The news is still reverberating in all corners of the Republic of South Sudan. General Thomas Cirillo, is a living hero and a role model to many Equatorian and South Sudanese officers and soldiers. His resignation can only encourage more of the same from the real patriots amongst the armed forces. His brilliant resignation letter has confirmed what we have been saying all along that the SPLA is not a national army and the government is implementing a divisive policy aimed at domination and hegemony of the Jieng tribe over the other ethnicities of South Sudan. It was perceived that the General has been under enormous pressure to quit the government from his community and the Equatorians on the one hand, and as a result to the mounting crimes committed by the SPLA and the militias affiliated to it against the civilian populations, on the other. They are above the law, and South Sudan is more or less being run as a Chieftaincy of the Jieng tribe. The ridiculous attempts to discredit and tarnish the name of Lt. General Thomas Cirillo will all be despised and ignored. His reputation would ever remain immaculate and unscathed. These attempts are cheap and are being propagated by food lovers like Brig. Regarding military education, training, courage and integrity, Lt. Of course, there are those with twisted minds who seem to tolerate commanders who commit atrocities and kill innocent civilians. Their followers and beneficiaries even call them as brave men and heroes. Well, ruthlessness and savagery are not bravery and massacring unarmed civilians, is not heroism. Perhaps the only field in which the trio could beat Lt. General Thomas Cirillo without contest " is the field of thievery. Therefore, it was not a surprise that the names of the trio appeared in the Sentry report while the name of Mogga Lo Cirillo was nowhere to be found in it. In fact, many in his community, who know him very well, have been worrying that his name may get soiled in the course of serving the people of South Sudan in a government full of thieves. His departure is a great relief to his friends, community and the people of South Sudan. Even if he decides to do nothing more, he has already done the single most important thing which is the unveiling of the fact that we neither have a national army nor an impartial government. At the time of writing this piece, the social media circulated the resignation letters of Brig. Now, what would the government say about these resignations? Would the two military judges be accused of misappropriation of funds to blemish their reputations? These are testimonies confirming that matters have reached the lowest low. The SSDF commends the patriotic move by the two military judges and encourages others to take similar decisions. Hence, the SSDF takes this opportunity to appeal to our people in uniform to desert the SPLA and all the armed forces as they were shown beyond doubt to be nothing but tribal and oppressive institutions.

The Story of Esther 1, views 10 years ago Hear about Esther, an assisted living facility resident who helped one person find their purpose.

He was, as a chosen member of the Ceremonial Guard, on sentry duty [95] at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at the National War Memorial when he was shot. Although several civilians immediately provided assistance for the wounded reservist, [96] Cirillo died in hospital later that morning. A few hours later, police corrected this mistaken report, stating that only two shootings took place. The National Defence headquarters, the parliament buildings and other government facilities remained in lockdown while a search of the area took place. Parliament Hill remained under lockdown until well past They also announced that Zehaf-Bibeau was not one of 93 suspected extremists on a RCMP high-risk traveller list, though email written by Zehaf-Bibeau had been found on a computer belonging to an unnamed individual charged with terrorism offences. Preventing the individuals from traveling is critical. Among other powers, it would allow the agency to operate internationally and introduce a program to revoke Canadian citizenship of dual nationals who are convicted of terrorism. The security video was not released to the public. Other areas suggested to be addressed was the need for better surveillance equipment including a central surveillance officer, and a lack of networking between the forces, including the RCMP. Members of Parliament had called for its release, stating that he should not comment on it without releasing it for public discussion. Paulson said releasing a partial transcript was possible. The RCMP will then act on revising its security after the reviews are complete. Until that time, the RCMP has increased its numbers around Parliament by rotating new officers for two-month terms to Parliament Hill security. Zehaf-Bibeau is quoted as saying: Paulson said he believes that someone else was involved, and if they were found to have aided Zehaf-Bibeau, that they would be charged with terrorism offences. Paulson also said a post-mortem test for drugs and alcohol on Zehaf-Bibeau was negative and that he had a long knife tied to his wrist when he was killed by Parliament Hill security. OPP investigators also possess the security video taken inside the Parliament building when Zehaf-Bibeau was killed. They found witnesses to him loading it into his car. The missing 18 seconds included Zehaf-Bibeau asking God to praise his actions and curse those he is targeting. He was then hand-cuffed although he was already dead. Vickers himself shot 15 times. Zehaf-Bibeau then ran down the Hall of Honour. In it, it was reported that four RCMP officers were involved in the shootout: Rick Rozon and Corp. According to CTV News, the constables were told after Kevin Vickers was applauded for his actions that "the Kevin Vickers train has left the station but you guys will get internal recognition. According to CTV, the officers did not receive commendations and were on stress leave. As Mulcair of the New Democratic Party put it: This was immediately cleaned up in a joint effort with local residents. A member praised Zehaf-Bibeau as a martyr after prayers, leading to the police stopping him for national security reasons the next day. The times of the motorcade were publicized and people stood at overpasses to observe and as it passed. He was accorded the honour of a full regimental funeral service and funeral procession on October 28 in Hamilton, attended by family, soldiers, and dignitaries. It was attended by a larger than normal crowd of 50, Ottawa Mayor Jim Watson said it was a "sad and tragic day for the city and country. They will have no safe haven. Mutual respect and admiration will help to prevent the influence of distorted ideological propaganda posing as religion. We stand with all Canadians in condemning these attacks and seeking justice for those responsible. Along with Martin Couture-Rouleau and Justin Bourque , he has been labelled a " lone-wolf terrorist ". I know which approach would make me feel safer, what I would call real security measures: I do not believe that it was a vast network, or that the country is more at risk today than it was last week. However, that is my opinion. I can be wrong I am undoubtedly going to be wrong again, but what I would like to suggest is that we wait for answers from the police before we make assumptions, and that we speak calmly, truthfully and openly to all Canadians. I loved him deeply, as did all of the family and friends who knew him and we all still mourn him every day. That being said, I feel I should weigh in on this ridiculous "was he a hero or was he not" debate. What that deeply disturbed man killing my boyfriend should make Canadians focus on is how we can prevent another event like this through more accessible and effective mental health treatment programs that target the real source of this tragedy. Stop tearing apart the honour and love bestowed upon a wonderful man who deserves every bit of it and start taking a good hard look at the awful, dysfunctional systems in our nation that this has shown us need to change We can do, and are, better than this, Canada I feel as though this is an important discussion that needs to continue happening.

5: Downtown Los Angeles Art Walk | Downtown Art Walk Presents: Photography by Carol Cirillo Stanley

Always my favorite DJ.. a true Italian legend.. a person who with his music has left a mark in the heart of many generations.. There are no books that can fully tell the story of Andrea Raggi aka Cirillo.

A little background is in order. Its formation was due to the large number of retail robberies occurring in New York City at the time, many of which resulted in the brutalization or murder of shopkeepers. Jimmy Cirillo was one of the founding members and a good friend of mine. Jimmy died in a motor vehicle accident in His wit and wisdom will always be remembered by those of us who knew him. Here is an incident synopsis from the full article: At some point, Ionniello said, Davis, a former Marine who served in Iraq, became belligerently drunk and abusive. It had happened many times, Ionniello said, but her daughter did not seem able to turn Davis away no matter how often he abused her. Davis chased Arrendale up the stairs of her three-story townhome in the Oakdale Bluffs subdivision sometime around midnight, she said. Arrendale locked herself in a bathroom. Davis got his gun, an assault rifle outfitted with a suppressor. He burst into the bathroom and, while Arrendale was still holding Cobie in her arms, shot the young mother in the head, Ionniello said. Instead of falling onto the floor, Ionniello said her daughter fell over the toilet, dropping little Cobie into the water-filled bowl. She was cradled in the arms of an officer who rushed her outside to a waiting ambulance. However, this immediately brought to mind something Jimmy Cirillo told me about his experiences in the Stakeout Squad shootings. He observed that every time a perpetrator was instantly killed by Stakeout Squad gunfire, they fell where they stood and their legs were crossed as they fell. Usually, they were facing the opposite direction from the way they had been standing. Therefore, I regard it as a hypothesis based on his observations of the numerous men he and the other members of the Stakeout Squad had killed. My opinion is that the same thing happened to this poor young woman; her brain shut off sequentially, which caused her body to twist as it fell. It was random chance that protected her infant son from the crazed father. No offense to her is intended, I am sure she would have protected her child any way she could, had she been capable. The lesson is this: With handguns, the mechanism causing the opponent to stop is largely exsanguination, meaning blood loss. When someone falls after being shot and bleeding profusely, they may regain consciousness when the brain comes level with the heart. Central Nervous System CNS stops, such as this unfortunate young lady experienced, are the only really sure anchors.
