Collier states there is a God in you that will carry you and in the doing of it, will provide you with every good thing this world can supply. He hopes to help the reader find the God within you, the God nobody yet knows.

Robert was educated in a church seminar school and was expected to become a priest, but before taking his vows, he decided against the life of a clergyman and headed for West Virginia to seek his fortune.. Secret of the Ages There he worked as a mining engineer and learned first-hand to deal with life and humanity. With the help and guidance of such experts as Bruce Barton and Fred Stone, he developed ideas in sales copy, persuading the top men to test them in new circulars he wrote. The results were fantastic. He sold many thousands of the Harvard Classics--a five-foot shelf of books by Dr. Elliott, and his circulars on the O. Henry stories brought orders for over two million dollars, followed by orders for over 70, books on "The History of the World War. From this illness came the desire to investigate how the Mind could so quickly and surely cure a trouble that doctors had been working on for months--that there must be powers in the Mind he had never even suspected; and if it had dominion over his physical self, why could it not cure business problems too? Why could it not correct any financial lack? Why could it not bring him anything of good that he might wish? He decided that it could--and proceeded to find the way. For long months, he studied hundreds of books and courses on everything relating to New Thought metaphysics, occult, and success. Whole religions seemed to be built on it. He delved into the deepest mysteries of the Masters. It was a long time before he began to find parts that were really workable in everyday life, a long time before he realized tangible results from his efforts, but when results began, they came quickly. Robert Collier had the idea for a long time for a set of books on practical psychology. He put this idea into action, working night and day writing the books. Within six months after the books were published, he received more than one million dollars worth of orders for them. The books were entitled, The Secret of the Ages. He sold over , sets of them. The books really worked. He received thousands of letters telling of results obtained from reading these books. He later combined this excellent material into one book and named it, The Law of the Higher Potential. It has since been renamed, Riches Within Your Reach. He also condensed the seven volumes of The Secret of the Ages into one book, which has proven to be a best seller for many, many years. It has been translated into German, Italian, French, and Spanish, and sold all over the world. Robert Collier was a devoted husband and the father of six children. He passed on in , but his books endure. Robert Collier Publications, Inc. The messages remain--still relevant--still needed. Begin to free yourself at once by doing all that is possible with the means you have, and as you proceed in this spirit the way will open for you to do more. You must intensify and render continuous by repeatedly presenting with suggestive ideas and mental pictures of the feast of good things, and the flowing fountain, which awaits the successful achievement or attainment of the desires. One might as well try to ride two horses moving in different directions, as to try to maintain in equal force two opposing or contradictory sets of desires. Plant the seed of desire in your mind and it forms a nucleus with power to attract to itself everything needed for its fulfillment. The first principle of success is desire--knowing what you want. Desire is the planting of your seed. Very few persons, comparatively, know how to Desire with sufficient intensity. They do not know what it is to feel and manifest that intense, eager, longing, craving, insistent, demanding, ravenous Desire which is akin to the persistent, insistent, ardent, overwhelming desire of the drowning man for a breath of air; of the shipwrecked or desert-lost man for a drink of water; of the famished man for bread and meat. Giving: You have to sow before you can reap. You have to give before you can get. Pictures help you to form the mental mold. All of us have bad luck and good luck. The man who persists through the bad luck--who keeps right on going--is the man who is there when the good luck comes--and is ready to receive it. The mere fact that you have obstacles to overcome is in your favor. The best flux in the world will not make a usable shape unless you have a mold to pour it in. Success is the sum of small efforts, repeated day in and day out. See things as you would have them be instead of as they are.

I think you owe it to yourself to read Collier's work and you won't regret it. This is a short book but extremely powerful and www.enganchecubano.com much wisdom and to the point, this book is a great introduction to the spiritual genius of Robert Collier.

Worst of all, he had a bad case of "self-pity," and he felt that the self-pity was fully justified. He was staying at a small Art Colony on credit, trying to rebuild his wrecked life and wretched body. Among those at the Colony was Mike, an Hawaiian boy. Mike seemed to be always cheerful. Mike seemed to be always prosperous. And, naturally, Blanding wondered why. So one day he asked Mike what good fairy had waved her wand over him and turned all that he touched into gold. The whole of creation responds to praise, and is glad. Animal trainers pet and reward their charges with delicacies for acts of obedience; children glow with joy and gladness when they are praised. Even vegetation grows better for those who love it. We can praise our own ability, and the very brain cells will expand and increase in capacity and intelligence, when we speak words of encouragement and appreciation to them. Everything is your servant, but remember it is said in the Scriptures that God brought every beast and fowl to Adam, to see what he would call them. You are like Adam in this, that you can give to everything and everybody with whom you come in contact the name you like. You can call them good or bad. And whatever you call them, that is what they will be--good servants or evil. You can praise or curse them, and as you do, so will they be to you. Salute the Divinity represented by it. You will be surprised how soon that small piece of money will increase to many pieces. Take God into your business. Bless your store, bless everyone that works for you, each customer that comes in. Know that they represent the Divinity called Abundance, so bless them as such. Bless the work you are doing, be thankful for every opportunity it gives you to acquire greater skill or ability or to serve others. Bless the money you earn, no matter how little it may be. Be so thankful to God for it that you can give a small "Thank Offering" from it to someone in greater need than yourself. Suppose the Boss does seem unappreciative and hard. Bless him just the same. Be thankful for the opportunity to SERVE faithfully, no matter how small the immediate reward may seem to be. Give your best, give it cheerfully, gladly, thankfully, and you will be amazed how quickly the INCREASE will come to you--not necessarily from your immediate boss, but from the Big Boss over all. I remember reading a letter from a woman in the drought belt in which she said that they, unlike most of their neighbors, had an abundant supply of water, and excellent crops. Each seed that goes into the seeder is blessed, and the realization held that it will produce abundantly according to His righteous law. Our neighbors marveled at the abundance of hay that we cut this year. The hay was sold before the third cutting was put up. Praise may be called the great liberator. You remember the story of Paul and Silas. They lay in jail bound with chains, but they did not despair. They rejoiced and sang hymns of praise, and lo, the very walls were shaken down and they were set free. When we praise God and then look about us and praise His invisible presence in all that we see, we find that the good is so magnified that much becomes evident that we ordinarily fail to see. When He looked at five loaves and two small fishes and realized that He had a multitude to feed, His first thought was a thought of praise. And what was his remedy? What brought him through all tribulations to power and riches? Just read the Psalms of David and you will see. For it is certain that whatever seeming calamity happens to you, if you thank and praise God for it, you turn it into a blessing. Could you therefore work miracles, you could not do more for yourself than by this thankful spirit; for it turns all that it touches into happiness. How can you get more of riches and happiness and every good thing of life? In the same way as the Wise Men and the Prophets of old. In the same way that Jesus twice fed the multitudes. And the way to expand is through love, through praise and thanksgiving--through saluting the Divinity in it, and naming it Infinite and Abundant Supply. Rejoice, be glad, praise, give thanks! And that was what our Hawaiian boy had done. That was the secret of his prosperity and success. The Talisman he had pasted over his bed meant--"Lord, I do give Thee thanks for the abundance that is mine. The happy ending lies in the fact that these words of praise and thanksgiving proved to be as potent a talisman for Don Blanding as they had for Mike, the Hawaiian. And it is as true today as it was thousands of years ago. Praise, thankfulness, understanding--these three supply the golden key to anything of good you may desire of life. Alexander told how praise helps. It is a tonic to the giver and the receiver. It rebounds to both a thousand times. Praise was the inspiration. A friend asked him why he quit his almost lifetime companion, though she was well provided for. Your secretary has a new dress, a new hat, a fashionably fluffy ruffle--tell her so. The file clerk finds your letters quickly--tell her so. The cop on the beat is sure to see the school boys are safely over with a wave of his hand. Tell him he is tops. She had a tough time in life, poorly educated, used split infinitives, came early in the morning to clean the house. It costs you nothing but a smile--but do be sincere. You know your man. Praise and appreciation bring back greater praise and appreciation to you. If you want health, happiness, in your life, if you are seeking riches and success, attune your thoughts to these. BLESS the circumstances that surround you. Bless and praise those who come in contact with you. Bless even the difficulties you meet, for by blessing them, you can change them from discordant conditions to favorable ones, you can speed up their rate of activity to where they will bring you good, instead of evil. Good revolves at a high rate of activity. You can key your activity to that same rate by an expectant, confident state of mind. In the pages that follow, we shall show you how the practice of blessing and praising all things has brought good to all who have tried it, how you can use these same methods to attract every good thing you may desire. Yet if you refer to the very first book of the Bible, you find more profound examples of applied psychology than in any textbook of today. Take the story of Jacob as an instance. You remember how Jacob agreed to serve Laban seven years for the hand of Rachel in marriage. And how, through the guile of his father-in-law, Jacob had to serve a second seven years. Even then, when he would have gone back to his own country, Laban begged him to tarry yet a while longer, and agreed to pay Jacob as wages "all the speckled and spotted cattle and all the brown cattle among the sheep, and the speckled and spotted among the goats. But Jacob evidently knew his Scriptures, and the idea we think so new, that first comes the "word" or mental image, then the physical manifestation, was in his mind even when he made the bargain. For what did he do? Too lazy to rear and care for its own young, it goes to the nests of other birds when they are off seeking food, notes the markings on their eggs, then comes back later and lays in their nest eggs of those same exact markings! Various saints of the middle ages are said to have had markings on their hands, feet and sides similar to those on the crucified Saviour, acquired from constant contemplation of His image. And only recently I read of an adopted child, which was reported to have developed markings similar in all respects to those of the real son of its foster-parents, although the son had died some months before the adopted child was born. She had grieved inexpressibly over her loss. She had adopted the waif to try to fill the void left by her own little boy. And striving to see in his every action some reminder of her lost one, those images so strongly held in her mind actually expressed themselves in the body of her foster-child. It all comes back to that first line of the first chapter of the Gospel of St. John--"In the beginning was the "Word. A mental image, is it not? Before an architect can build a house, he must have a mental image of what he is to build. Before you can accomplish anything, you must have a clear mental image of what it is you want to do. Turn to the Scriptural account of the creation of the world. What is the outstanding fact you find there? And God said, Let there be a firmament. And God said, Let us make man. Scientists tell us that words denote ideas, mental concepts--that you can always judge how far a race has advanced in the mental scale by the number of words it uses. Its vocabulary is the measure of its ideas. Few words--few ideas, few mental images.

He was a prolific writer and progressive publisher who strongly believed that happiness and abundance were within easy reach.
