Humorous Take: A funny change from the motivational to-do lists, maybe the "nope" list will work for all those pessimists out there. (via Christina Williams) 3.

My business and life work best when I have clear goals and direction. The thing that makes me most effective is having a short list of things that I need to get done that I can put into my planner which has a more comprehensive list of things that are ongoing. With that in mind, I wanted to take a peek at all the cool kinds of to do lists that are out there! The thing I love about to do lists is that they are not as permanent as some other parts of your planner. While you might pick a pretty planner or an ARC planner, a to list can change on a whim depending how you feel that day. I love having a way to set goals in a simple form and there is just something so satisfying about having all of your to dos done for the day! I make to do lists for myself for the seasons and sell them on my Etsy store. This is the set that I made for this summer! It is cool and fun and I am obsessed with flamingos right now so that little gal with the sunglasses makes me smile! I kind of feel like this more of a planner page than a to do list, but I know that some gals like to have everything in one place. That said, if you want to track your day, this would be a great way to do it all in one place! Printable To do Lists â€” Weekly This free printable to do list from Adventures of Fang is a super neat way to record weekly tasks. I love this idea for crazy busy people who are not necessarily trying to do a whole bunch of things each day, but want to make sure that important things get done. Doing all your weekly tasks this way reminds you of all things you want to focus on a weekly basis because you see them each time you check something off. It is a bit more comprehensive than the one above. She talks about being a stay at home Mom who wants to make sure everything gets done over the course of the week. If there were one thing I would add to this it would be check boxes or squares so that I could check things off as they are done. If you are bullet journaling you could simply cross off things that were done! This would SO not work for me since 1. I write big and 2. I am more goal oriented and want to have a to list that is more focused on accomplishing tasks than recording my day, but I know lots of gals who like to keep a running record and this would be a super pretty way of doing that! I am in love with theseâ€!. Since they are from Zazzle they are super customizable with your name and fun prints! Because I am a graphic artist I thought I would mess around and do a post it note special for me! That is the cool thing, with Zazzle you can customize your to do list and make it your own!

It even has empty boxes to tick off your tasks as you go along – no messy strikethroughs here. Landeelu Balance To Do List Landee brings a bit of casual, personal flair to the standard to do list, with a nice distinction between your work and personal tasks. All too often we get carried away and procrastinate in our personal lives without even realizing it, so having a separate list is a great way to get your goals down on paper and start achieving. A minor variation on their blank to do list template from earlier, this template is once again available as a Doc or PDF file, and comes with a date column in order to organize your weekly schedule. Organized Home Master To Do List Whilst they have several free templates on offer, Organized Home have produced a to do list which is perfect for those who want a general purpose organizer to scribble down their pressing tasks. By separating what you need to do, who you need to call, and what you need to get eg, a signed document or piece of information, you can more easily create an action plan which best suits your needs. Daily Task Templates Process Street Daily To Do List Our daily to do list template achieves three key goals; it allows you to record the date, write out your own tasks, and record your progress as you go. Process Street Daily Routine Checklist Another great way to plan out your day albeit with a little more structure would be to use our Daily Routine Checklist. This gives a little more structure to your day from the get-go, with a rough outline of how many highly successful figures such as Richard Branson go about their daily lives. Design Love Fest Top 3 Tasks Design Love Fest demonstrate the opinion of many including us with this checklist, in that they focus on the three most important tasks of the day, and get you to set out a strict time of day during which you will check your emails. With bright colors and a more casual tone than the general to do list templates, this entry is perfect for those looking to take things one day at a time. Tidy Forms Two Daily Planner Tidy Forms offer a bit of a twist on your average daily to do list; their planner allows you to organize two days in advance, rather than just the one. It may not be the prettiest template on this list, but the flexibility to lay out your to do list for two days makes this a useful tool for those who find their tasks changing very little from day to day. With headings that look handwritten, along with a calm green and eye catching pink color scheme, this daily to-do template gives you plenty of room to record your tasks for the day, prioritize those extra important duties, note who you need to call, and even get a reminder to keep topped up on water when looking at the bottom of the page. Never worry about ruining your to do list with minor mistakes like ticking off the wrong task – you can instantly edit and update every instance of this weekly checklist, no matter how many times you run it. For example, you can take this weekly template, edit a few tasks to suit your needs, and proceed to run it as many times as you wish. With a section for each day including the weekend, space for 8 tasks per day, and a checkbox for each task, everything you could ask for in a basic weekly template is here. Their main product is a physical calendar split up into weekly to do lists which is perfect to sit on your desk and be to hand if you think of a task. They also have this simple but effective weekly to do list planner which is pretty much a single sheet out of their calendar. If you like this one, consider checking out the full product! Also, thanks to List It Planner for reaching out to us in the comments – this entry was created at their request so go give them some love. Smartsheet Basic Teamwork To Do List Whilst this will require you to boot up a 30 day trial period with Smartsheet to reach its full potential, this to do list is nonetheless impressive with its ability to organize the rest of your team through assignable tasks. With space to assign tasks to team members, record due dates, and more, this to do list template is only held back by the difficulty in setting up an effective task list quickly.

Look for the most productive person around and ask them what their trick to staying productive is. One of their main tips would be creating to-do lists of tasks that need completion on a daily basis. The first step in curbing habits of procrastination is making ample use of your time. Maintain a list of things that needs finishing, and cross them off as soon as you complete them. A to do checklist template is extremely useful which can help you un-clutter your life. Boost daily output in seconds with templates. Scroll down for more information on this self-organizing tip! Definition of a To-Do list Defining to-do lists is not a very difficult task. These lists can be generic and meant for grocery shopping or daily routines, or can be as individual lists for projects or tasks that require it. The To-Do list template can be as inventive or as plain as preferable. They are extremely customizable and easy to use; and they will also help you keep up with all the work that is lined up. When you realize how useful this step is in completing your work, assignments, projects, etc. Helps with time management: Many people, who deliberately do not create lists and organize their day, end up feeling more exhausted and completing less work than they had hoped. Having a set amount of tasks and jobs that require completing in a day, will help you set out some time for relaxation and calming the mind. Remember, keeping yourself energized between tasks is also important – it will help you complete more work. Setting a particular time limit for each chore, it will stop you from procrastinating and you will end up saving more time for hobbies, socializing, etc. Creating lists will help in decision making skills like which project is more important or requires more time than others. This way you will be able to prioritize your tasks and goals with methods that include more work within limited time spans. Organizing work well will help produce better quality tasks as well. When you notice positive results from the effort that is put in, as well as, the benefits of organizing, you will automatically begin making lists that prioritize each day. In the search for ways of increasing efficiency on a day to day basis, charting down all the work that need completion, their deadlines, and plans of action is one method that can be used; having set methods of execution for various assignments or projects makes completing them much easier in the long run. Try simplifying tasks so that they are completed on time, this will create more space for extra activities in any schedule. It is proven that writing anything down will aid in strengthening minds. Constantly going over grocery lists that need to be bought or work that needs to be completed will ensure that no information is forgotten or left out. This slowly builds the capacity to retain information that is necessary and important. Creating To-Do lists has its psychological effects as well. Accomplishing higher goals will be an incentive - in time handling more tasks will become simpler and less exhausting. It is extremely fulfilling, as well as, satisfying to cross off an item from lists. The sense of achievement that boosts confidence will propel you in the right direction. Increases sense of responsibility: Not having responsibilities physically represented makes forgetting that they exist easy. You will also understand the value of time and how using it effectively will assist in time management. Manage high workloads without feeling worn out with any template available! Assists in delegation of activities: If there is too much work for one person, delegating activities is necessary for efficient work completion. This will help save time, and the job will not be burdensome. How to arrange your To-Do list? To be exceptionally efficient, and really make progress with work or projects, categorizing them and listing priorities in the correct format is important. There are always some tasks that need more attention than others. Organize the To-Do list with these basic outlines: It is obvious that not all projects or assignments will share the same importance. There are some things like a college application that will be more important to complete this week than organizing your bookshelf. Arranging your tasks in order of importance with the weekly to do list template will help you prioritize what is paramount in your life. Prioritizing your schedule will ensure that you develop productive habits, to do this simply download one of the many templates available. One key way of organizing your To-Do list is in decreasing order of difficulty. Having completed the most complicated and stressful tasks, the feeling of relief and motivation will assist in handling more tasks. At the end there will be more time if any hurdles or problems arise. Successfully completing complicated work will help psychologically; your energy levels will increase too. Another wise method of completing chores is in relation with deadlines. Tasks that are required more immediately should be completed first, while tasks that are required at a later date and time can be started later. Submitting projects, assignments and homework on time is absolutely essential off your skill and sense of responsibility. Following deadlines is important for maintaining good work ethic and spectacular reputation at work or in school. Some people prefer one general list of things, while others prefer lists for individual tasks or projects. This is the simplest form of to-do lists. These can range from tasks you need to complete that day or week, whether it is homework, housework or miscellaneous tasks. These are even simple to create and use. All you need to do is tick off the completed project and move on with the next. Checklists are ideal if you do not have a lot of spare time. Finding the ideal checklist template is now easier as they can be found online! This is one of the most common lists that people forget because there are always items that slip their memory. Some people purchase items that are unnecessary and forget what is important; this can be extremely inconvenient and wasteful. Because of these reasons, lists of items that you need while grocery shopping can save time, as well as reduce any avoidable expenses with these easy to download and pocket friendly templates that are available on the internet. There are many times at work or school that projects or assignments will have subsections that are which cannot be easily understood. In order to not get overwhelmed or lose out on time, break down your project and attempt it in smaller bits. This will make assignments seem less daunting. This is a super pretty, tablet-style to do list. It is from Inkberry and covers things like "have to dos, thoughts and grateful fors". This would SO not work for me since 1.

I talk about how you can create your own customized free printable To Do list and I also share my own printable list that I created several years ago. This list has pretty much changed my life. If you do not have Adobe installed, you can download and install it from Adobe here for free. First of all, directly below is my personal To Do list, that is not customizable or editable for you to type in and change: If you want to customize your own To Do list or make pretty much any list imaginable, you will need this document below. This is what the document will look like when you click on the file to open notice the light gray shaded fields: The light gray shaded fields on the above document are all the spots that you can customize and type in your own section list headers. You can actually even type in on each line too, if you want to type in your list. To get to that file to customize and edit your own list, you can go here. The font is standard on this list. Step 1â€” Check first to see if you have Adobe Acrobat installed on your computer. Any acrobat program will work. If you do not have it, you can download and install here for free. The icon will look like one of these. This is exactly what your screen will look like after you open it notice all of the light gray shaded fields: Step 3â€” Type in your own text. Anywhere you see that shaded light gray are areas that you can type in whatever words you want. You can type on the list lines or in the boxes and customize your own list. You can create a list for anything!! For instance, I created a weekly to do list for my 11 year old daughter to help us keep up with her week and this is exactly what it looked like when I was done labeling the boxes: Again, the shaded gray areas will not show up when I print my list above. Step 4â€” Hit print after you are finished typing. This To Do list will print on standard 8. Here is a screen shot of where you click to print please read the note in the lower right hand corner of the image below: Step 5â€” Choose the number of copies you want on the screen that pops up after you hit the printer button. This is what your screen will look like after you hit the printer button. Choose your number of copies where the red arrow is below: See, it is that easy! The list possibilities are endless and are beyond just a To Do list. Once again, if you want my list, exactly as it is and do not want to customize it, you can get to that file here. If you want to customize your own, that file is here.
