Feb 19, 2019. The Academy Awards nominations were announced Jan. 14, and for the second year in a row all acting nominees were white. The lack of diversity, despite strong minority contenders, has renewed.

The idea of this elite club having an annual banquet was discussed, but no mention of awards at that time. They also established that membership into the organization would only be open to people involved in one of the five branches of the industry: Everyone in the room that evening became a founder of the Academy. Their first organizational meeting was held on May 16, 1927. At that meeting Douglas Fairbanks, Sr. The original five were: Producers, Actors, Directors, Writers and Technicians. By July the board of directors had approved a list of 12 awards to be presented. The initial location of the organization was Hollywood Boulevard. In May 1928, the Academy authorized the construction of a state of the art screening room, to be located in the Club lounge of the hotel. The screening room was not completed until April 1929. Another early initiative concerned training Army Signal Corps officers. Griffith, William C. This time, the administrative offices would move to one location, to the Taft Building at the corner of Hollywood and Vine, while the library would move to North Gordon Street. The Directory was published by the Academy until 1930, when it was sold to a private concern. The Academy had been involved in the technical aspects of film making since its founding in 1927, and by 1930, the Science and Technology Council consisted of 36 technical committees addressing technical issues related to sound recording and reproduction, projection, lighting, film preservation and cinematography. In 1931, the Academy became the target of criticism for its failure to recognize the achievements of minority professionals. For the second year in a row all 20 nominees in the major acting categories were white. The president of the Academy Cheryl Boone Isaacs, [19] the first African American and third woman to lead the Academy, [20] denied in that there was a problem. When asked if the Academy had difficulty with recognizing diversity, she replied "Not at all. Al Sharpton called for a boycott of the Oscars for failing to recognize minority achievements, the board voted to make "historic" changes to its membership. Academy Headquarters[edit] The Academy Headquarters Building in Beverly Hills once housed two galleries that were open free to the public. The Grand Lobby Gallery and the Fourth Floor Gallery offered changing exhibits related to films, film-making and film personalities. These galleries have since been closed in preparation for the opening of the Academy Museum of Motion Pictures in 2021. The building includes the Samuel Goldwyn Theater, which seats 1,000, and was designed to present films at maximum technical accuracy, with state-of-the-art projection equipment and sound system. The building once housed the Academy Little Theater, is a seat screening facility, but this was converted to additional office space in a building remodel. The building, originally dedicated on August 18, 1929, is the oldest surviving structure in Hollywood that was designed specifically with television in mind. Additionally, it is the location of the Linwood Dunn Theater, which seats 1,000 people. La Cienega Boulevard in Beverly Hills. Established in 1927, the library is open to the public and used year-round by students, scholars, historians and industry professionals. Its "bell tower" held water-purifying hardware. The seat venue was redesigned in 1999 by renowned theater designer Theo Kalomirakis, including an extensive installation of new audio and visual equipment. The theater is in the East 59th Street headquarters of the non-profit vision loss organization, Lighthouse International.

Unmasking the Creation of 'Islamophobia' in the Academy By Pamela Geller Conservative individuals and groups frequently report that they are banned, blocked, or shadowbanned from social media.

This was not the teaching they had received from Paul. Just like the false teachers in Corinth, Mormons bring a false Jesus, a different gospel, and false Holy Spirit. Let me paraphrase this passage: We are not to commit the same error the Corinthian Church did when they accepted this false teaching. These individuals masqueraded as servants of righteousness, which means they looked good on the outside. Paul was warning the church to watch out! Paul ends with a warning about judgment for the false teachers; their end after death would not be pleasant; they will be judged by their deceptive deeds. What deeds was Paul referring to? The spreading of a false gospel, a false Jesus, and a false spirit. I believe this warning applies to Mormonism. Every Mormon claims to be Christian and yet they deny every essential doctrine of Christianity. If Christianity is defined as a person who believes and follows the doctrines of the historic church then Mormons are not Christians. Let me give you an illustration to help you understand. I want you to guess what my oldest son Jeff looks like? He cannot have blond and brown hair at the same time. There is only 1 correct description of Jeff. The same goes for God. You cannot create any old God you want; there is only one true God. Mormons worship a different God than Christians. For example the Mormons say God the Father has a body of flesh and bones like we do. Christianity teaches God is an immaterial being; that God is Spirit. God cannot have a physical body and be immaterial at the same time. The Bible says in John 4: The God of the Bible does not have flesh and bones, He is a spirit being. Mormons are worshipping a false God. Again I believe these verses apply to Mormonism. This is not to say Mormons are bad people. Most of the Mormons I know are great people; they are just not followers of the one true God. They have been deceived and are deceiving others. The Bible calls them false teachers. As Paul warned the Corinthian Church; watch out! We must worship in spirit and in truth.
