

1: The bottom line: great value - Layna, '13, and Andrew, '13, Buthker - Grand Valley Magazine

Linton Weeks The Washington Post Iyanla Vanzant has been down and out. Now her books are pulling others up. Ruby Dee The Value in the Valley takes a great many of the neglected and unexplored areas of our minds and lives and brings them, through racism, sexism, and the challenges of just living, into sharper focus.

The public accounting firm is one of many corporations that match employee gifts. Tell us a little bit about yourselves. Where are you from? What brought you to Grand Valley? I was born and raised in Muskegon and Layna grew up in Owosso. I was smitten enough with her to consider that an OK idea. Tell me about your jobs at Plante Moran. But this is where we really branch out on our own. I deal more with entity taxation in the international realm. Plante Moran is a regional public accounting firm, with offices in Michigan, Ohio, and Illinois. What are your favorite memories from Grand Valley? Grand Valley is where we planned our wedding and got our first taste of real-life public accounting. We met amazing people and fell in love with Grand Rapids. We knew we were here to stay and we wanted Grand Valley to be a huge part of our lives. How were you involved at Grand Valley as students, and now as alumni? We were involved in the Graduate Student group and various campus events, but honestly, our involvement has really grown since we graduated. Our graduate program was only a year long, but now we have a lifetime to find events we enjoy and different ways to stay connected. Layna has been closely involved with the Young Alumni Council as a past chair and a current member. Every year we look forward to the Enrichment Dinner, football games, and various work-related Grand Valley events. How did Grand Valley help prepare you for life after graduation? The knowledge we gained at Grand Valley is something we use every day. How and why did you set up the employee gift match? Plante Moran matches gifts for employees who are alumni at campuses they recruit at, like Grand Valley. Given the strong recruits Plante Moran receives on an annual basis from Grand Valley, it is a no-brainer. Seeing our company support the university that means so much to us is huge. It adds value to our degree to see our company so invested in our university and helps us pour our gifts into something we love. Why does Plante Moran participate in gift matching? It is a go-to for recruitment and company leaders feel it makes sense to invest in a school whose graduates fill their offices. Beyond its employees, Plante Moran also knows what Grand Valley means to our community and clients. Being involved with Grand Valley has brought us so many amazing opportunities. We give back because the work the university is doing is important and has directly influenced our lives. We also see how Grand Valley has been able to do great things with the gifts it has received. That makes it easy to give, knowing it will be spent to impact future students in the ways we were impacted. What difference do you hope to make with your gift? School can be stressful and the price tag adds to the stress. But we can give to a book fund or add to a scholarship. A huge part of Grand Valley was the people we met and the experiences we had. We know our gift matters. We just want someone to make a friend and get some time to enjoy all Grand Valley and this community have to offer. Matching Gifts Matching gifts through an employer can sometimes double or even triple your gift; to find if your company matches gifts, visit:

2: True Value in Spring Valley, MN, Store Hours

The Value in the Valley is one of those books you have to read or re-read, especially when you are going a "valley". I love how practical the writing is in this book and how encouraging the writer is.

The full revaluation, required by state law every nine years, was the first to take place in the city since According to City Tax Assessor Elyse Pare, the increase reflects a gradual return to pre-housing market crash values, though the market has not yet returned to the level of the revaluation, which incorporated market data from and reflected values at the height of the housing bubble. While Pare said the number is low compared with the 3 percent of appeals typically expected after any full property revaluation, several property owners still expressed concern with the process and said they planned to appeal their assessments when they receive their tax bills in the coming weeks. During the interior inspection, she said, evaluators make note of the number of bedrooms and bathrooms, and any renovations and details such as a finished basement, but do not conduct full measurements of the space. This year, 6, callback letters were mailed and received 1, responses. In total, 5, properties, or 45 percent, had interior inspections as part of their revaluation. A total of property owners were contacted and refused the opportunity for an interior inspection. Brien said several of the property owners he spoke with did not receive an interior inspection or did not think the results adequately measured the value of their property. The Breeze spoke with two commercial property owners who said their properties had not received interior inspections and they were concerned about the impact on their tax bills. One of the property owners, who asked not to be identified, said he was never contacted by Northeast Revaluation by either phone or letter to schedule an interior inspection and had spoken with other property owners in similar situations. He also expressed concern with the use of pre-existing data from Vision Appraisal taken from past revaluations. Pare confirmed the database imported information from previous revaluations but said the existing data did not impact current values. According to Pare, the revaluation relies significantly on market data to determine housing values, accounting for increases in value even when no changes to a home have been made. Next, the revaluation examines homes grouped by housing type, accounting for differences in the increase in value of homes within a single neighborhood. The increase, she said, likely indicates large numbers of families looking to downsize or an increase in first-time homebuyers coming into the market. If they are not satisfied with the results of their appeal, they can make a formal appeal to the Board of Assessment Review. The payment came after previous controversy between Mayor Lisa Baldelli-Hunt and City Council members after the council passed a resolution instructing her to issue refunds in early April rather than wait until the city received the full portion of state funds in May. Individual reimbursement rates, she said, should match the amount listed on a letter received by taxpayers in the fall. In July, taxpayers should see a further reduction of their tax rates as the state continues to phase out the motor vehicle tax. Owners of vehicles and older will also be added to the exemption this year and will pay no taxes on these vehicles. Log in or register to post comments Search recent stories:

3: Find & Shop At Local Thrift Stores Near You | Value Village

As bad as they may seem, there is a purpose or, as Iyanla says, "There is so much value in the valley." If you've ever been disappointed, betrayed, rejected, abandoned, or just plain old scared to let go, then you've been or may still be in a valley.

FB are the first that come to mind. However, successful public companies within Silicon Valley extend beyond the technology sector. WFC, Visa, Inc. CVX, for example, are leading multinational firms that all have their headquarters in Silicon Valley. Apple is one of the most successful companies in the entire world and is headquartered in Cupertino, California. Apple designs, manufactures and sells mobile devices, personal computers and digital music players, and it also sells numerous related software, services, networking solutions, and digital content and applications. The company has reached success on a massive scale since its inception and has business units that go beyond its search capabilities. It now offers a range of products and services across multiple screens and multiple device types. Google is headquartered in Mountain View, California. Its products and services are offered in more than 50 countries in more than languages. Google offers a self-serve platform for brand advertisers, agencies and publishers allowing them to power their digital marketing across display, mobile and video. Facebook was launched in by Mark Zuckerberg as a college social networking website, but it has since expanded to allow any person above the age of 13 to create a social profile. The company boasts billions of users and connects people through messages, status updates, photo and video sharing, and notification updates. The massive scale of the company has allowed it to offer highly targeted advertising, resulting in billions of dollars in annual revenue. Wells Fargo Wells Fargo breaks the mold of the recent rise of successful technology companies in Silicon Valley. The company was founded in and has grown to become the fourth-largest bank in the United States in terms of assets. It is the largest U. Wells Fargo, based in San Francisco, California, is technically a holding company that consists of three banking and financial services subsidiaries: Visa Visa, like Wells Fargo, is another multinational financial services company based in Silicon Valley. The company has its headquarters in Foster City, California. The company specializes in the facilitation of electronic funds transfers through its credit card and debit card services. Chevron Chevron is a multinational energy company with its headquarters in San Ramon, California. The company is technically an energy holding company made up of upstream and downstream segments. Combined, these segments combine to control the entire supply chain, from exploration, production and transportation to the refining and marketing of crude oil. Trading Center Want to learn how to invest? Get a free 10 week email series that will teach you how to start investing. Delivered twice a week, straight to your inbox.

I described the "value in the valley" to one of my friends as a knock out in the ring. I am not just recommending this to every single female but also male readers. It's helped guide me through a difficult period.

Location[edit] The earliest tombs were located in cliffs at the top of scree slopes, under storm-fed waterfalls KV34 and KV This explains the location of the tombs KV62 and KV63 buried in the valley floor.

Architecture[edit] The tomb of Twosret and Setnakhte showing descending corridor The usual tomb plan consisted of a long inclined rock-cut corridor, descending through one or more halls possibly mirroring the descending path of the sun god into the underworld [49] to the burial chamber. In the earlier tombs, the corridors turn 90 degrees at least once such as KV43 , the tomb of Thutmose IV , and the earliest ones had cartouche -shaped burial chambers for example, KV43 , the tomb of Thutmose IV. They almost disappeared in the late Twentieth Dynasty. Ancient Egyptian funerary texts Detail of decoration from KV2 The majority of the royal tombs were decorated with religious texts and images. Late in the Nineteenth Dynasty the Book of Caverns , which divided the underworld into massive caverns containing deities as well as the deceased waiting for the sun to pass through and restore them to life, was placed in the upper parts of tombs. A complete version appears in the tomb of Ramesses VI. Also present in the tombs were items used to perform magic rituals, such as Shabtis and divine figurines. Since the early 19th century AD, antiquarians and archaeologists have cleared and recorded tombs, with a total of 61 sepulchers being known by the start of the 20th century. Some of the tombs are unoccupied, others remain unidentifiable as regards to their owners, and still others are merely pits used for storage. It seems that at first there was no fixed plan. They were possibly the parents of Queen Tiy. Until the discovery of the tomb of Tutankhamun, this was the best-preserved of the tombs that had been discovered in the Valley. In the Western Valley, there is a tomb commencement that is thought to have been started for Akhenaten , but it is no more than a gateway and a series of steps. This is perhaps the most famous discovery of modern Western archaeology. It was discovered here by Howard Carter on November 4, , with clearance and conservation work continuing until This was the first royal tomb to be discovered that was still largely intact, although tomb robbers had entered. And until the excavation of KV63 on 10 March , [66] it was considered the last major discovery in the valley. The opulence of his grave goods notwithstanding, Tutankhamun was a relatively minor king, and other burials probably had more numerous treasures. It is not an official designation, and the actual existence of a tomb at all is dismissed by the Supreme Council of Antiquities. But it has many unique features and is extensively decorated. The decoration shows a transition from the pre-Amarna tombs to those of the 19th dynasty tombs that followed. The tomb of the first king of the dynasty, Ramesses I , was hurriedly finished due to the death of the king and is little more than a truncated descending corridor and a burial chamber. However, KV16 has vibrant decoration and still contains the sarcophagus of the king. Its central location makes it one of the more frequently visited tombs. It shows the development of the tomb entrance and passage and of decoration. It has extensive relief work and paintings. When it was rediscovered by Belzoni in , he referred to it as ". It is currently undergoing excavation and conservation by a Franco-Egyptian team led by Christian Leblanc. With known rooms, and excavation work still underway, it is probably the largest tomb in the valley. Originally opened and robbed in antiquity, it is a low-lying structure that has been particularly prone to the flash floods that sometimes hit the area. Tonnes of debris and material has washed in over the centuries, ultimately concealing its vast size. It is not currently open to the public. Notable amongst these is the tomb of Siptah , which is well decorated, especially the ceiling. He started excavating the eventual tomb of his son, Ramesses III , but broke into another tomb and abandoned it in order to usurp and complete the tomb of the Nineteenth Dynasty female pharaoh, Twosret. Therefore, this tomb has two burial chambers, the later extensions making the tomb one of the largest of the Royal tombs, at over metres. They all had similar decorations. Notable amongst these is KV2 , the tomb of Ramesses IV , which has been open since antiquity, containing a large amount of hieratic graffiti. The tomb is mostly intact and is decorated with scenes from several religious texts. Open since antiquity, it contains over a thousand examples of graffiti written in ancient Greek, Latin and Coptic. The tomb extends a total distance of metres into the hillside, including extensive side chambers that were neither decorated nor finished. This small tomb is simply a converted, unfinished corridor, but the decoration is extensive. The tomb has been newly restored and opened for visitors. The priests at Thebes grew more powerful, and they effectively administered Upper Egypt, while kings ruling from Tanis controlled Lower Egypt. They removed most of the treasure in order to further protect the bodies from robbers. Most of these were later moved to a single cache near Deir el-Bari known as TT Other mummies were moved to the tomb of Amenhotep II , where over a dozen mummies, many of them royal, were later relocated. In Coptic times, some of the tombs were used as churches, stables, and even houses. Minor tombs in the Valley of the Kings The majority of the 65 numbered tombs in the Valley of the Kings can be considered as minor tombs, either because at present they have yielded little information or because the results of their investigations were only poorly recorded by their explorers. Some have received very little attention or were only cursorily noted. Most of these tombs are small, often consisting of only a single burial chamber accessed by a shaft or staircase with a corridor or a series of corridors leading to the chamber. But some are larger, multiple-chambered tombs. These minor tombs served various purposes: In many cases these tombs also served secondary functions, and later intrusive material has been found related to these secondary activities. While some of these tombs have been open since antiquity, the majority were discovered in the 19th and early 20th centuries during the height of exploration in the valley. Tomb robbers[edit] Almost all of the tombs have been ransacked. These date mostly from the late Twentieth Dynasty. And I spent four days breaking into it, we being present all five. We opened the tomb and entered it. We found a cauldron of bronze, three wash bowls of bronze The tombs were opened, all the valuables were removed, and the mummies were collected into two large caches. A few years later most of them were moved to the Deir el-Bahri cache, containing no fewer than forty royal mummies and their coffins. Tourism[edit] Most of the tombs are not open to the public 18 of the tombs can be opened, but they are rarely open at the same time , and officials occasionally close those that are open for restoration work. The West Valley has only one open tombâ€™that of Ayâ€™and a separate ticket is needed to visit this tomb. This is to minimize time in the tombs and prevent the crowds from damaging the surfaces of the decoration. This led to an overall drop in tourism in the area. The West Valley is much less visited, as there is only one tomb that is open to the public.

5: Ten Days in the Valley (TV Series â€™) - IMDb

Value in the valley. 74 likes. Harrisonburg, VA New, Harrisonburg Nissan sells and services Nissan vehicles in the greater Harrisonburg area.

6: Revaluation boosts city property values by 16 percent | The Valley Breeze

Valley experiences open your eyes to the things you know but have difficulty facing and accepting. Valleys challenge your fears, strengthen your will, correct your misperceptions, and give you valuable insights into yourself, the world, and the people around you.

7: The Biggest Companies in Silicon Valley (AAPL, GOOGL) | Investopedia

The Value In The Valley by Iyanla Vanzant, November 7, , Fireside edition, Paperback in English - First Fireside edition.

8: Second Hand Used Clothing Shop | Value Village

Open Library is an initiative of the Internet Archive, a (c)(3) non-profit, building a digital library of Internet sites and other cultural artifacts in digital form.

9: Value in the Valley ISBN PDF epub | Iyanla Vanzant ebook | eBookMall

"Value in the Valley" continues to be the theme for the trade show, organized by the Greater Cedar Valley Alliance and Chamber. The regional economic and community development corporation has.

Medievalia Et Humanistica (Medievalia Et Humanistica New Series) Philadelphia abolitionists and antislavery cosmopolitanism W. Caleb McDaniel Itikaf devotion to prayer Michael crichton next ebook Joy Cowley writes (Sunshine books) Activate 2 teacher handbook The Ladies Auxiliary (Ballantine Readers Circle) Adobe photoshop lightroom 5 book Pt.3 Nutrition care process : Ruth DeBusk Kathy Hammond Mary Demarest Litchford A Virginia colonel Hypothesis in research methodology The PDR family guide The Diary of Kosa Pan Sip book alan b johnston Self-regulation of the brain and behavior Targeting a market Theres nothing you can do about it. Nothing! Logistics and operations management Current Practice Guidelines in Primary Care 2006 (Current) Book of metaphors. All about St. Louis, dedicated to St. Louisans and visitors to St. Louis Epictetus junior, or, Maximes of modern morality They Called Me Mayer July Encyclopedia of Islam. Athletes using performance enhancers. The disappearing act Debt management and collections system Rbi assistant 2017 books Decline of the trail Death and birth of Judaism Criminal practice : criminal law and juvenile law Maulana kaleem siddiqui books Charity and its fruits, or, Christian love as manifested in the heart and life Bk. 3. Da love-ananda gita (the free gift of the divine love-bliss) Clydeside Ties and Tales Switchgear and protection by bakshi Add a watermark to a Changing views of the earth Index (soundex to the population schedules of the tenth census of the United States, 1880, [Vermont] Encyclopedia Brown Gets His Man (Encyclopedia Brown, No. 4)