For anyone who has tumbled rocks 1 It takes 3 weeks 2 It is noisy 3 The most common tumbler will probably never work again no matter how careful you are. Your polished stones will be too large for jewelry making. The best ones will be very small chips. Additionally, you can not tumble different hardness stones together as the softer ones will just keep breaking. I am not done sorting them, but have over 20 different kinds of chips. Pre-owned by jhbaril Aug 25, Top critical review A little misleading. Alright, I was under the assumption that I would be receiving 10 carats of faceted gemstones. I did get faceted Stones, however upon appraisal by a local jeweler, found out that none of them are real. I will however take them up to another Jeweler to get a second opinion, and if I find out otherwise, will amend my review. I wanted to make jewelry with these gemstones, but really most of them are too small. Pay extra and really get better quality Gemstones. I do not think they are real. If they were real gemstones it would be an okay deal, especially if you had big enough pieces to make jewelry with. The guide they give you has no pictures just a description which they all look the same just different colors, so the guide is useless. Wish it could have been a better buy. No by tatertots Aug 21, Fun for the kids and adults! My granddaughter and I had so much fun finding the hidden gemstones. These are not tiny little specs but beautiful and well sized gemstones. We are going through finding the different stones in the mix. Great fun and learning for all. And thank you for your speedy service. I, and my daughter will be buying more soon. Do you happen to know what the best brand of rock tumbler is for just small work? Please let me know asap, we are ready to buy. Thanks again Verified purchase:
