Contents [show] Description He is a large, buff army green fish with a unibrow, brown hair, and spiky teeth. He wears black pants and a dark blue jacket, and under it is a white shirt. His first name might be "Mac," as Patrick calls him this after sharing a cell together. Personality The Tattletale Strangler is a notorious individual, as even the bravest and toughest fish fear him. He is a pure criminal who has no respect for police officers and will stop at nothing to break the law. He has an irreverent, despicable, and irresponsible attitude, as he rats on his victims for reporting him to the authorities, when they completely have a reason to. Despite his intimidating demeanor, he has a weakness, which is annoyance at the hands of SpongeBob. After finding out that he is the one responsible for this, SpongeBob calls the police on the Strangler and succeeds in getting him arrested. However, due to his strength, he manages to escape from his cuffs. The Strangler later disguises his notorious identity using a gag mustache, and SpongeBob, deceived by the disguise, accidentally hires him as his bodyguard. Afterwards, the Strangler suggests that they hide somewhere private so he can get revenge on SpongeBob, unbeknownst to the latter. After the partying ends, the Strangler finally plans to kill SpongeBob, only for Patrick to enter his house. The real Strangler falsely accuses Patrick of being him, leading Patrick to turn himself in. He impersonates a bodyguard and uses a fake identity and license following his escape. He persistently litters on the back of Krusty Krab property. He stays in the Krusty Krab parking lot for a protracted amount of time with no purpose other than to litter. He is a notorious serial killer who gives revenge in the form of murder. Despite having his entire body handcuffed, he still manages to escape from the cuffs. Quotes "What are you going to do, call the police? Uh, uh, I mean protect you. Do you think you can hop on my shoulders, kid? I bought it at the party store! I am not your bodyguard! There are several implications that SpongeBob knew that his so-called bodyguard was the Strangler all along: Taking too long with his errands. Taking six hours and twenty minutes to get into his house, only to subsequently use the key under his doormat. Climbing on top of him to gain entrance by placing his spiky cleats in his eye sockets. Chasing him all the way to the police station and placing him behind bars.

The toy brand was developed by Waygetter Electronics. The player is supposed to receive one as a present on Christmas Day, but the protagonist opens it five days early in the basement. In the Kaleidoscope campaign, Tattletail seems different and the player must figure out why. He has a small heart-shaped nose and large blue eyes with purple-blue eyelids, complete with large pointed ears resembling those of Furbies. He appears to wear leg warmers that are usually difficult to notice at first. He also has an egg hole on the bottom of his model and a small tuft of hair on his head alongside a very-hard-to-see sharp-ended tail. In addition to this, Tattletail is able to speak, respond, and react to the environment around him, almost appearing sentient in this way. The tuft of fur on the top of his head is able to be brushed, and he can also eat real food - said food goes into eggs that Tattletail is capable of laying, and these are left scattered all over the house. Occasionally he must also be recharged in order to keep functioning. Gameplay The aforementioned features that Tattletail possesses must be frequently monitored and attended to by the player. While he is equipped, three bars in the top left-hand corner of the screen display his needs, allowing the player to distinguish which needs must be paid attention to first. His in-game appearances are as follows: December 20, The player opens their Christmas present early, which is revealed to be a purple-furred Baby Talking Tattletail. He is to be fed and groomed before he is then put back in his box and wrapped back up. Then the player must return to bed. December 21, Tattletail is found in the dryer when the player goes to investigate the clunking noise coming from the basement. The player is accordingly tasked with finding a vase to "play" with. In doing this, the vase breaks and the lights go out. After the player retrieves the flashlight, Mama is seen briefly in the dark just before the lights turn back on. Tattletail is then to be put back into his box and wrapped up, after commenting that he finds Mama scary. December 22, After inserting the tape into Mama and listening to it, Tattletail is found upstairs, having made a mess in the living room. Then he wants to be taken to Mama, whom, upon the player arriving to her previous location, has vanished. Tattletail is to be put back in his box and wrapped back up. December 23, Tattletail is found in the garage, conversing with a yellow Tattletail. After he is picked up, he says that he and other implied Tattletails are "having a party for Mama". The player is requested to help them. The player is led towards the basement, where the previous yellow Tattletail is accompanied by a blue Tattletail. The player sets down their own Tattletail on the charging station and is told to bring friends from under the Christmas tree and in the garage, alongside other various items, all the while avoiding Mama. Bringing down and placing these items accordingly will then begin a seance involving a pentagram to banish Mama. During said seance, Mama will steal the candles and hide them in vases around the basement, while also hunting the player. Surviving the seance and destroying the VHS tape ends in the five Tattletails being wrapped into presents, after which the player goes to bed. After it is opened, it is shown to be empty, which then triggers Mama to jumpscare the player, thus meaning the ritual was unsuccessful. The player then goes to wake up their mother. Upon opening the door, the mother can be heard yawning, and Tattletail thanks the player. The game ends on a white screen. Kaleidoscope Campaign December 25, The player is instructed to open their gift, which is a purple Tattletail. However, Tattletail now looks different, with a dull grayish tone to his fur, gray eyelids and green eyes. He also speaks in a lower-pitched robotic monotone. Tend to his needs, then listen to his facts, many of which are obvious. Head to the door to investigate the knocking. The door will be open and there will be a package. Open it, and read the letter. It then heads to the next Previous night. After he is picked up, bring him to the basement and Yellow Tattletail, Blue Tattletail, and Mama can be found having a tea party instead of a ritual. Put Tattletail on the plate, and the player gets a letter after Tattletail utters another fact. After doing so, the player should head through the kitchen, where the Yellow Tattletail can be found crying and complaining that his egg is gone, and Mama Tattletail will be consoling him. The blue Tattletail will be in the garage, with the stolen egg. Open it to receive yet another letter. December 22, The player is woken up to a grinding noise coming from the basement. Pick up the flashlight it will be on the floor in front of the basement door and head down to where Mama first appears in the regular campaign, stopping to have Tattletail tell a knock-knock joke along the way. Mama will be wide awake and looking around. Turn her off, and her chase music begins to play. Head upstairs and into the sitting room, where the lights turn back on. December 21, The player is woken up to a clunking noise, just like in the main game. However, upon going down to the basement, Tattletail will be on a table next to the washing machine. Turn it off and retrieve the clothes. Then, pick up Tattletail and head to the nearby open door where Mama Tattletail can be seen congratulating the yellow and blue Tattletails for having fixed a vase. Break the vase and read the letter. December 20, The player is instructed to go and open their present early. The present is Tattletail, still not returned to normal. Go and open the package on the table to reveal another letter. The letter presents the player with two choices: The player can do either one, though going to bed will immediately end the game. Watch the VHS tape. The player is instructed to open their Christmas present early. Doing so reveals Tattletail, who is finally back to normal. After feeding and grooming Tattletail, go to wrap him back up. He will tell a knock-knock joke about oranges. Mama Tattletail, now savage again, finishes the line. Once they escape, the player will be taken back to Christmas Day. The Real December 25, The player is instructed to open their present. He thanks them for fixing him, with a gift. Said gift is one final letter, congratulating the player. Tattletail then tells the player another knock-knock joke. When the player asks "Me who? However, the screen then irises around Tattletail as he says "Me love you! The screen irises out and the game ends.
