1: Connecticut Town Birth Records, pre (Barbour Collection)

Connecticut, Town Marriage Records, pre (Barbour Collection) This database contains an index to vital record information for individuals who married primarily before , abstracted from Connecticut town vital records, and recorded in the multi-volume set known as the Lucius Barnes Barbour Collection.

There are two parts to the collection; a statewide surname index and a bound volume for each town. The references on the slip or in the bound volumes are to the original records which are generally on microfilm. Because the Barbour Collection is a transcription, keep in mind that there will be no additional information in the original record. Also, many lineage societies accept the Barbour transcripts. Is the Barbour Collection online? Barbour had directed the publication of the Bolton and Vernon vital records by the Connecticut Historical Society in . He hired several individuals to transcribe the vital records of most other Connecticut towns. Most well-known was James N. Arnold, who had previously published the Rhode Island vital records. Barbour presented the "Arnold" transcripts to the Connecticut State Library, where the information was typed onto printed forms. These form sheets were then cut, producing 12 small slips from each sheet. The slips for most towns were then alphabetized and the information was typed a second time on large sheets of rag paper, which were bound into a separate volume for each town. Thus, there are two parts of the Barbour Collection: Each slip contains a complete abstract of an event, generally a birth, marriage, or death. Where parentage, residence, or relationship is found in the original entry, it is included in the Barbour abstract. At the bottom of each slip there is a citation to the original source from which the information was obtained: A list of abbreviations used may be found in the front of each Barbour Collection bound volume. Although there is normally no more information in the original records than what appears in the abstract on the slip, researchers desiring to see the original context or verify the accuracy of the transcription may consult the original records on microfilms which are available for use at the Connecticut State Library or through LDS Family History Centers. Yellow slips in the same file have similar entries from private sources and institutions see Related page Vital Records from Private Sources. Index Volumes Since the bound Barbour volumes were prepared from the slips, they contain essentially the same information and the same references to the original records. However, there are some important distinctions: While the slip index retains the original spelling of the surname, the bound volumes consolidate surnames under one spelling, so that the original is not preserved. Since the bound volume is yet another generation away from the original source, the potential exists for additional errors in transcription. Each bound volume contains an introduction explaining the sources of information and abbreviations used. Bound volumes were not prepared for the towns of Bolton, Coventry, Enfield, Mansfield, New Haven, Norwich, and Vernon since published compilations of vital records had previously been prepared for these towns. However, these towns are included in the statewide slip index. In a few cases, such as those of Coventry and Mansfield, the Barbour slips were prepared from the published vital records, and the page references are to the published book, not to the original manuscript volume. Early Norwich and Woodstock vital records were also published; the Barbour Collection volume for New Haven only covers the years , and the Woodstock volume the years . Published vital records volumes as well as Barbour Collection bound volumes are available for Saybrook, Suffield, and Windham. Oct 9, 2:
