Howard Family Tree The following chart is a family tree of the Dukes of Norfolk, who were members of the Plantagenet, Mowbray and Howard families. Family tree.

Pioneers of the West Saskatchewan. The first recorded spelling of the family name was probably that of Robert Howarde, dated in the rolls of Ely Abbey, Cambridgeshire. The Howard family who became the Dukes of Norfolk was originally from Norfolk and claimed a connection with the 11th century Saxon fighter Hereward the Wake. These Howards, the premier dukes of England, are now based at Arundel castle in Sussex. They have been through their long history staunch Catholics. Howards were also to be found in Cumberland in the northwest of England. Thomas Howard, the 4th Duke of Norfolk, married into the Dacre family in the 16th century and thereby inherited the vast Dacre estates in Cumberland. He was soon executed for treason. But his son William re-established the Howards there. A related Howard family held Levens Hall near Kendal for many centuries. Howards also held the Glossop estate in Derbyshire from to Management here was usually entrusted to the second son of the family. By the late 19th century the largest number of Howards in England was to be found in the northwest, primarily in Lancashire. Howards at North Meols near Southport date from about They were farmers and their family records were recorded at the local church of St. The Haywards of Ashton under Lyme became Howards around Another Howard family of the same timescale was to be found at Little Shelford in Cambridgeshire. Here as in Lancashire the early spelling may have been Hayward. Howard lines in Maryland traced themselves back to the younger portionless members of the ducal Howards who sought their fortunes in America. These Howards were part of the Maryland country gentry set. There were other Howards of less ducal origins elsewhere. John Howard , formerly Hayward, arrived from Kent with his brother on the Hercules in His family became leading citizens of the town of Bridgewater, Massachusetts. Others of these Howards later settled in Vermont and Maine. One line led to Oliver Howard, born in Maine in , who was a distinguished US army general during the Civil War and in later campaigns against the Indians in the West. This became a premier university for African American students. Henry and Ann had the following children all baptised at Little Shelford 1: A son Newman Howard could be the clue here. They had the following children, again at Little Shelford 1: His son Johannes, born in was also a Yeoman. They had eight children, although only three all of them survived into adulthood. All were baptized at Little Shelford parish church 1: He was a Yeoman farmer and died intestate in , and although no record of his burial could be found initially, it has recently been found to be 1st October, at Little Shelford. His widow Ann, died in and was buried on 25th October, also at Little Shelford. Although they had six children, only four survived and all were baptized at Little Shelford parish church 1. He was buried on 31st March, at Little Shelford. They lived in Little Shelford where John was a farmer of over acres of land and there, they had five children who were all baptized at Little Shelford parish church 1: He was buried on 24th June, at Little Shelford. Henry and Elizabeth had six children, baptized at St. Andrew Grt, bur 8. He was buried on 28th March, at Little Shelford 1. He left a will dated 26th March Andrew the Great, Cambridge. It appears that Susan Lofts has an illegitimate daughter, Caroline Lofts bp 3. John and Susan, however, had seven children 1 , 4: By he was recorded as a Gentleman, as he was up to at Great Shelford. John Henry died in and was buried on 8th January at Little Shelford 1. Ann appears to have had two children before she married Alexander fathers unknown and then one after: Wellington Howard bp They had the following children: Henry Hillard Howard, born in , was a farmer and emigrated to Australia in aboard the Diadem. He married Mary Ann Murphy in at Terang and there, they had 10 children. This census supports the theory that Frederick and his brother Richard Gates were twins, as they are both recorded as being 14 years old. They had six children all baptised at Comberton 7: Impregnable at Devonport Dockyard in Devon. Therefore, I had expected to find both Eliza and Frederick deceased. As yet I have been unable to find the actual birth record or a marriage for Frederick and Charlotte. Elizabeth was his younger sister. He was aged 63, a tailor and widowed. After extensive searching through the census, it is the only Fred Howard that is a tailor and so the probability is high that it is him. It is not known when or where they married. There, she had a son, James Howard Cole in Records in the Australian death Indexes and the Perth Metropolitan Cemeteries Board suggest that George Cole died at Swan in aged 87 date unknown and that Kate died at Swan on the 8th June ; both are buried at grave site 49 at Guildford cemetery. He is buried at Karrakatta cemetery. In he lived at West Street, Comberton with his mother, brothers and sisters 6. It appears from his Naval records that James joined the Royal Navy on 6th June, where he was on the ship Bosaawen until March 31st of the same year. He served on a further thirteen ships from 1 July to 15th December His character was described as good or very good throughout his naval career and he moved from B1 class to Ordinary Seaman in December and then to Able Seaman in April He was living at this address when he married. On 31st December, he was awarded the Diamond Jubilee medal. In October of the same year, James was moved to the Fire Brigade Headquarters where he served until James and Rose had the following children: However, it is known that he left the family on several occasions, causing Rose to go looking for him. It is possible that Rose believed he had gone to America and not Salisbury as there is a passenger list from New York to Glasgow arriving on 31st July, in which a Mrs Howard aged 30 and an Alfred Howard aged 7 are travelling 8. A trip at this time would suggest that James may not have been home for the birth of his second son. The Ellis Island Passenger records at http: There are some dubious entries on a couple of passenger lists to New York that may be James including one in September where a James Howard aged 44 claimed to be an actor. Which would mean he arrived after Rose! Then, according to the Incoming passenger lists to the UK found on www. So it appears that Rose may either have had a wasted journey, or had arrived in New York before James. Did she catch up with him and refuse to come home on the same ship or did she not find him at all? There is still no record of James returning before Their third child, Ivy Rose Howard was born on 29th December, 5. The following year, it appears he left his
