Hint Answer; A - What is the name of the psychic friend of Sam's who betrays him at the end of series 2? B - The grizzly hunter who looks after Sam and Dean.

What Does Supernatural Mean? Some people are prone to superstition, syncretism, UFOs and lifestyle fictions like in TV shows or movies, or need to have a handy place to fix the blame. The Christian faith takes a different view of the supernatural. Material and supernatural realities are either fully continuous or have a bazillion contact points. God functions in both parts of this one real existence. The Bible testifies about a God that is hidden from the created world, behind all that exists and every aspect of our lives. Yet, because God actually walked the material realm as a material being Jesus, our material side of reality is moved by, blessed by, and rescued by the Divine. Jesus gave the supernatural its meaning for our lives. The supernatural is another side of the same world as the one which operates according to the rules of physical being. It is most important to us because, aside from a few recently-launched chunks of metal, it holds all we are and have ever to our knowledge been. Our wee little space programs are the first step in expanding our awareness to the entire rest of material existence. If Christianity is right, there is another side or angle to that part of the material realm, too -- maybe several. But we actually have to go out there and live in it and feel its pull on us to know what it is. And it would still be known only to those who are paying close attention and know what to look for. Just like on earth. The Scriptures testify to the existence of other spirit-beings, such as angels and demons. At its core, Christianity is not really about the specific design of the cosmos. It is about a relationship with God, and about God re-creating a single world where the unseen is finally free to be seen for what it really is. Poets and songwriters instinctively know this. Thus we had best pay attention. Some people even lump the paranormal in with it. The top ten include spiritual advisors, awakenings, poems, and healing. The spiritual realm is supernatural, an aspect of what underlies all that happens in the material world, including ourselves, including everyone else around us. This stuffy world is the meat and life-blood of the spiritual realm, and the spiritual is the life-force and thrust of the realm of substance. Thus, the two worlds are different angles of the same reality, not different or separate realities. The Kingdom that Jesus spoke of works in the same way: The spiritual life or soul-life is lived in the material. And when it is completed, there will be no more mystery about how that can be. One can be spiritual and not believe in Jesus as Christ. Such spirituality is to be treasured, and those who truly are that way are doing right by God. But it kind of misses the point: Spirituality, as important as it is, is not the key matter at hand; following Christ is. The unseen Spirit is the God of the unseen at work in the seen, causing change and giving direction within the realm of the seen, ever at work for the unseen world of the Kingdom. And in the end, the unseen and the seen will be brought together in a healed realm where the Spirit can at last be seen. Till then, it takes the eyes of faith to see the unseen. You probably will anyway. For the mystical side of it, look at Wikipedia, but keep in mind that if your spirituality is not well-grounded, mysticism can lead you away from the truth, instead of deeper into it. Those terms are sometimes associated with the metaphysics of fringe religious groups. Metaphysics is the study of such matters. In some ways, it is more like philosophy than religion. Metaphysics deals with questions like, "what is real? For metaphysics to be meaningfully Christian, it must deal with, and be expressed in terms of, the stuff of the world we sense and touch and feel. To use the traditional Christian term, it must be "incarnated". The root of all-that-is, namely God, came to breathe, eat, walk, hurt, and die in this world, as Jesus of Nazareth. This is how God operates. If God does it that way, so must we, or we are not following the way of Christ. The thinnest-air analogy is taken from what they discovered at mountaintops - they rightly held there to be even less air far above the mountains. Making something seem ethereal is a wonderful effect in music or drama. Electronic keyboards, medieval organs, and ancient wind instruments, effectively convey an ethereal feeling. Wandering through the ethereal mists?

Supernatural is an American television series by Eric Kripke. It is filmed in Vancouver, Canada, and debuted on September 13, , on The WB, and is now part of The CW's lineup.

Etymology[edit] Occurring as both an adjective and a noun, descendants of the modern English compound supernatural enters the language from two sources: Originally the term referred exclusively to Christian understandings of the world. Anthropology of religion The metaphysical considerations of the existence of the supernatural can be difficult to approach as an exercise in philosophy or theology because any dependencies on its antithesis, the natural , will ultimately have to be inverted or rejected. One complicating factor is that there is disagreement about the definition of "natural" and the limits of naturalism. Concepts in the supernatural domain are closely related to concepts in religious spirituality and occultism or spiritualism. For sometimes we use the word nature for that Author of nature whom the schoolmen , harshly enough, call natura naturans , as when it is said that nature hath made man partly corporeal and partly immaterial. Sometimes we mean by the nature of a thing the essence , or that which the schoolmen scruple not to call the quiddity of a thing, namely, the attribute or attributes on whose score it is what it is, whether the thing be corporeal or not, as when we attempt to define the nature of an angle , or of a triangle , or of a fluid body, as such. Sometimes we take nature for an internal principle of motion , as when we say that a stone let fall in the air is by nature carried towards the centre of the earth , and, on the contrary, that fire or flame does naturally move upwards toward heaven. Sometimes we understand by nature the established course of things, as when we say that nature makes the night succeed the day , nature hath made respiration necessary to the life of men. Sometimes we take nature for an aggregate of powers belonging to a body, especially a living one, as when physicians say that nature is strong or weak or spent, or that in such or such diseases nature left to herself will do the cure. Sometimes we take nature for the universe , or system of the corporeal works of God , as when it is said of a phoenix , or a chimera , that there is no such thing in nature, i. And sometimes too, and that most commonly, we would express by nature a semi-deity or other strange kind of being, such as this discourse examines the notion of. And besides these more absolute acceptions, if I may so call them, of the word nature, it has divers others more relative , as nature is wont to be set or in opposition or contradistinction to other things, as when we say of a stone when it falls downwards that it does it by a natural motion , but that if it be thrown upwards its motion that way is violent. So chemists distinguish vitriol into natural and fictitious, or made by art, i. We say also that wicked men are still in the state of nature, but the regenerate in a state of grace ; that cures wrought by medicines are natural operations; but the miraculous ones wrought by Christ and his apostles were supernatural. Parapsychologists use the term psi to refer to an assumed unitary force underlying the phenomena they study. Psi is defined in the Journal of Parapsychology as "personal factors or processes in nature which transcend accepted laws" Views on the "supernatural" vary, for example it may be seen as: From this perspective, some events occur according to the laws of nature , and others occur according to a separate set of principles external to known nature. Some religions posit immanent deities, however, and do not have a tradition analogous to the supernatural; some believe that everything anyone experiences occurs by the will occasionalism , in the mind neoplatonism , or as a part nondualism of a more fundamental divine reality platonism. In this view all events have natural and only natural causes. They believe that human beings ascribe supernatural attributes to purely natural events, such as lightning , rainbows , floods , and the origin of life. In the medieval period, "nature" had ten different meanings and "natural" had eleven different meanings. He used the term praeter naturam in his writings. In doing so, he sharpened the distinction between nature and miracles more than the early Church Fathers had done. Wikiquote has quotations related to:

These stories exist in these small towns all across the country, and it just makes so much sense to drive in and out of these stories. However, he felt that "Sal" was inappropriate for a main character and changed the name to "Sam". However, there was a Sam Harrison living in Kansas, so the name had to be changed for legal reasons. However, this also presented a problem. This prompted him to include one in Supernatural. Before it could be filmed, however, script issues needed to be dealt with. Originally, the brothers were not raised by their father, but rather by their aunt and uncle. Thus, when Dean comes to Sam for assistance in the pilot episode, he has to convince him that the supernatural exists. However, Kripke realized that this made the backstory too complicated and reworked it with Peter Johnson so that their father raised them to be hunters. Due to his previous work on The X-Files, co-executive producer John Shiban was also hired to help design the series mythology. The staff for the first season consisted of Kripke and five other writers, with assistants to help with researching urban legends. At the beginning of each season, the writers are brought together and pitch their ideas, which are then assigned to a specific writer to be developed. Each story idea is outlined on a dry-erase board, with Kripke and Bob Singer making necessary changes. Afterward, the script is written, [32] and Kripke goes through it to make sure it has the same tone as other episodes. In a interview with Collider, he responded to the question as to how involved he still is with the show with the answer, "I would define myself as a proud parent who has sent their child off to college. How many viewers have to worry about the vampire in the gothic castle? This revelation caused them to change the series to focus more on the brothers than the monsters, basing the weekly monster around the storyline they wanted for the Winchesters. According to Kripke, " During pre-production, Hayden must go through the scripts, looking for possible visual effects. He then has a concept meeting with the writers, and after settling on the effect designs to use, coordinates with the special effects and stunt departments. Hayden is also present during filming to help the director make sure that the scenes are being filmed in the best way for the visual effects, such as by ensuring that the actors are looking at the correct location where an effect will later be added. Afterward, he then meets with the editors. Special instruments have also been used in specific episodes, such as "bluesy gospel music" played on a broken-down piano in the faith-healing episode "Faith". Unlike other television shows, the series features two composers: Christopher Lennertz and Jay Gruska. They write themes for their own episodes and characters and work with one another if there is overlap between episodes. They try to base the music on the visuals of the episode, such as in the episode "Dead in the Water", in which off-angle shots are accompanied by repetitive and discordant notes, and spoken words such as "water" and "die" are followed by a lower pitch to create a "gurgly" sound. Some episode titles are references to Led Zeppelin songs. Multiple songs are usually used throughout each episode, and accompany " The Road So Far " sequences before select episodes that highlight a montage of past events. Although Kripke prefers to keep a fine line between the score and songs used, sometimes Lennertz and Gruska are required to write short sections of rock-like music to fill tosecond gaps, as it would be too costly to acquire song rights. On the last episode of every season except the first, the song " Carry On Wayward Son " by Kansas is played at the beginning. Because episodes usually take place in the middle of nowhere, filming often takes place at an old military base. Having been shut down for years, the buildings have been removed, leaving just roads on which sets are erected, such as for crossroads scenes. To combat piracy, Ten debuted the second-season premiere five days before its initial broadcast in the country, making Supernatural the first major network show available for free download in Australia before being aired. Subsequent episodes became available online just hours after being televised.

The creepy and the cooky, mysterious and spooky, altogether ooky, the Winchester family! This season starts with Dean living with Lisa and Ben and lives a normal life. He no longer uses his Impala, and no longer hunts demons or other creatures. Dean is poisoned by a Djinn, after hallucinating about Azazel. Sam saves Dean from his poison, and Dean wakes up in a dark room. Sam is now living a full hunter life. After a brief meeting with his maternal family, the Campbells, including his grandfather, Samuel Campbell. Dean does join Sam eventually, and Castiel comes shortly after. His soul is in the cage with Lucifer and Michael. With this, they begin to work for Crowley, until they confront him and Castiel burns his bones. He does find out about it from Castiel. After that Dean is forced to break ties with Lisa and Ben, and Sam remembers a bit of hell. Not to mention Balthazar, the rogue angel sends them into an alternative reality. Later on, they face the Mother of All, and Dean defeats her after she reveals that Crowley is alive. So they begin to look for Crowley, only to find out that Castiel is working with him. Then Crowley kidnaps Ben and Lisa in order to make Dean stop. Dean goes out of his mind looking for them and thanks to Balthazar, he finds them. When he gets there, he finds Lisa possessed by a demon and is forced to exorcise it despite it injuring her body. Unfortunately, Castiel, having discovered that Balthazar has betrayed soon kills his former friend with an angel blade. Castiel is now the new God. Edit After declaring himself God, Castiel goes forth to try and punish all the wrongdoers in the world, garnering attention. Very quickly though, he discovers that he had absorbed Leviathan as well who are breaking free. Sam and Dean manage to return the Purgatory souls but fail to return the Leviathans who seemingly kill Castiel before vanishing. The Leviathans inhabit the bodies of many different people around the world, with Sam and Dean learning their weakness Borax, though it has minimum effectiveness on the Leviathan leader, Dick Roman. After Roman kills Bobby, Dean becomes obsessed with taking the Leviathans down and learns of a facility they are making, only to learn it is a facility to cure cancer as one Leviathan puts it: The spirit of Bobby later confirms that while they are curing disease, they are doing it as part of their grand plan to turn humanity into the perfect food source. With the help of Castiel, the brothers learn that the only way to kill the Leviathans is with the "bone of a righteous mortal washed in the three bloods of the fallen" and set out to find those three bloods. Eventually, Dean and Castiel kill Dick but are dragged into Purgatory as a result while Sam is left alone to deal with Crowley, who plans to rise to power now that the Leviathans are disorganized. Key plot points presented in the season were Sam struggling with the constant hallucinations of Lucifer and the ghost of Bobby "haunting" Sam and Dean through his alcohol flask. Much of the season involved the Hell Trials. These trials were designed by God to close the gates of Hell forever. Freeing an innocent soul from Hell. The first two were successfully completed by Sam and the third was almost to be done when Sam was stopped by Dean. It seemed that the Scribe, Metatron failed to mention that Sam would die if he completed the third trial. Meanwhile, Castiel became an unwilling pawn in the hands of Metatron. Castiel thought that completing the Heaven trials would lock the angels in Heaven and prevent their power struggle from reaching Earth. Instead, Metatron banished every angel except himself to Earth, to live as humans. It is for the first time, the brothers let monsters live, believing them to be capable of change, just like humans. Unfortunately, Benny had to be killed to save Sam in Purgatory. Angels are amassing and possessing hosts. Meanwhile, the demon Abaddon breaks out of Hell and possesses numerous militia with her demons, and starts a war against Heaven and Earth. The angels are warring against each other, having had their wings burned off in their falls, and are unsure of what to do or who to follow. Metatron appears to Castiel and other angels, sending angelic hitmen after the brothers. Meanwhile, Dean and Crowley track down Cain, who gives Dean his mark. Dean then tracks down the First Blade, which is the only weapon capable of killing Abaddon. Dean is later stabbed to death while fighting Metatron, but the Mark of Cain revives him as a Knight of Hell. They also manage to find a way to open Heaven again for the angels - for the Cube of Metatron which opens a portal to Heaven even when sealed. On Earth, Metatron is becoming far more arrogant and believes he is God. He says he will be called "X". Metatron goes around healing people and performing "miracles" to "prove" he is God. He converts an angelic faction, but Castiel fights him and tricks him into admitting his desires to enslave all angels which every single angel on Earth hears, and they run towards Metatron and shackle him in anger. However, Dean is not happy to be bossed about by the King of Hell and he suggests that they stop making deals with human clients. Finally confronting the demonic Dean, Sam tries to reason with his monstrous brother but Dean refuses to make any contact. Sam and Castiel team up to cure Dean, which is successful. Cain fights with Dean, and eventually, Dean disarms Cain literally and kills him. Edit Following the release of the Darkness , the season follows the Winchesters and their allies as they find themselves fighting the most powerful supernatural entity they have ever faced, unlike anything else they have ever gone up against before. Immediately after its release, and tipping over the Impala , Sam sees that Dean is gone and goes to look for him, finding him in a field where Dean had a conversation with the Darkness, which apparently turns out to be, or at least, takes the form of a woman in a black dress. Dean says that she thanked him for setting her free. Meanwhile, Castiel is still suffering from the dog attack spell the witch Rowena put him under and starts to attack others. He also remembers that when he attacked Crowley , the King of Hell escaped from his current vessel and into another one. He then orders his demon minions to get rid of the spell holding his vessel in place. Upon arriving there, they find people with black veins which Sam calls Rabids , people who have been forced to let their inner darkness out. This being an effect of the release of the Darkness. They also find a human baby in the mix named Amara. Meanwhile, as a manhunt for him begins, Castiel prays to the angels , begging them to help him from hurting others and is willing to take whatever punishment they bring him. As Dean, Jenna, and the baby make it out of the hospital, Sam using himself as a diversion gets infected and starts to sprout black veins. Eventually, after he prays to God for help, he encounters a reaper named Billie who is apparently disappointed that Death is dead and says that the next time Sam and Dean are killed, she will ensure that they stay dead and even that she will toss them into the Empty , a place no soul nor entity nor being can escape from. As the angels find Cass, they start to torture him and after Hannah arrives, she explains that alarms are going off in Heaven. He implies that those alarms are for the release of the Darkness. As the tortures continue, Castiel escapes and Hannah dies trying to save him. Crowley manages to get back in his vessel and his subordinates reveal that the Darkness is free, especially that when Michael and Lucifer themselves apparently shouted throughout Hell from the Cage. However, back at the hospital, Sam finds a cure for the "Rabids": And he makes a ring of holy fire and cures a few others as well. The baby turns out to be Amara as a child as Dean finds the Mark of Cain on her. After Crowley kills Jenna, Dean attacks him as he plans to take the baby, but fails as the baby walks out and quickly grows up. Sam and Dean eventually reunite and find Cass at the bunker, while Crowley finds Amara and takes her to Hell as an offering. The Winchesters look for ways to find and stop the Darkness, but first, they search for Rowena to undo the spell on Cass. They find her and she does so, but she escapes. Eventually, Sam reveals to Dean that he has been having visions about a being he describes as the opposite of the Darkness, which he thinks is God himself. While Sam and Dean work on ordinary cases involving ghosts , monsters , and even along the way Imaginary Friends, the brothers, and Cass also start searching for ways to defeat the Darkness. Castiel eventually finds Metatron , who has started a business of catching what he calls reality but is also miserable about his current status. Metatron reveals that in order to create the Earth , Heaven, even the entire Universe , in order to start creation.

The reason Buddhism can be so naturalised is because, stripped of its supernatural elements, its core teachings can be giving a sound, secular philosophical interpretation. In other words, it becomes a religion acceptable to the contemporary, naturalistic mind only when it ceases to be a religion.
