

1: Reverent Womanhood: Tea Time with GOD: The Tea Cup Story

Time to relax, time to be quiet, time to sit and sip from your favorite china cup -- tea time will be the most important part of your day when your guest of honor is God!

The thing that jumped out at me was this paragraph: We have to drink it. Because when I look back at my life over the past 40 years, It seems as I have been having to swallow one difficult cup of tea after another! Not only that, but over the course of a few years especially more in the past few months , I find myself wanting to turn to a cup of tea more and more for relaxation and calmness. A cup of hot Tea has become my "drink of choice" and just yesterday I was telling my husband how much I would like an old fashioned teapot that has the strainer built in so that I can use loose tea I read the passage part about "A Bitter Brew". Boy, can I relate to the past part of it when the author wrote: Well, feeling wise anyway I had to keep reading I have been known to feel a lot of both of these emotions over the course of my life and adding to that, anxiousness and full of worry I had to keep reading there are only 3 more paragraphs left I felt like God was reaching out to comfort me. So many different emotions I have been experiencing and a few words in a short article seemed to just put me at ease. It was the promise that you hear about in church I have learned so much. Just in exploring my own personal relationship with him But, something happened when I opened up my heart and said ok Anyway, I am rambling now I read and have to share this paragraph with you: Sometimes, life can be just downright ugly. I am human after all. But I like what the author said. Just because I have become a Christian and have the Holy Spirit inside of me does not mean that my life will be a bed of roses. Since beginning this journey with God, I have learned that I can now recognize those self defeating feelings ahead of time and when they come up rather than just push them down inside and If my life were a teacup, I think it would be one made of fine china We will all enjoy hot tea, cold tea, luke warm tea, sweet tea and bitter tea. My question to you is, what kind of tea do you fill your cup with? How do you sweeten it to make it easier to swallow? Dear Lord, thank you for my cup of tea. Lord, thank you for giving me the sugar when sometimes, it just gets to bitter to swallow. Lord, thank you for being alive and active in my life!

Tommy Nelson Mommies May 20, Girls of all ages love to receive encouragement. Today our food for thought is hosting a tea party to encourage the girls in your life. Obviously there is no right or wrong way to have a tea party, but thinking outside the standard can be a fun way to enjoy time with the girls in your life. Today I have a few ideas to help get you started with encouraging your girls through a tea party: They love to have pretend tea parties with their toy tea sets. Taking their simple imaginative play to the next level can be as simple as washing the cups and allowing them to actually pour and drink juice. Simply being involved in their play and offering a choice can transform everyday play into memory making. Read a book at tea time. I just have to share this little snippet with you: Provide the opportunity to sample new flavors. Trying a new cake or cookie or even tasting tea for the first time can be such an enjoyable experience for children. This is the perfect time to discuss likes and dislikes or how God created all of us unique; even the way we interpret flavor is not exactly the same. Use Scripture tea tags and discuss the Bible verse attached to the tea. We enjoy choosing tea tags in colors that accent the tea cups we choose to use for our little party. Dress up and have fun! Many girls love to dress up. My girls love to wear a pretty dress and have their hair pinned up, even if it only lasts a little while. This is a great time to teach manners by example. Use the power of words to encourage their hearts. Need a quick way to encourage your girl? I need to be reminded of this daily so I like to use this list of 20 things to say to encourage your children. Which of the ideas above is your favorite? We would love to hear your ideas!

3: Tea Quotes and Sayings for Every Occasion - Tea Answers

I enjoy tea time with God daily, but it wasn't always like that. Oh no, for the longest time I was living in the world of shoulds! You know that world. I should go pray now, I should meditate, or I should do self-Reiki.

Do you think that you have done something so bad that He would never want you back? Do you think that you are lost forever? Then this book is for you. As I write this, I am at the tail end I hope of a long period of emotional and physical trial. More importantly, I am at the end of a long period of selfish rebellion against God. Almost exactly ten years ago I thought I surrendered at the foot of the Cross. I refused to submit to God, because that meant I would have to submit! I want what I want! But this attitude has reaped me much pain. The separation from that wonderful fellowship with my Lord caused me more agony than anything I could have ever imagined before. I thought I was lost down the darkest chasm, never to be seen again. I walked around in darkest gloom. As long as I was His little puppet, I reasoned with myself with some help from Satan, no doubt, He would love me and reward me. As soon as I exercised "freewill and liberty", He punished me with loss and pain. I could not identify that it was rebellion I was exercising, not freewill, and that the pain came as the consequences of that rebellion, not as punishment from God. Maybe you are at the point where you have given up your rebellion, but you wonder if God will take you back. For years, many of my Christian friends preached that a person could lose their salvation, forever separating themselves from God, by rebellion. And certainly, I thought, the blasphemy that was part of my rebellion had to make a permanent fissure between us. No one would want to renew a relationship with someone who yelled at him horrible things I yelled at God! The next six pages are meditations on verses from our love letter from God, the Bible. Over and over, He has told us that He never wants to lose relationship with us. Read each one, one at a time. Really think about each one, one at a time. Let the first sink into your heart, the full meaning, before going on to the next. It may take a few days or a few weeks to believe what He has said, so be patient with yourself! It may help to carry it with you wherever you go, so that you can look at it whenever you need to. I will post one new meditation each day for six days--LL copyright Foot of the Cross Publications used by permission.

The Tea Cup Story A couple vacationing in Europe went strolling down a little street and saw a quaint little gift shop with a beautiful teacup in the window. The lady collected teacups and she wanted this one for her collection, so she went inside to buy the teacup, and as the story goes the teacup spoke and said: It took the process of pain to bring me to this point. You see, there was a time when I was just clay and the Master came and He pounded me and He squeezed me and He kneaded me and I screamed: But He just smiled and said, "Not yet". Then He took me and put me on the shelf and I went round and round and round and round And I started pounding on the inside of the oven and I said, "Master, let me out, let me out, let me out! Then He opened the door and I was fresh and free and He took me out of the oven and He put me on the table and then He got some paint and a paintbrush. He started dabbing me and making swirls all over me and I started to gag and I said: He just smiled as He said "not yet". Master, please let me out I could see that He was smiling but I also noticed a tear trickle down His cheek as I watched Him mouth the words, "Not yet! Would you like to see yourself? He said, "Yes, that IS you, but it took the process of pain to bring you to this place. You see, had I not worked you when you were clay, then you would have dried up. If I had not subjected you to the stress of the wheel you would have crumbled. If I had not put you into the heat of the oven you would have cracked. If I had not painted you there would be no color in your life. But, it was the second oven that gave you the strength to endure. Now you are everything I intended you to be - from the beginning. I thought you were going to harm me, I did not know you had a glorious future and a hope for me. I was too shortsighted, but I want to thank you. I want to thank you for the suffering. I want to thank you for the process of pain. I give you myself - fill me; pour from me, use me as you see fit. I really want to be a vessel that brings you glory within my life. HE has also set eternity in the hearts of men; yet they cannot fathom what God has done from beginning to end.

In his letter to the church, Jude states that he wanted to write about the wonderful, amazing, too-good-to-be-true salvation that we share but that he needed to write about the false teachers who were leading people away from the power of believing in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. He reminds us all about Cain the Israelites who saw the power of God to bring them out of Egypt but got out into the desert and doubted God. He also talks about the fallen angels who left their position of authority and home in heaven because they did not believe God. He claims that the judgment on Sodom and Gomorrah is a picture of the eternal fire that God tells us was prepared for the fallen angels but will be shared by human beings who do not believe. And the angels who did not keep their positions of authority but abandoned their proper dwelling—these He has kept in darkness, bound with everlasting chains for judgment on the great Day. In a similar way, Sodom and Gomorrah and the surrounding towns gave themselves up to sexual immorality and perversion. They serve as an example of those who suffer the punishment of eternal fire. But that is the God He says He is. We may not like His plan. We may not understand how leaving the fallen angels and unbelieving people behind can be a good however, we need to believe that God is good, and He says He will do that one day. It really comes down to this: We can believe or not believe. God is the one who gives us that power. She writes weekly on teatimeforyoursoul.com. I have found this to be a wonderful tradition. Emilie suggests that you divide your notebook into three sections: Prayer Requests, Sermon Notes, and Notes. A Pen and a Colored Highlighter Marker with post-it flags. The pen is obvious, but I find a colored highlighter marker usually in a neon color with post-it flags attached, invaluable when I read my Bible, especially if I come across a verse that speaks directly to me, or that I want to memorize. The post-it flags are super handy to stick on the edge of the page, marking the place for easy reference later on. Keeping your Bible handy has multiple benefits. While you are praying God may reveal something to you in a verse. Or you may be lead to do a Bible Study by yourself. Or if you are praying for someone specific, you might want to write them a note of encouragement along with a verse from the Bible that may relate to their situation. Sometimes, I have felt lead to just open my bible up randomly after praying about something, or if something is weighing heavily on my heart. It never fails to amaze me, how God can speak to us when our hearts are opened. A Travel-Size Packet of Tissue. A dear friend of mine, and I, sometimes find ourselves especially teary-eyed during prayer. Emilie suggests keeping note cards in your Prayer Basket, and I think that is a super idea. That way when you are praying for someone, you can send them a note of encouragement. I have been on a prayer partner list for a while, and once a month we get a postcard in the mail with the name of our prayer partner listed out by week. What a wonderful way to let your prayer partner know you were praying for them that week, by sending them a note card. I bet you will brighten their spirits if they receive a special card from you. Try it; you will be amazed and blessed. Other items you might want to add to your Prayer Basket are a small light weight blanket fleece works nicely , a pair of reading glasses, or a devotional book. You can use any type of tea for this celebration. My suggestion would be either a black tea, green tea or a herbal tea. You want something that is relaxing but not so relaxing that it will put you to sleep while praying! This could be anything you want. I suggest something light, like a muffin or toast. This should be something related to the time of day you engage in your "Tea With God". I like to have my time with God in the morning. There is something calming and relaxing sitting outside on my back porch near the garden, and engaging in a conversation with God. There I feel close to God. We have a couple of Mourning Doves in our neighborhood, that like to nest in the pines in my back yard. Where will you have your intimate "Tea with God"? The last thing you will need to bring to your "Tea With God" is: Your Attitude of Gratitude. This is the most important ingredient that will determine your getting the most out of your "Tea With God". So no matter how often you engage in a "Tea With God", your attitude of gratitude will determine how successful your tea party turns out. You might initiate the tea with taking a moment and counting your blessings. I have found that no matter how many problems I have weighting me down, there is always something I can be grateful about; I just have to take a moment and look around to see that God has not forgotten me, and He has provided so many blessing in my life. Have you counted your blessings lately, before petitioning God for more? Write me and share your traditions and revelations in your "Tea With God". I would truly love to hear from you. A woman is like a teabag.

7: Tea With God Tea Party

Afternoon tea time, a time to relax, to sit and sip from your favorite china cup, a time to spend a special moment with God. These brief meditations will help you discover gentle touches of God's comfort and encouragement for living out your busy day.

Since I have been back at school, I have been really missing my family. I always call back home my home base. I have been going through some personal things here at school and have been craving home base A LOT! I can tell you right now since I have been spending time with God more, I have felt so much more peace. Instead of being so reactionary to what people may say about me or what I think they feel, I have gotten into the habit of praying about it then setting my heart free of any of the weight that may have been there before. Giving my troubles to God has left me with such a forgiving heart. So when I spend time with God, whether it is through singing in my car, journaling in my prayer journal, or even praying at night, I ask him to cleanse me, forgive them, and lift the weight my heart! Give us your ideas! Here are some ways that you can spend more time with God every day! Pray Every Morning Prayer! One of the simplest ways to spend time with God every day is making a routine habit of saying a quick prayer sometime during the morning. My mom taught me this little trick when I was young. She told me to thank God for waking me up every morning and ask for a great day. If you know me, you know I love music. So I have a playlist that I like to play every morning either in my car if I drive to school or my headphones if I walk. Here are my favorite songs on my playlist! As a writer, having a prayer journal really helps me physically get out anything that may be on my heart. For me, it is a safe place that I can be my true self with God and where nobody can judge me. Read a Devotional A devotional is a great resource for spending time with God everyday because most of the time, devotionals are designed to be done everyday! There are so many great apps that encompass great devotionals! Listen to a Podcast Podcasts are my favorite way to pass the time on the city bus on the way to school. My favorite podcasts are from Set Apart Girl! You can even listen to sermons on youtube if you have a favorite preacher! Read a Book for Christian Girls My goal this year is to read a lot more! One of the ways I enjoy spending time with God is reading books about being a Christian girl. I love books that are filled with genuine stories and advice. Bible Journal I wish I was better at this but I do have a bible that is specific to bible journaling. Bible journaling is like artistically portraying the word tinyour own creative way. Some use colored pencils while other use actual watercolor paint! It is possible to live for him daily. These women always motivate me to spend time with God. I hope this helped out some Blessed, Brilliant, Beauties this evening! See you next week!

I asked God to tea. God sat there in the kitchen and smiled at me. But I stumbled and mumbled, afraid just to speak. It was my invitation, yet how could this be? I poured God some tea and started to cry. God patiently waited, but finally asked why. What could I say, since God knows my heart? Do you love me? And again, I cried. I love you, God told me. I know you so well. But there are things on your mind. God took hold of my hand in the gentlest way. God said close your eyes and then try to pray. I love you so much, so much more than you know. Talk to me as a friend, just let the words flow. I want you to love and I want you to lose the fear that has told you that God is so great that no one can know God, that Heaven can wait. For God is right here, God is sipping this tea. God is talking to you; will you please talk to me? So I prayed and I talked, soon my eyes opened wide. God was here drinking tea; God was right by my side. But in love, like a friend. God again took my hand. Whenever you need me, remember the tea. Ask me in, sit me down, and then look at me.
