Uropean Urbanity provides an overview about young architectural strategies on contemporary urban development, showing all prize-winning and selected European projects from the competitions European 7+8 in Austria and Slovenia.

You can make it work for you too, if you do it the right way. Today we will talk about a few steps you can take to give Instagram your best shot, by creating a win-win-win situation for you, your potential customers and Instagram itself. Be social Remember that Instagram is much more than a place where you can upload pictures. Leave a comment and say it and Like it! Also, make sure to reply to the comments that people leave on your pictures, especially if they are reporting an issue that they are having with a service or product you provide. Social networks are the perfect place to show that you care about your customers and that you can make everyone happy or at least try to! I know other people who do too. How about uploading a pic of the making of it? Show people your business from a completely different perspective. Some of them will love you just for that! The generic hashtags are getting tired and old. If you post cool pictures, people will start looking for your pictures by searching for your hashtag. Give the users incentive to use your hashtag when sharing your pictures or pictures of them using your product! Maybe by offering a discount or free gift to each person who does. Some businesses have done it, and it works great! Time your upload Like uploading your photos right before bed after a long day at work? Other people are going to bed too. Find some time to share your pictures at 5 or 6 p. These are not just numbers thrown out there like that; studies have actually been made! It makes sense though; many people check their social accounts right after work. By catching them at this time, you will increase your chances of generating more likes, comments and shares. So, what else can you post? If you have image editing skills, try to add some effects to your pictures and go beyond what Instagram allows you to do. Bypass the typical square shape that Instagram gives to your pictures. By adding 2 stripes of white line at the top and bottom or left and right of your picture. Make sure to do that only once in a while, else that will get boring too! I never got the point of this, but it works on me; I always go and check the picture out. These are the images that have a white background and black text on them or vice-versa. This is the right way to do it. Businesses that just do heavy promotions simply lose their followers over time, simply because people go on social networks to have a good time, and not to be presented with offers all the time. Instagram is one of the many networks that you can promote your business on , but it certainly is one of the most visual ones together with Pinterest and YouTube â€” you may want to start using your camera more often for this one!
