

1: Members - The World Food Lover's Dining Out Group (New York, NY) | Meetup

This guide has been accurate: the restaurant which the guide features in each group has been the best, and only in one case the most expensive. My only complaint would be that browsing for a particular type of ethnic food isn't always fast.

New York City is a microcosm of the world, where you stumble upon four different ethnic food shops right next to each other and people speaking a dozen other languages all on the same street. I feel like I can escape back to other areas of the world without ever leaving the city. Today, I want to share some known and not-so-well-known places to eat and drink in the Big Apple. I visit here too often – so often they gave me cake on my birthday and call me up when they have special offers. The portions are huge here and, according to my friend Jodi, who is an expert in all food Vietnamese, this place is authentic. Their 4-Cheese and Cheeseburger are my two favorites. They use all-natural and organic ingredients, and the number of toppings you can put on the burger is amazing. Not only do they serve great burgers but they have really good organic and healthy salads, sides, and sandwiches. You can get beef, chicken, bison, ostrich, elk, or a veggie burger. The original location in Madison Square Park usually has a long line, so be prepared to wait though you can look at the Shake Cam on their website to see. Serving Bombay-style street food, this place serves some really good Indian meals. The plates are sharable, and you get rice and bread, too. They were delicious – the pork dumplings had intense flavor to them. As someone who has lived in Thailand, I have very high standards and this exceeds them all. If you only eat at one Thai place, make it this place. And if you want more for later? The thin-style pizza comes in huge portions big enough to serve three. Service is quick, but expect to wait for a table during dinner. Chelsea Market 75 9th Ave – Chelsea Market is more a collection of food places than a single restaurant. The Lobster Place has decent sushi and great lobster, but I really enjoy their clam chowder. If you want a meal with local and organic food, try the Green Table. There are two locations: Come early because it fills up really quickly, especially on nice warm day. It gets very crowded here, and the wait to get in can be up to an hour, but luckily, there are nearby bars to hang out at while you wait. Even better is their gigantic whisky list featuring hundreds of whiskys from around the world. If you like spirits, come here. Watch out for game nights as the place gets packed, though once the game is over, people leave pretty quickly and you get the dart board all to yourself. The Thirteenth Step 2nd Ave – This is your typical college bar with dollar beer on Tuesday nights. If you want to get drunk on cheap beer, this is the place to do it. The Frying Pan 12th Ave – An old boat on the Hudson river, this bar is an after-work and happy hour staple of New Yorkers, especially during the summer when the boat teems with locals who come out for drinks, sun, and socializing – all reasons why this is one of my favorite places in the summer, too. The picnic tables allow you to talk to your friends or make some new ones, there are ping-pong tables, and the casual, after-work environment makes it a great place to hang out with your friends. Visitors are welcome on weekdays, free of charge. Lower East Side Tenement Museum Orchard St – Visit to immerse yourself in the immigrant experience and learn about how the waves of people lived in the early 20th century. Advance reservations are required for the tours. New York is full of a million different places to eat, drink, and explore. It cuts out the fluff found in other guides and gets straight to the practical information you need to travel and save money the city that never sleeps. Click here to learn more and get started.

2: 24 Amazing Places to Eat and Drink in New York City

*The Food Lover's Guide to The Best Ethnic Eating in NYC [Robert Sietsema] on www.enganchecubano.com FREE shipping on qualifying offers. From Argentinian to Yugoslavian, Get ready to taste New York City the world's melting pot of cuisines with this vastly expanded third edition of Good & Cheap Ethnic Eats.*

But then all the great eating possibilities in New York City got to me, and I found myself unable to resist. Now, I know the city is filled with countless restaurants and that any list I write is going to be incomplete. After all, how many places could I really eat at in the two months I was there? Nevertheless, here are my favorite eateries in NYC: Mizu Sushi 29 E 20th St As a sushi lover, many of the places I ate at this summer were sushi restaurants. One of my favorites was Mizu. The sushi is excellent, and their prices are reasonable for sushi in NYC. The only downside is that the restaurant can get very loud when full. The thin-style pizza comes in huge portions big enough to serve three. Service is quick, but expect to wait during dinner for a table. Its burgers are thick and juicy, and you can get them covered in cheese and bacon. They come in buckle-busting portions. Beyond the burgers, they have great sandwiches and salads, and the fried pickle and pastrami appetizer is really good tasty but not filling. Nobu is a mecca for sushi lovers, and if you come to NYC and can afford it, eat here. They have over 12 international locations, but the New York City and LA restaurants are the most famous. Dinner will set you back a few hundred dollars, so you might be better off coming for lunch if you want to save money. Beyond the sushi, I recommend the rock shrimp tempura. It melts in your mouth. Chelsea Market 75 9th Ave Chelsea Market is more a collection of eateries than a single restaurant. If you want a meal with local and organic food, try the Green Table; the food is excellent, everything is well portioned, and they do very good drinks. Come for dinner for a more traditional Italian meal. The food is very flavorful and the portions are large. You might even spot a celebrity or two. During the summer, Locanda Verde is especially popular with people who want to dine outside. Expect long lines at both locations, especially at lunchtime. Guests have been known to wait up to an hour for a chance to eat here; I waited 45 minutes for my burger. Standing in line for an hour with everyone else is pretty social and a good way to spend a warm afternoon. And in a place called the Shake Shack, the shakes must be good. Hill Country is a great place to get messy with some ribs. The menu draws its inspiration from the grand old meat-markets-turned-barbecue-joints of central Texas. And like any good rib joint, Hill Country has a large selection of beer and tequila. Blue Water Grill 31 Union Square W Located in a former bank, this three-floor, heavily marbled space is usually filled with business diners, couples, and tourists. The seafood menu has delicacies from all over the world. I highly recommend the King crab legs. It has a good wine selection too. You could eat out for every meal and never get to all the amazing places to eat in New York City. I never got to sample the ethnic food in Brooklyn or even Little Italy. There are just too many restaurants in NYC. It cuts out the fluff found in other guides and gets straight to the practical information you need to travel and save money the city that never sleeps. Click here to learn more and get started.

3: New York City Food Tours - 6 Unique NY Food Tours - Foods of New York Tours

My LB Life "Junk Food Junkie Marla Is Eating Herself To Death [Full Episode].

4: The Food Lovers Guide to The Best Ethnic Eating in NYC - Video Dailymotion

The Food Lover's Guide to the Best Ethnic Eating in New York City by Robert Sietsema starting at $ The Food Lover's Guide to the Best Ethnic Eating in New York City has 2 available editions to buy at Alibris.

5: Foods of New York Tours: Since - NY's top rated food tours

Add tags for "The food lover's guide to the best ethnic eating in New York City". Be the first.

6: Intimate Culinary Tours Around Manhattan Island. | Manhattan Food Tours

If you love to eat, New York City is your town. From fine dining (complete with tasting menus that cost about as much as my mortgage) to ethnic cuisine and eat-on-the-run goodies, this city not only has it all, but has some of the best versions. Here's just a handful of the great food options this.

7: Great Places to Eat in NYC

item 7 The Food Lover's Guide to the Best Ethnic Eating in New York City Sietsema, Rob - The Food Lover's Guide to the Best Ethnic Eating in New York City Sietsema, Rob $ Free shipping.

8: | Travel + Leisure

See more The Food Lover's Guide to the Best Ethnic Eati Email to friends Share on Facebook - opens in a new window or tab Share on Twitter - opens in a new window or tab Share on Pinterest - opens in a new window or tab.

9: The Food Lover's Guide to the Best Ethnic Eating in New York City | eBay

"I'm a food lover in the extreme and would like to meet other world food lovers in NYC." "I love everything ethnic: cooking, eating, the music, the languages, the.

Thinking physics by lewis carroll epstein Extracts from: Report of Mr. E.P. North on stone and specifications The drive for caring The Revolution Will Not Be Televised Revised Ed Economic issues in the Bible and the Talmud Books to be read before graduation. A sermon preached at Hatfield, October 20, 1807. Service-books of the Royal Abbey of Saint-Denis Designs of Chinese buildings, furniture, dresses, machines, and utensils. Exploring the sacred art of Andhra The Official Patients Sourcebook on Blastomycosis University of Hong Kong, an informal history Aspecting the cunning one : serving your community The passing of the herds. Ethanol plant development handbook For all the saints sheet music Yet another look at the bar : Manet, Duranty, and the double view by Marilyn R. Brown Nursing care plan for depression The Sea World book of seals and sea lions Computational models of mixed-initiative interaction By the railway side 1908, by F.R. Holmes. Madden 18 manual xbox one Momma: a start on all the untold stories. Flaming Carrot comics presents Flaming Carrot, man of mystery! Ship-building. By W. C. Steadman. A Christmas Alphabet [Clothbound boxed edition] Isometric embedding of Riemannian manifolds in Euclidean spaces Winning is half the battle Psychiatric aspects of morale, by H. S. Sullivan. Hyundai sonata repair manual Impact factor journals 2015 Why I am not an Ooxy Moron Sams Teach Yourself Microsoft Visual Basic .NET 2003 in 21 Days, Second Edition A wizard in chaos The five dysfunctions of a team by lencioni Puppy love Helen Louise Miller Psychological issues in genetic testing J. Scott Roberts The wealth of nations book by adam smith Part 2 : The necessity of biblical application.