Like seriously where are the real stylish men in the millennial world today?! Now, this is getting too nostalgic. This decade also included grunge looks and punk style with spikey hair and ripped jeans. Plaids, checkered shirts and artsy prints were the highlights of the era, unlike the 80s bold prints! Overalls ruled 90s style. Shoulder pads of the 70s and 80s gave way to turtlenecks! Loose tracksuits paired with high top sneakers were a rage. Hope this trend never dies. Mesh shirts, oversized shirts, denim jackets and metallic jackets too were a thing in the 90s style fashion. In fact, you can wear them to a 90s themed party now! Also, classic blue high waist jeans were in vogue and they are back now! Denim Jackets Denim jackets were also a big part of the 90s fashion. This casual yet comfy jacket was perfect for any occasion. Movies like The Shawshank Redemption and Speed made oversized long denim jackets the highlights of the 90s urban fashion. Leather jackets were a must have 90s male fashion trend, thanks to pop icons like George Michael! Also, the leather on leather look was popular. In fact, the king of pop, Michael Jackson made the leather look quite popular! Tom Cruise also made short tousled haircut famous in Mission Impossible. Accessories The 90s rap fashion was all about baggy clothing with chunky jewelry. The oversized rings and bracelets were fashionable. Also, the laceless and high top sneakers are back now. The matching baseball caps were stylish, too. Oversized Tee Shirts The oversized tee shirts with text or graphics were the trademark of 90s hip hop fashion for guys. The slouchy hoodie trend was set by Eminem in the late 90s fashion! This refreshing style is making a comeback now. The movie also popularized the mohawk haircut. In fact, its less-extreme version is trendy again! The 90s punk fashion for men also included spiked leather jackets. The rips were big enough for a puppy to sneak in! The famous Johnny Depp and Kate Moss made it a couple thing by sporting the grunge hairstyle. The Unshaven Look Like the messy hair, the unshaven grunge look was considered to be macho. And again, Johnny Depp made the 90s grunge style famous! Piercings George Michael started the fad in the 80s, but piercings for men became an even cooler thing in the 90s. The ear piercings with tiny circular earrings were a common sight in the 90s!

By rigidly adhering to only those men who were actually of the nineties group I am only too conscious these pages will be considered often to be lacking in the great literary events and figures of the age, such as Hardy's Jude the Obscure, the rise of the Kipling star, the tragedy of Wilde, the coming of Conrad, etc. Etc.

Actress Paula Abdul wearing semi-transparent black dress, curled hair and smoky eye makeup, Young woman standing on sidewalk, Uptown New Orleans, Supermodels and high fashion[ edit ] Throughout the s, supermodels dominated the fashion industry. Whether booked as individuals or as an elite group, each supermodel gained worldwide success and had great influence on the fashion industry. Cindy Crawford was the highest paid model on the planet in per Forbes. Later in the decade, Tatjana was replaced in the Big Five by supermodel Claudia Schiffer, who is one of the most successful supermodels in the world, holding the record for the most magazine covers according to The Guinness Book of World Records. Later in the decade, the rise of Kate Moss shifted the world of fashion when her entrance onto the scene turned the Big Five into the Big Six. Typical patterns included triangles, zigzag lightning bolts, diamonds, lozenges, rectangles, overlapping free-form shapes, simulated explosions inspired by comic book illustrations or pop art , intricate grids, [18] and clusters of thin parallel lines in contrasting colors for example, white, black and yellow on a cyan background. Many women wore denim button-down Western shirts , colored jeans in medium and dark green, red, and purple, metallic Spandex leggings, halterneck crop tops , drainpipe jeans , colored tights, bike shorts, black leather jackets with shoulder pads, baby-doll dresses over bike shorts or capri leggings, and skating dresses. Neon colored tops and leg warmers were popular, together with leopard print skirts [19] shiny satin or rayon blouses, embroidered jeans covered in rhinestones, [13] and black or white shirts, leggings and jackets printed with abstract red, blue, yellow and green geometric patterns. In America, popular accessories included court shoes , cowboy boots , headscarves , slouch socks , Keds , ballet flats, and the penny loafers or boat shoes associated with the preppy look. Leggings and exercise-wear[ edit ] From on, sports bras , hoodies , Leotards worn as tops with jeans, a sweatshirt especially Champion brand over a turtleneck with jeans rolled up to show off their slouch socks were popular with young girls, teens, college girls, and young women in the UK, Europe and America. A common outfit was to wear a skirt, dress shorts, babydoll or minidress with black opaque tights , white athletic socks , and white Keds athletic sneakers. It was not uncommon to see mothers dressed right along with their daughters in white slouch socks worn over black leggings or sweatpants especially heather grey color , an oversized T-shirt, sweater or sweatshirt worn over a turtleneck, and Keds , Converse All Stars, or unisex aerobic, basketball or Nike Air or gold Reebok hi-top running shoes. Leggings worn over pantyhose or tights with a pair of flats were also common. Leggings and slouch socks with oversized tops and casual sneakers especially Keds continued to be worn as lounge wear and everyday comfortable and fashionable casual wear until the late s. For younger American, Australian and Latina women, grunge fashion consisted of flannel shirts, ripped jeans, mom jeans , Doc Martens , combat boots, band t-shirts , oversized knit sweaters , long and droopy skirts, ripped tights, Birkenstocks , hiking boots, [22] [23] [24] and eco-friendly clothing made from recycled textiles or fair trade organic cotton. Jane Leeves , In , grunge clothing rapidly declined as fashion became more feminine and form-fitting. Young women in the UK and America wore tailored skirt and trouser suits, short skirts and dresses , baby doll dresses, animal prints, hot pants , [29] slim pants , bright colors even in colder months , long and short skirts , and high heels. This trend consisted of tartan minikilts , undersized sweaters, short slip dresses, baby doll tees , knee highs , thigh highs , miniature backpacks, overalls , tights , pantyhose , and chunky shoes. This included pencil skirts , cardigans , girdles , petticoats , satin or lace Wonderbra lingerie, and fitted suits. Other s fashions such as chunky jewelry, hoop earrings , smoky eye make-up, hairspray, Alice bands , [42] and brightly painted nails remained common. Shorts suits were also very popular. They consisted of a regular suit top and jacket and dress shorts with tights underneath worn with ballet flats. By , professional women in Britain, Australia and America wore more relaxed styles and muted colors, [43] such as black floral print dresses, plain kaftan style blouses, Mary Janes , maxi skirts, boots, smart jeans, big floppy hats, culottes , and chunky platform shoes.

Trouser suits began to replace skirts, [44] and nude tights and black pantyhose made a comeback. By the late s, kurta tunics were turned into short dresses, and Manish Arora designed garish Hindu "God printed T-shirts" [49] for both locals and global tourists. British, Asian and American designers also incorporated ethnic chic fabrics, such as khadi , paisley , silk or Indonesian Batik [50] into Western-inspired clothing patterns such as shirts and blouses featuring traditional embroidery. This type of clothing was worn not only by the immigrant Bangladeshi, Pakistani and Indian diaspora in Britain, but also by many non-Indian women. Particularly common were black or dark red pleather pants, [52] animal print clothing, halter tops, [53] metallic clothing, [54] crop tops , tube tops , maxi coats, maxi skirts , knee boots, and boot-cut dress pants. More formal styles intended for the workplace or special occasions such as a cocktail party included silk blouses in neutral colors or animal prints, [58] tailored pantsuits and skirt suits inspired by the s, [59] collarless coats, [62] and the little black dress , with or without subtle embroidery. From "the 1990s", the unisex casual chic look gained mainstream appeal, with dark stonewash jeans, spaghetti strap crop tops , tracksuits , sweatpants , and other athletic clothing. Running shoes with built in air pumps were popular among both sexes. Leather had largely replaced canvas, and soles were made of foam rather than solid rubber.

The '90s was an incredible time for X-Men comics. Uncanny X-Men was still going strong, continuing the success of its iconic run through the '80s. In , Rob Liefeld and Fabian Nicieza concluded their run on New Mutants and released a new comic titled X-Force.

Voght has the unique power to turn anyone or anything she can see to mist, including herself. The mist is also able to travel through the Astral Plane, which allows her the capability of long range teleportation. Voght has even shown the ability to teleport distant people to herself by visualizing that person turning to mist and bringing that mist to her presence. Feral was not pleased with the mission because Gyrich was known to hate mutants. She is a strong mutant with many physically enhanced abilities. She has the superhuman ability of strength, agility, speed, stamina and reflexes. All of these powers make her one of the fiercest characters at hand-to-hand combat. She also possess razor-sharp claws, heightened senses and a mild regeneration ability. This is one cat you do not want to meet in an alley. He was able to capture the real Beast and alter his own fur color to infiltrate the X-Men. He also exhibited a genius-level intellect, conducting several genetic experiments on himself and altering his power level for better or worse many times over the years. In order to keep his family safe from mutants he volunteered to give up his humanity and be transformed into a Phalanx. The Phalanx are techno-organic beings, whose nervous systems are comprised of organic connections, but their bodies are structured like machinery. The Phalanx share a hive-mind and all have the same powers. They can infect living organisms with the techno-organic transmode virus, which either turns their victim into a Phalanx as their underling or absorbs their victim to gain mass. Although Harvest was very strong, he rarely engaged in combat. He would make his many underlings fight the battles, which is the true power of Harvest. He uses the emotions of his victims to inflict such devastating psychological pain that he often leaves them in a mindless state, which he can then control. Even though this power seems very dark, Fabian Nicieza, writer of X-Men 19, had a little fun with it when he wrote Skinner attacking Psylocke with her greatest fear -- lying in the same bed as Cyclops. Shinobi has the mutant ability to alter his body density from intangible to diamond-hard. This power allows him to escape any dangerous situation by either passing through objects or making himself impervious to damage. Shinobi is ruthless, dangerous, powerful and rich, a very bad combination for the X-Men. Holocaust is a spiritual essence living inside indestructible armor. He is able to drain the life force from other beings to charge his suit and increase his mutant attributes. Aside from being basically invulnerable to any physical injury, Holocaust can generate and fire highly concentrated plasma beams, which are extremely deadly in combat. He can then use those beams to propel himself in flight. Did we mention he is also impervious to psychic attacks? How did the X-Men handle this guy? He is able to absorb the agony and painful emotions of anyone anywhere in the world and channel that into an energy blast that would have the same agonizing affect on his victims. The closer the pained individual is to Chambers, the stronger he gets. Since Chambers craves power over everything, simply absorbing pain from all over the world was not good enough. He created an island sanctuary for all the victims of the Legacy Virus, which was a biological weapon that could kill humans and mutants. He has a massive power set including superhuman strength, agility, stamina, speed, durability and reflexes. These abilities combined with his high level healing factor allowed him to repeatedly clash in battle with Wolverine. In combat he uses his retractable tentacles as a weapon which, similar to Wolverine, he has implanted in his body. These pheromones make Omega Red one of the top X-Men baddies of the decade. Stryfe is an uncontrollable madman, with no regard for human or mutant life. The combination of the two makes Bastion a Super-Sentinel. As a Sentinel, he has the usual robot powers of superhuman strength and speed. Being a machine also makes him immune to psychic attacks. Bastion has complete command of all other Sentinels and has the ability to turn people into armored beings with powerful weapon systems called Prime Sentinels. With a self-repairing system, which simulates a healing factor, Bastion became one of the biggest threats in the X-Men comics. He has displayed an immense amount of telekinetic, telepathic and teleportation powers. His telepathic powers have been matched to Professor X and his teleportation ability can transport him and others from Earth to an orbiting space station. He also possesses a healing power that can be used to bring others back to life. An interesting and unique aspect of his power is that it increases when he and others around him have faith in his ability. The idea of Onslaught is simple: Enter Onslaught, a psychic entity created from the consciousness of these two men while they were engaging in battle. Onslaught combines the anger and vengeance of Magneto with the suppressed negative feelings of Xavier. The extent of his power is so vast that it is almost immeasurable. Maybe not your favorite X-villain, but without a doubt the strongest.
