The settlement was mentioned in the Domesday Book. Herst 11th century ; Herstperpunt 14th century ; Perpondesherst 15th century. The village is chiefly one long street running east and west and most of the buildings in it are of the 18th century or later. There was a church and 3 mills. The overlordship descended with the rape until the division after the death of Beatrice, Countess of Arundel , in , when the 10 fees late of Robert de Pierpoint passed to the Duke of Norfolk. Subsequently the overlordship of Hurstpierpoint came into the hands of the Lords Bergavenny , and the manor was said in to have been held of their manor of Ditchling. Modern History[ edit ] The late 20th Century and early 21st Century saw Hurstpierpoint expanding with new homes built north, east and west of the village. Scouts is for boys, and Guides is for girls although boys and girls can go to both. Hurst Festival takes place every summer, run by a charitable organisation. This is crossed in the centre of the village by Cuckfield Road which goes north to Cuckfield. Hurstpierpoint is located close to the A It has some popular restaurants including The New Inn. It also has a brewery at the back of the White Horse. Holy Trinity[ edit ] The parish church [5] consists of a chancel with arcades of two bays, north chapel, south chapel now organ chamber and vestry , nave, north and south transepts, north arcade and aisle of four bays, south arcade and aisle of five bays, and a north-west tower with an octagonal spire of stone. The base of the tower serves as a porch and there is a small porch to the north chapel. The nave has a clearstory. Church at the main crossroads in Hurstpierpoint. The church was completely rebuilt from the designs of Sir Charles Barry in 1855, who most famously designed the Houses of Parliament. In 1865, the north chapel was added, and in 1875 the south chapel; the last has a dated foundation-stone in the east wall. The north transept has been fitted up as a chapel in memory of those who died in the War of 1914-18. The church which it replaced consisted of a chancel with a south chapel the Danny chapel 1865 see Danny House of approximately equal dimensions, a nave with south aisle and north porch, and a west tower with a shingled spire. A number of funeral monuments and fittings were preserved from the old church. The font is probably of c. 12th century. Nearby, a broken mortar, brought from a local farmyard, has been set on a stem and base as if to represent a font. The enclosure around the font has turned balusters and moulded handrail of the 18th century and may have been the former communion rails. In the east window of the south chapel are set fifteen medallions of German or Flemish glass of the 16th and 17th centuries; five are circular, the others oval; they mostly depict scenes from the Old and New Testaments and include a Nativity, and the placing of our Lord in the sepulchre. There are also four similar oval cartouches in the west window of the tower-porch, all collected and placed here by Canon Borrer in 1865. The feet rest against a lion. At the west end of the north aisle is a much mutilated effigy of a knight of c. 14th century. The head rests on his helm, which has a lion crest; the feet also rest against a recumbent lion. The figure now rests on an altar-tomb against the north wall; the exposed south side has four quatrefoil panels each enclosing a plain shield, and the east end a single panel. In the churchyard by the west wall are five tapering coffin lids of the 12th or 13th century with hollow chamfered edges. One shows faint traces of a raised cross. They are suffering from wear in their present position. There are eight bells, of which two date from 14th century, three from 15th century, one from 16th century and one from 17th century. The heaviest bell weighs 12cwt. Education[ edit ] St Lawrence Church of England Primary School is located close the centre of the village which is for children 4 to 11 years of age. Also located in the village is the public school , Hurstpierpoint College , to be found to the north-east of the village. The fair takes place on the first Saturday in July and begins with a procession of floats through the high street. These are made by groups such as playschools, primary schools, scouts and brownies and have a different theme each year. Other popular events of the day are the family fun run and the tug-o-war where the local pubs battle it out for a barrel of beer. In 1995 it was won by the White Horse of Albourne Road. The fair is home to Harris fun fair and usually has a chair-o-plane amongst its rides as well as different stalls such as a coconut shy. Charities and businesses from around the area place stalls, tombolas and raffles around the centre, and on the other side is
