. He smiled and let the mouse go. A few days after the lion was walking in a jungle. He roared and rolled to get out of the net. The mouse heard the roar. Sometimes the smallest of friends can make a biggest impact in your life. The good you do for those small friends will come back when you badly need support. One day they were passing through a dense forest. What will we do if a wild beast attacks us? We shall fight together and save ourselves. But suddenly they saw a bear coming towards them. Tom at once got up the nearest tree. He did not think what his friend would do. John did not know how to climb a tree. He had no way of escape. But soon he took a plan. He fell flat on the ground like a dead man. The bear came up to John. It smelt his nose, ears and eyes. It took him to be dead and went away. Then Tom came down from the tree. An insincere and evil friend is more to be feared than a wild beast; as a wild beast can harm your body, but an evil friend can wound your soul. An Inspiring friendship story Once a deer, a crow, a mouse and a turtle were great friends. One day the deer went out to graze. He was caught in a hunter net. In the even in the deer did not return to his friends. Then fly back to us and tell us where he is. He came back after half an hour. I will do that. The crow took the mouse on his back and flew with him to the deer. The mouse bit through the net. The deer was free. The turtle got friends were all very happy together. The two survivors who have been a good friends, not knowing what else to do, agreed that they had no other recourse but to pray to God. However, to find out whose prayer was more powerful, they agreed to divide the territory between them and stay on opposite sides of the island. The first thing they prayed for was food. The next morning, the first man saw a fruit-bearing tree on his side of the land, and he was able to eat its fruit. After a week, the first man was lonely and he decided to pray for a wife. The next day, another ship was wrecked, and the only survivor was a woman who swam to his side of the land. On the other side of the island, there was nothing. Soon the first man prayed for a house, clothes, more food. The next day, like magic, all of these were given to him. However, the second man still had nothing. Finally, the first man prayed for a ship, so that he and his wife could leave the island. In the morning, he found a ship docked at his side of the island. The first man boarded the ship with his wife and decided to leave the second man on the island. If not for that, you would not have received any of my blessings. For all we know, our blessings are not the fruits of our prayers alone, but those of another praying for us Congregational Prayer. The first filter is Truth. Have you made absolutely sure that what you are about to tell me is true? Is what you are about to tell me about my friend something good? Is what you want to tell me about my friend going to be useful to me? Well we can always participate in loose talks to curb our boredom. But when it comes to you friends its not worth it. Always avoid talking behind the back about your near and dear friends. We hope you liked these short stories about friendship. Meanwhile, he tuned to a channel where Sholay movie Indian movie about friendship was being broadcasted. He finished watching the whole movie. Then, he went to his room and opened his closet. He found an old photograph of his late friend with whom he had bunked school to watch Sholay. They go far away, but memories never. She said sorry with a sad face. In the night after she dozed off, he silently put his blanket over her. Now tell me, how many of you would still be friends, 5 years down the lane? Misunderstandings, personal grudges, heartbreaks, lost conversations and 3 years dissolved that promise like salt in water. One day, one of the duo uploads on social media: Suddenly, minutes later, the phone rings. My best friend from school. Like all teenagers we used to have a lot of fun. A day was made up of fun, games and lot of laughter. We used to hang around at the beach, play football, ride cycles to no where, have a crush on every girl in sight. We were looking forward to a great future ahead. Sagar had a birth defect his tongue was attached to his lower jaw. Due to this he was made fun of, a lot. As his speech was not clear. We also used to take part in it. All good times and he never felt bad and actually joined us in laughing at himself. And we laughed our eyes out. Before the 12th board exams, Sagar hanged himself from the tree behind his house.

Tales of Friendship We started this blog to feature stories of meeting new people and making new friends. These are stories we often forget. Why don't you share yours with our wonderful community?

She had helped quite a few students in need of guidance counseling, several of which had put her skills to the test. Just then, there was a knock at her bedroom door. The door opened, and Spike entered the room. Dear Starlight, Good news. I hope to see you soon. Your friend, Sunburst "So? Daisy salad with a side of my famous nachos. Until then, your friend always, Starlight Putting away the quill, Starlight placed the reply in a spare envelope. She was so excited at the prospect of seeing Sunburst again, she felt like jumping for joy Still, there was a definite spring in her step as she paced around the station. Starlight could barely contain herself as the doors opened, and the passengers disembarked, keeping her eyes open for Sunburst. As the crowd thinned out, both Unicorns ran to meet each other, sharing their customary hug. You know, when I was on non-friendship mission business? Maybe next time, you could get it down to one-and-a-half suitcases? And Twilight and the others are doing a great job teaching. These books are starting to get heavy. After entering the castle and depositing the books in the guest room, Starlight and Sunburst decided to have some lunch. It was nothing fancy, just some daffodil and daisy sandwiches. Anything scholarly, she takes super seriously. First one student came to me for guidance, then more, and more. Some days, I have back-to-back counseling sessions. I almost have more problems than I know how to fix. Careful what you wish for, right? Moments later, Twilight entered the dining room, her mane slightly dishevelled from her work. You wanna come with? After finishing lunch, Starlight led Sunburst through the School of Friendship. Since it was Saturday, most of the students were out, either enjoying their weekend in Ponyville, or having fun in the surrounding areas. Starlight showed Sunburst each of the classrooms, at the same time regaling him with stories of life at the school. And then I lost my temper, and banished him. In the end, it took some good old guidance counselor talk to straighten things out. Now that is impressive. A little annoying, but not so bad. Me, Twilight and Spike actually faked the theft of a magical artefact in order to get those two to work together again. It can be tough at times, but helping those troubled students really gives me a warm feeling in my heart. On the inside, this school is even more impressive than I imagined. He hugged his old friend. The tour complete, Starlight and Sunburst returned to the castle for some relaxation, reading, and eventually, dinner. Sunburst won, though only by a small margin. The next day, Starlight and Sunburst, after taking some time in the morning to walk around Ponyville and enjoy the sights together, returned to the train station. Expect a letter on the matter very soon. Once the train back to the Crystal Empire rolled in, the two childhood friends shared one last hug before Sunburst boarded. He waved to Starlight out of the window as the train continued its journey north. Starlight waved back, missing him already. 3: Blog Tour: Tails of Friendship – Jessica's Reading Room

Tails of Friendship by Sally Grace A collection of beautiful black and white portraits illustrating the loving relationship between dogs and their owners. Each photograph is accompanied by a famous quote or by a quote from the dogs themselves.

On Friendship August 6, My earliest memory of our encounter was that one morning in October. I had only been at the school for maybe a month, and was asked to read the prayer to the entire school over the PA system. My partner that morning was this tall girl with wild, curly hair in a Tommy Hilfiger t-shirt and jeans, a girl who eventually became one of my closest friends today, 17 years later. Lisa and I have known each other for more than half of our lives. All that is to say: My brother and I spent 3 days in Genova last December and left the itinerary in the capable hands of Alex and Lisa. They took us to museums and showed us the places they loved, they taught us a little bit of Italian, and explained Genovese culture and traditions. They were the best tour guides one could ever ask for and we are so grateful. The first sunrise we saw in the city. This Ligurian port city, as seen from above. Here is how we were entertained: Hike to the top of Forte Diamante in Parco delle murra. Genova is surrounded by hills with forts on them. So on our first day in the city, we donned our hiking clothes, packed some sandwiches for lunch, and hiked to Forte Diamante. We took the funicular to get to the start of the trail and made our way up stopping to catch our breath and to enjoy the view every now and then. Stroll through Centro Storico All the narrow vicolis and winding alleys complete with traditional shops, take a look. I love this picture. So crooked, but so Italian. Of course you need to have a picture of hanging laundry! A traditional one-stop shop filled with everything. Try all the Genovese food. Small, light, and topped with olive oil, the focaccia were handed to us as soon as we stepped off the train and made for THE perfect snack. A traditional fare made from chickpeas, cooked on a flat iron pan in a wood oven pizza, served with a variety of side dishes including anchovies and artichokes. There are many places you can have this in Genova, but Lisa took us to one of the more traditional restaurant with tiled walls and communal tables. Of course you need to have gelato. Ours were from Eataly on the port and mine was pistachio smothered with Chestnut cream. Cue all the questions about all the liquors. We had ours at Ai Troeggi, a medieval stone bar, where the spritz es were so refreshing and the bruschetta serving was generous and came with varied toppings my favourite was topped with Genovese pesto! Spend golden hour in Bocadasse. We walked to Bocadasse and enjoyed this little seaside village at sunset when everything was bathed in a golden hue, the waves lapping against the walls of the port, the smell of the salty air, and the slight breeze from the sea. It was the perfect way to conclude our stay in Genova.

Tails of Friendship by Sally Grace is a loving photographic tribute to man's best friend. Hilarious and heartwarming, it is the perfect gift for the dog-lover or those readers searching for an attractive, feel-good book to treasure for years to come.

Tales Of Friendship Chapter Two: Apples And Pears As the sun was setting over the Apple family farm, the Apples - along with one special guest - were on their way back home. What more could we have asked for? And Big Mac and I have work tomorrow. A short time later, the Apple family and their guest had finished their supper the pear jam having been recovered from its "hiding place" under the kitchen floor and added to some toast. Apple Bloom had been put to bed not long after stopping only to give Grand Pear a hug, to which he responded by giving his newfound granddaughter a kiss on the forehead, while Applejack and Big Macintosh were busy making their own preparations for sleeping, brushing their teeth and washing up, ready for their usual workload in the morning. Granny Smith was in the kitchen, washing the dishes, when Grand Pear entered the room. And family help each other. As Grand Pear took to cleaning another plate, she let out another chuckle. I abandoned my own daughter, and why? It was the dead of night at Sweet Apple Acres. Within her bedroom, the younger Granny Smith found herself unable to sleep. The events of the last few hours weighed heavily upon her mind. Not only was the daughter of her oldest, greatest enemy now her daughter-in-law, but that same enemy had abandoned her for marrying, and staying with, an Apple. Acknowledging her inability to sleep, Granny Smith got out of bed and made her way downstairs. But instead of any number of criminal ponies, she saw her new daughter-in-law, Pear Butter, sitting on her couch. And this is supposed to be a happy occasion. Both the good stuff, and the bad. Guess the day caught up to him in a different way. But there was another side to him that you never saw. A kind, caring, loving, fatherly side. A side I may never see again Ah promise, Ah will always be there for ya, sugarcube. Ya got that, Pear Butter? For better or for worse, this is my home now. While Granny Smith had told the story, she and Grand Pear had made themselves some tea, and moved to the living room, which was where she concluded the tale. We all took it so hard. Big Mac was left speechless for the very first. Let it all out I robbed myself of so many good years, watching her be a wife, become a mother, and so much more. You should be glad Pear Butter led such a good, happy life. And for that, I can never thank you enough. She was a wonderful wife for mah boy, and an even better mother for mah grandfoals. When ya get right down to it, Ah wuz proud to call her mah daughter-in-law. A mighty fine job indeed. And their kids saw fit to forgive for the biggest mistake of their life. He held out a hoof. Ah wanna know how that stuff tastes on pancakes. With that, Grand Pear departed from the Apple family homestead. If only Bright Mac and Pear Butter coulda lived to see this day Friendship Is Magic and all associated characters are the property of Hasbro. Your review has been posted.

They lived on land and had extremely thick legs. The frog and the tiger were the best of friends. They would chat for hours, share jokes and have meals together. In times of need, they would also help each other out. One day, the frog decided to invite the tiger for a meal. The frog had a pretty little house under the shrubs. But you have never come to my house. I would like to invite you to my place for dinner tonight. Suddenly, the frog realised that the tiger only had meat for dinner. He went around everywhere looking for meat, but could not manage to find any. The frog was tired and dejected. He was embarrassed and did not know what to serve the tiger for dinner. In the evening, the frog was still in deep thoughts about the dinner when the tiger knocked at the door. He went inside his room and started biting his legs to take out flesh from them. Each time he bit into his legs, he screamed out in pain. Hearing the screams the tiger got worried and rushed to his room. The tiger was shocked at the sight of the frog biting his legs. Our friendship is much more precious to me than having your flesh for dinner. He left his home forever and went underwater. There he built tiny houses and started living in them and he also learnt how to swim. Gradually, his legs became thin and spindly. I really like the interactions between Spike and Smolder in the show and you capture them perfectly here. I feel like Smolder has kinda taken on a big sister role for a Spike, teaching him about dragon culture and being protective of him.
