In fact, Military Appreciation celebrations this year at Penn State kick off with the annual Military Appreciation football game on Oct. Looking back to and a century of military history, McFeely notes that the U. After years of neutrality and peace, America was now at war. Penn State University Archives The expansion of a military presence on campus became necessary when, in August , Congress lowered the draft age to Nationwide, also was the first year the Marine Corps Reserves opened to women. At noon on Oct. The University Park campus was turned into a makeshift military base, including converting fraternity houses into barracks and erecting new barracks on Old Beaver Field, located in the area of Whitmore, Frear and Osmond laboratories. As a result of this intense focus on military preparation, Penn State and other universities shifted their curriculum and goals to help prepare students for life in the military, rather than the corporate world. Assisting the nation in its time of need was a priority. Army officers on May Day at University Park, A quick winding down of the aggressive military push occurred shortly after the Armistice of Nov. Unexpectedly and with little fanfare, the emphasis on the military during World War I opened the door for women to serve in a military that had previously banned them. A year before, in , Loretta Perfectus Walsh had become the first enlisted woman in the military, joining the U. The first women to blaze new trails through the military at Penn State include: Johnston, of Levittown; Nancy C. Fuller, of Pittsburgh; Diane K. Shifflett, of Saegertown; Carol A. Rodems, of Syracuse, New York, shake hands with Brig. According to the U. Today, women in the military have come a long way from the beginnings of their service years ago. In addition to increased numbers, women now hold virtually any role in the military, including combat positions. Right now, I feel like the field is very even and the sky is the limit.

Mission[ edit ] The mission of the Joint Forces Staff College, a component of the National Defense University , is to educate national security professionals in the planning and execution of joint, multinational, and interagency operations in order to instill a primary commitment to joint, multinational, and interagency teamwork, attitudes, and perspectives. ANSCOL conducted a four-month course that was successful in training officers for joint command and staff duties. A joint committee was appointed to prepare a directive for a new school. Responsibility for the operation and maintenance of its facilities was charged to the Chief of Naval Operations. Following a temporary residence in Washington, D. The site, formerly a U. Naval Receiving Station, was selected by the Secretaries of War and Navy because of its immediate availability and its proximity to varied high-level military activities. There were students from all Services in the first class. They assembled in converted administration buildings on February 3, to be greeted by the first commandant, Air Force Lieutenant General Delos C. The faculty officers came from joint assignments in all theaters of World War II. With the construction of Normandy Hall in , AFSC completed its transition from a temporary to a permanent institution. This was in keeping with direction of the intent of the Goldwater-Nichols Act of a single site institution to provide joint "acculturation" of officers in the process of making said officers joint qualified. In , JFSC opened Okinawa Hall which houses the Congressman Owen Pickett Wargaming Center and the Congressman Ike Skelton Library, which is a specialized military library focusing on research in joint and combined operations, military history and naval science, operational warfare, and irregular warfare. The staff, faculty, and students are assigned by each Service to foster a joint atmosphere. JPME Phase II[ edit ] In the post Sep environment, it became clear that JFSC had a finite throughput capacity in the number of officers it could produce annually who were either en route to, assigned to, or completing joint duty billets in order to become fully Joint Qualified Officers. By , the U. This week satellite program course with equal air, land, and sea service is offered by JFSC, but hosted by JSOU, making it technically "non-resident. This model reflects input from the combatant commands, which preferred the week, full-time option rather than a longer-term, after-hours option that was originally proposed. Petersburg and other Reserve and National Guard activities in the Tampa area as room allows. Pending congressional approval, the satellite option may be offered to other combatant commands as soon as The only academic difference is in the lessons on the elements of operational design, which use locally relevant case studies. For example, Norfolk-based students focus on the Revolutionary War Battle at nearby Yorktown, Virginia, while Tampa-based students focus on the Second Seminole Wars in Florida, of which several battle sites exist in the area of Central Florida surrounding Tampa. AJPME is a hybrid program, with two separate sessions totaling four weeks on site at JFSC in Norfolk, augmented by another 36 weeks of collaborative interactive distance learning between all students in a given class and faculty at the Norfolk campus. Congress, since the Department of Defense had already initiated an investigative inquiry. On June 20, , the Pentagon announced the completion of its inquiry into the JFSC course and a larger review of professional military education. The reviewers found that, with the exception of the elective course, "adequate academic standards exist for approving [PME] course curricula and presentations, and for selecting guest lecturers. The course has been suspended and will not be offered again until recommended changes have been made. The Army lieutenant colonel who taught the class has been relieved of his teaching duties. The report also recommended a review of the actions of two civilian JFSC officials to determine if administrative or disciplinary action would be appropriate, and a second military officer will receive administrative counseling.
