As part of TMC's childhood obesity program we will establish an arcade "The Transformation Arcade" that will be equipped with our exercise bike attachment and other video game consoles that require perpetual movement.

The spillover of sights and sounds from the shops onto the five-foot-ways makes it challenging to keep eyes on the road. There are also songs playing from music shops, salesmen doing their pitch on mobile phone deals, and countless shoppers walking to and fro the fruit and grocer stall. Now for an metre stretch at least, one does not have to worry about vehicles. Half of Campbell Lane on the Serangoon Road end has been fully pedestrianised. Campbell Lane joins the likes of other fully pedestrianised streets including Bussorah Street in Kampong Glam, the stretch of al-fresco dining and souvenir shops that leads to Masjid Sultan; Waterloo Street and Albert Mall , which has made it easier for devotees to worship at both Kwan Im and Sri Krishnan temples; and Smith Street , a food hawker street in Chinatown. Campbell Lane in It is believed to be named after British military officer Colin Campbell. Ministry of Information and the Arts. Campbell Lane in early , just before pedestrianisation works were initiated. Campbell Lane alongside Little India Arcade is a busy stretch, with visitors often sharing space with vehicles on the road. Street pedestrianisation is a people-centric approach by the Urban Redevelopment Authority to promote active, walkable streets. Other than the permanent projects, there are also temporary road closures at streets like Haji Lane, Orchard Road and even in Holland Village " to allow more foot traffic and to increase street vibrancy. As for Campbell Lane, it already is pedestrianised during Indian festivals such as Deepavali and Pongal " where respective festival bazaars are held on the street. Campbell Lane is an excellent location as a public space. Campbell Lane already is a pedestrian-only street when traditional festival bazaars such as Pongal are held there. Pedestrianisation works spanned one year and coincided with the last leg of the Indian Heritage Centre construction. Campbell Lane, with the new Indian Heritage Centre in the background. The street can become a focal point to Little India tourism, with international tourists who visit both the Little India Arcade cluster and Indian Heritage Centre, and students who explore this area as part of their national education programmes. It can become a community space for programmes and activities, and the month-long Indian Heritage Centre CultureFest held on Campbell Lane is a good example of that. From Indian eateries to grocery stalls and to backpacker hostels, Campbell Lane is already a vibrant mix of traditional and modern businesses. The shop has a year-long history, with modest beginnings as a five-foot-way flower shop selling garlands and betel leaves. Today it is a 5-storey shopping establishment and is the go-to supplier for marigold and rose garlands for temples and weddings. Jothi Store and Flower Shop in The transformed Campbell Lane can become an active public space for community activities, festivals and programmes.
